

Howlett urged to tell role with steel firm

by WANDALYN RICE
and STEVE BROWN

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael Howlett should make a full disclosure of his relationship with Sun Steel Co. of Chicago Heights, Ill., said Wednesday.

In an interview with The Herald, Howlett, the regular Democratic candidate for state comptroller, said Howlett should resign his $15,000 post with Sun Steel if "there were even gray areas" which might be interpreted as a conflict of interest.

Howlett has come under increasing criticism for holding the post, which included the title of vice president, during the past 10 years while serving as state auditor and secretary of state.

HOWLETT HAS said there has been no conflict of interest between his work as a consultant to Sun Steel and his state offices. He also has said he never kept the job a secret because it has been listed each year since 1972 on the economic disclosure form required by law.

Bakalis, the former state school superintendent who is running on the ticket with Howlett in the March 16 primary in opposition to a slate backed by Gov. Daniel Walker, said he believes some of the news coverage of Howlett's Sun Steel job has been unfair. However, he said that while Howlett is technically correct that he never concealed the job, he thinks the secretary of state should have done more to reveal it.

"Apparently the information was always available for anybody who wanted to look for it," Bakalis said. "But I think we politicians have to do something extra to raise our credibility." Bakalis said he personally makes all his financial dealings public even though "I'm not comfortable with everyone knowing how much I have and how much I owe."

Bakalis said he will not call on Howlett to resign the job because "I don't know the nature of the arrangement." He said if Howlett is correct in saying he only offered management advice and that there was no chance for a conflict of interest, he should not have to resign.

"I FTHRE WERE areas (in the job) that were even gray (in terms of conflicts of interest), he should disassociate himself from the company," Bakalis said.

He said, "I think a clarification has to be done because people don't trust politicians."

In related developments, Ronald Stackler, a Democratic candidate for attorney general, said he was glad to see Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott decide to appoint a special prosecutor to look into the Howlett situation.

Stackler also cited several recent Illinois Appellate Court decisions which suggest that a court hearing should be held to determine if Howlett should repay the money he earned from Sun Steel to the state.

Stackler cited court cases involving

State Rep. Clyde Choate, D-Anna, and former Cook County Clerk Edward Barrett, which ruled that public officials may be liable to repay the state any financial gains they may have received because of conflict-of-interest situations.

A second investigation also was called for by Donald Page Moore, a Democratic candidate for Cook County state's attorney.

Moore said a county grand jury should investigate Howlett's outside job with Sun Steel. He also called for the Internal Revenue Service to audit Howlett tax returns and the returns of Sun Steel.

Eight contend to serve out Harms' term

Village to choose new trustee tonight

The Arlington Heights Village board will select a new trustee tonight from among eight candidates being considered for the post.

The eight finalists are vying for a one-year term made available Jan. 19 by the resignation of Alice Harms.

Interviewed Wednesday night by village trustees were: Alfred J. Barbboro Jr., Norman Breyer, Ralph Clarbhour, Victor Johnson, Mary Schlott, Mike Silverman and Raymond Warns. An application also was received from Walter Maczka.

The board tonight will discuss, "amongst itself," the qualifications of each candidate and then make a decision, Village Pres. James T. Ryan said.

THE MEETING IS OPEN to the public. It will begin at 8 p.m. at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Each candidate was asked the same basic questions covering flood control, community development funds, downtown redevelopment, capital improvement priorities, geographical representation, social services, future development of the Arlington Park Race Track area, and the role national and regional political parties should play in Arlington Heights elections.

Temper flared once during the three-hour meeting when Trustee O. V. Anderson objected to Trustee August Bettman's questioning of Clarbhour about his outside political activities.

Clarbhour has been considered a front-runner for the appointment to the board because of his previous experience as a trustee and village president.

BETTMAN ASKED Clarbhour if he was "active in a new political organization now trying to elect candidates."

Clarbhour said he was chairman of a Conservative Caucus committee now interviewing candidates for the March 16 primary election "to ascertain whether they have a conservative philosophy."

"It is not a political party and it is not politically affiliated," Clarbhour told The Herald. The interviews are for the purpose of endorsing candidates before the election, he said.

Barboro, an owner and partner of Aetna Printers in Chicago, is chairman of the Arlington Heights Youth Council and is a member of the special committee on social services.

He was an unsuccessful candidate for the village board in April 1975. As a Caucus candidate, he finished fifth.

Barboro is also vice president of the Hasbrook Civic Assn.

Breyer is an assistant administrator at Illinois Central Community Hospital, Chicago. He has been on the plan commission for five years and is a member of the citizen's action committee against flooding.

Breyer is also a past president of the Northgate Civic Assn.

Clarbhour is chairman of the village board's special committee now

Patty a robber or victim of terror group?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst, a tiny, motionless girl in court, went on trial Wednesday with the prosecution picturing her as a cunning bank robber and the defense claiming she was "broken" by the same brutal terror used on prisoners of war.

Exactly two years after she was kidnapped, a jury was seated and opening arguments begun in a case boiling down to the question of whether the 21-year-old heiress joined her revolutionary captors or was driven near madness by fear.

Famed criminal lawyer F. Lee Bailey told the jury of seven women and five men that Patricia was kept in a closet without lights for six to nine weeks, sexually abused and finally convinced she would be killed by the FBI if she attempted to surrender. She was forced to go to the bank, Bailey said, by her captors who wanted to show her conversion — "to take her in like a prize pig and place her directly before a camera."

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr., in a low key address, made no mention of brainwashing but said the prosecution would present evidence that Miss Hearst voluntarily joined the bank holdup and afterwards made tapes boasting about it and saying she had joined the Symbionese Liberation Army.

A bank guard will testify, Browning said, that he heard Patty call out to employees and personnel in the bank lobby: "The first person to move gets his m—head blown off."

Bailey told the jury that the girl was "a prisoner of war for 20 months."

Judge rules for Arlington district

Lynnwood annex to parks upheld

The 1974 annexation of the Lynnwood subdivision by the Arlington Heights Park District was upheld Thursday by Judge Edward Healy.

Healy ruled the park district acted properly and in accord with state laws by annexing the 110 houses in unincorporated Wheeling Township despite opposition from the residents.

In 1974 the park board, acting upon a then-new state statute, annexed the area northwest of Arlington Heights to the district, despite opposition by residents.

The state law authorized park districts to annex land that bounded park property, by a lake, river, railroad or highway.

AREA RESIDENTS contended that the park district's interpretation of Chicago Avenue as a "highway" was in violation of the law.

Timothy Riordan, attorney representing the park district, said Healy's ruling upheld the validity of the district's annexation ordinance and annexation procedures.

Park Pres. Lloyd Meyer said he was pleased with the ruling.

"I'm pleased for the park district and what we were trying to do... We have to think of the district as a whole and not just a small section of it," Meyer said.

HE SAID THE RULING will validate other involuntary annexations into the park district.

"Now that we know we are right, we can carry on without that hanging over our head," he said.

Neither Donald J. Kreger, attorney representing the Lynnwood Homeowners Assn., nor a spokesman for the group could be reached for comment.

Riordan said the Lynnwood group could appeal Healy's decision within 30 days. If no appeal is filed, the ruling will stand, he said.

THE PARK DISTRICT has been annexing land under the 1974 state law to "even out" the district's saw-toothed boundaries, and to increase the tax base.

Commissioners have said residents outside the district have been using park facilities without contributing to the upkeep through payment of park district taxes.

During the early stages of the Lynnwood annexation fight, tempers often flared. At one point, the homeowners asked the Cook County State's Attorney's office to probe the district's annexation methods.

Firefighter faces traffic charges

A Schaumburg fireman faces traffic charges in connection with a fatal accident last week in Elk Grove Village that killed a 69-year-old Roselle man. The firefighter, Martin Coniglio, 32, has been ticketed by Elk Grove Village police for disobeying a traffic signal and failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident, police said Wednesday. Coniglio was driving the fire department ambulance that collided with an auto driven by Walter J. Wisniewski, Roselle. The two vehicles collided at Meacham and Nerge roads while the ambulance was enroute to Alexian Brothers Medical Center with a patient.

Coniglio will appear in the Elk Grove Village branch of Cook County Circuit Court Feb. 26.

Adult literature cover-up asked

Des Plaines officials have given the preliminary OK for a city-wide cover-up. Aldermen are expected to approve an ordinance that would require adult magazines, newspapers and books depicting nudity covered up in city stores. Ald. Alan Abrams, 8, said the ordinance is not an attempt to censor publications, but rather an attempt to regulate their display. Officials agreed not to give final approval to the ordinance this week after Mayor Herbert H. Behrel suggested aldermen take two weeks to "study the bare facts."

Weapons charge against janitor

A Palatine man who shot and killed an alleged burglar last December during a break-in at his home was arrested Wednesday for carrying a concealed weapon. Palatine police said Donald B. Baczynski, 36, of 53 S. Smith St., was charged with unlawful use of weapons following his arrest at Harper college. College security officers reported seeing one of the college's janitors carrying a handgun in a shoulder holster, police said. On Dec. 1, Baczynski shot and killed Mark L. Desmone, 23, of Palatine Township, while Desmone was allegedly breaking into Baczynski's apartment. No charges were filed in connection with the shooting.

Probe of police abuse complaint

Mount Prospect Police Chief Ralph Doney is investigating charges by a village resident who said he was physically abused by a local policeman during a traffic violation stop. Paul Rufolo, 47, of 149 Gregory St., said the policeman used "unusual physical force and aggravated a shoulder condition the motorist said he has after being stopped for a traffic violation Tuesday. Doney declined to identify the patrolman but said an in-house review board will hear the case and determine if further action is necessary. Rufolo told The Herald that while being searched following his arrest, "I had my hands on the hood and he kicked my legs out from under me and kept taking my arms off the hood to make it look like I was resisting arrest which I really wasn't." Rufolo said. Doney said the patrolman's story differed but the police chief refused to give his account of the incident.

Case not served properly

Harper faculty suit rejected

The Harper College Faculty Senate lawsuit against the college board of trustees on negotiations issues was rejected in court Wednesday because it was not filed properly.

Cook County Circuit Court Judge Edward Wosik dropped the case filed against the college. The suit charged the board with setting salary ranges before negotiations began and for negotiating in bad faith.

"There is no pending case of any kind at this time," said Robert Rausch, board member and chief negotiator. The judge said the case was "not served properly," said Rausch. "If the faculty wishes to pursue negotiations in court, they must start all over again."

"We wish to pursue negotiations to meet a March 1 deadline," he said. "If the faculty senate is prepared to present a negotiable proposal, we will be willing to discuss it."

FACULTY SENATE officials could not be contacted for comment Wednesday.

The suit was filed last week after contract talks broke off Jan. 26. Negotiations began Jan. 12.

Judge Wosik last week issued a temporary restraining order against the board prohibiting it from threatening faculty members or discussing the issue with them. He also had prohibited the board from issuing faculty contracts or setting a March 1 deadline for ending negotiations. Wednesday the judge dropped the restraining order and the order against an arbitrary settlement deadline.

Michael Bartos, chief negotiator for the faculty, said earlier the faculty was suing the board for setting salary ranges before negotiations began. The board in December set faculty salary ranges for the 1976-77 school year that established minimum and maximum pay for associate instructors, instructors, assistant professors, associate professors and professors.

Faculty members objected to setting salary ranges before contract talks began saying all salary decisions should be made during negotiations. Board members say salary ranges have never been part of negotiations.

Killer quake rocks Guatemala City

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI) — A severe earthquake devastated parts of Guatemala City and surrounding countryside Wednesday and the president reported heavy loss of life and pledged to "do everything for those who lost everything."

Smaller waves of the quake hit neighboring Honduras, El Salvador, Belize and southern Mexico but damage there was reported light.

President Kjell Laugerud Garcia, after viewing the devastation from a helicopter, went on nationwide radio to report at least 800 dead and 3,000 injured. He said the toll was expected to increase.

"Guatemala has not been fatally wounded. We can save it," he said.

"We must do everything for those who lost everything."

Heaviest hit were parts of Guatemala City and neighboring villages of adobe houses which crumbled under the impact of the first pre-dawn shock and a series of after-shocks.

In Miami, the Spanish-language International Association of Amateur Radio Operators quoted a Dr. Bower, whom it identified as vice president of the Red Cross in Guatemala, as saying there were more than 1,500 dead and more than 5,000 injured in that country.

An amateur radio operator of the Central American Union Mission of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church, heard in Washington, reported that 600 bodies have been found.

Alexander Klein, Guatemalan director of public information for CARE, said reports from CARE officials in the country "estimated the dead in Guatemala City at 500 and 2,000 injured and the toll is going up. The heart of the city is reported 50 per cent destroyed."

Guatemala City celebrated its bicentennial Jan. 6. The old capital of Antigua was destroyed by an earthquake in 1773 and this city now wretched in smoke from fires and dust dates from Jan. 6, 1776.

The big shock came at 3:06 a.m. EST and officials said it registered 7.5 points on the open-ended Richter Scale — an extremely heavy shock that would inflict enormous damage. Aftershocks continued for hours afterwards.

No Americans were reported hurt in the earthquake but some of them left the city on the first available plane. In Miami, Mary Ellen Marunde of Woodstock, Ill. said "I thought a plane had crashed into the room. The bed was jumping around wildly. There was a swimming pool about 160 yards from us and all the water in the pool poured into our room. I was terrified."

Pan American Capt. Frank Holley, pilot of Flight 502 from San Salvador to Guatemala, said he circled the city to survey the damage.

"From what I had heard, I was surprised at lack of apparent damage I could see," he said. "I could see no collapsed buildings but like I said, I was busy flying the plane. After takeoff I noticed landslides to the northwest of the city."

Rescue workers and firemen dug through the rubble of collapsed homes and shattered glass in Guatemala City, the largest in Central America, amid aftershocks to remove dead and injured. Firemen working without water battled numerous blazes. Power was off for hours in the capital where streets buckled and ripped open.

Buildings damaged in the initial quake teetered on their foundations in aftershocks and hundreds of residents fled in panic to open countryside to avoid the possibility of falling buildings.

Mexican President Luis Echeverria ordered high ranking officials to Guatemala, with offers of food, medicine, clothing and technical assistance in reconstructing the worst hit areas.

Col. Mario Gustavo Cardona Maldonado, director of the Guatemalan police, said "At present all we know is that the number of casualties is very high, and we're still receiving reports of more victims."

Nursing home blaze in Cicero kills six

by United Press International

Fire and billowing smoke swept through the fourth floor of a modern high-rise nursing home in suburban Cicero Wednesday. Six persons — one a young blind woman confined to a wheelchair — died in the smoke and flames.

At least 27 other persons — most of them elderly patients — were injured in the fire. Twenty-six were admitted to hospitals for treatment and one was listed in critical condition.

It was the Chicago area's second nursing home tragedy in five days. Fifteen elderly persons died Friday after a small fire spread smoke through the third floor of the Wincrest Nursing and Rest Home on the city's North Side, trapping infirm residents in a chapel.

The latest fire broke out shortly before 7 a.m. in a fourth floor room of the Cermak House, a nine-story gray stone and brick nursing home in the suburb about 8 miles west of Chicago's Loop.

The home, which was opened in November, 1974, housed 470 residents.

Cicero Fire Marshal Joseph Geriba said four of the victims were from the one room, which was gutted by flames.

"When firemen arrived," Geriba said, "flames were coming out of the doorway and the door had burned off."

"It was so identical to the Wincrest fire you couldn't tell the difference if you were to compare the two," Geriba said.

Attendants said an electrical fault may have started the fire. There was no confirmation.

Thick smoke billowed from a charred fourth floor window on the west side of the building. Fire damage appeared to be extensive on the fourth floor and there was smoke and water damage on the fifth floor and on lower floors.

Up to 100 residents of the upper floors were evacuated to the lobby as firemen fought the flames and smoke. Anxious relatives milled outside the door in temperatures in the mid-teens, waiting for word of the fate of their loved ones.

As firemen battled the smoke and flames in Cicero, Denise Watson, 21, a nurse's aide at the Wincrest home, pleaded innocent to charges of murder and arson in Friday's fire.

Ms. Watson entered the plea at her arraignment before Chief Criminal Court Judge Richard J. Fitzgerald on two counts of arson and 45 counts of murder.

Fitzgerald assigned the case to Judge John F. Hechinger who then held a hearing and granted a defense motion that Ms. Watson undergo a psychiatric examination.

Investigators said Ms. Watson had "a bad history of pyromania." She was reported to have told authorities she lighted a match in a closet to look for something but accidentally dropped it.

Mayor Richard J. Daley said he will ask the City Council to approve an ordinance requiring sprinkler systems in all Chicago nursing homes.

FIREMEN INSPECT blackened interior of fourth-story room of Cermak House nursing home in suburban Cicero. Six persons died and at last 27 were injured. It was Chicago area's second nursing home tragedy in five days. The home, opened in 1974, housed 470 residents.

Senate upholds milk price support veto

The Senate Wednesday voted overwhelmingly to uphold President Ford's veto of a bill increasing milk price supports by about 5 per cent. ## Jury seated, Patty goes on trial

"Field Marshal Gen. Cinque," the title taken by ex-convict Donald DeFreeze, had read about the tactics used by the Chinese and Koreans to force combat-hardened American soldiers to denounce their own country in written statements and tape recordings, Bailey said.

"And here he had a 19-year-old girl as his victim," Bailey said.

Attempting to explain why Patricia stayed underground until captured last September, Bailey said DeFreeze had planted in her mind that she had been forsaken by her parents, cast out by society and was a death target of the police.

"On May 17, 1974, that propaganda came true," Bailey said.

"The defendant saw on television in Los Angeles machine gun bullets tearing into a so-called SLA hideout, bullets by the hundreds, perhaps thousands, the people inside burning to death and the news media saying 'Patty Hearst is probably in there.'"

Browning told the jurors the government would show that a month after the San Francisco bank holdup Miss Hearst sprayed a sporting goods store in Los Angeles with machine gun bullets from the same automatic weapon she held in the bank.

He said she did so in helping the flight of SLA members William and Emily Harris after Harris had been caught shoplifting.

Later that day, he said, Patty and the Harries abducted high school student Thomas Matthews and during 12 hours they drove around Miss Hearst said she participated voluntarily in the bank robbery, was free to leave whenever she wished and showed him the weapon she had fired at the sports store.

Browning said he would show motion pictures made by bank cameras of the holdup and produce tape recordings in which the defendant proclaimed herself "Tania" and said she had not been brainwashed in any way.

Bailey said he would establish the bank robbery was part of a scheme by "crackpots" to bring about an uprising by terrorists that could bring about the overthrow of the United States.

"But for the kidnapping of Patricia Hearst there would have been no bank robbery," he said.

Tokyo Rose pardon sought by Japanese-American unit

A Japanese-American group in San Francisco is seeking a presidential pardon for a woman who was convicted of treason years ago as "Tokyo Rose." She made propaganda broadcasts for Japan during World War II. Iva Toguri D'Aquino was stripped of U.S. citizenship in September, 1949, and sentenced to 10 years in prison and fined $10,000. Now 59, she works in a Japanese import store in Chicago. The group hopes to show Mrs. D'Aquino was a victim of post-war prejudice and denied a fair trial.

Ingmar Bergman, one of the world's most original and acclaimed film directors, has been hospitalized in Stockholm with a nervous breakdown days after his "humiliating" arrest for tax fraud, it was learned Wednesday. A spokesman refused to go into details, but friends of the director said his illness was "a direct consequence of the police action last week."

Mickey Mouse records despite the saturation advertising to his home. Last Saturday he received 150 envelopes advertising a $24.96 (15-album) Walt Disney record collection. On Tuesday 200 more of the Mickey Mouse envelopes were found in his mail box. Haselmann decided to call the post office to see what was going on. Postal chiefs told him they had eight more bundles ready to be delivered Wednesday. The next call went to Walt Disney Productions in California. The woman there said to send them back at Disney expense. She said "the Disney computer must have gone crazy." Haselmann's kids say they don't want the records.

Concorde flights to E. Coast OK'd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Overriding stout objections from environmentalists, Transportation Secretary William Coleman Jr. cleared the Anglo-French Concorde supersonic transport Wednesday to fly to Washington and New York on a 16-month trial basis.

Unusual security measures were in effect at the Transportation Department as Coleman issued a 97-page ruling granting the request by Air France and British Airways to make two flights a day to Washington's Dulles Airport and four a day to New York's JFK.

The Washington flights might start in April, giving the United States its first supersonic passenger air travel. But Transportation officials said New York flights might be delayed by the need to obtain additional local approval there.

"If we ban the Concorde completely," Coleman said in explaining his long-awaited action, "we may be condemning for all time or delaying for decades a significant technological advance from mankind."

"In reviewing the environmental costs of six daily Concorde flights, I have concluded . . . that the impact on air quality, the effect of low frequency noise vibrations and the climatic impact of stratosphere emissions are not significant reasons for denying limited operations."

His decision drew praise in Paris and London, but expressions of dismay among U. S. environmental groups and some members of Congress who demanded quick legislation to overturn the ruling.

The Environmental Defense Fund immediately started a legal challenge to the decision, asking the U. S. District Court in Washington to review Coleman's ruling as the first step.

President Ford endorsed Coleman's ruling as being "wisely and judiciously weighed," and Press Secretary Ron Nessen said "the President has no present plans to review the decision."

The decision was a surprise to both sides, which had expected a compromise of flight to Dulles but not JFK.

We're going to be dodging snow beginning today and extending through at least Friday. The follow-up show will be near zero temperatures once again.
That's what the Barometer and Thermometer Quartet were saying late Wednesday afternoon.

You know those guys.
They're Coleman, Coughlin, Tilmon and Volkman, four men who would scare us to shakes with their daily predictions of doom.

ALL FOUR were forecasting snow late Wednesday, three during Herald interviews and the other on television. But they weren't agreeing on the amount.

The weather business is funny that way. It snows more at certain television stations.

"A BIG STORM!" John Coleman told his WLS-TV, Channel 7, listeners on the 5 p.m. news. "Could it be that a heap of snow, the great snowball we've all been waiting for since 1967 comes in?"

"The question, of course, is (whether) this big storm is for us? Or, will some minor burg like Peoria or Indianapolis get it?" Coleman wondered over the airwaves.

COLEMAN PREDICTED a 40 per cent chance of snow beginning before this morning. He outlined the Rocky Mountain states where snowfalls between eight and 12 inches are reported.

Free income tax aid offered at center

The Northwest Opportunity Center will offer a free income tax service from Feb. 11 to April 14. Interested residents may call the opportunity center at 265-3406 from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., to arrange an appointment for the tax service.

The Northwest Opportunity Center is at 8 W. College Dr., Arlington Heights, and assists low-income and minority persons in a seven-township area.

John Coughlin

Harry Volkman

Jim Tilmon

John Coleman

And Coleman enthused, "Guys, I've got to tell you. If you're a weather nut like I am, it's gonna be fun the next couple days."

He even gave the storm a name, "Storm Murphy," in honor of new WLS-TV anchorperson Terry Murphy.

If Coleman seemed all to enthusiastic about the impending white nonsense, then his celebration wasn't shared en masse.

"We don't know how large a mass it will be," John Coughlin of WBBM-TV, Channel 2, told The Herald late Wednesday. "The heaviest mass should be south of Peoria down to the Ohio River."

COUGHLIN FIGURED about four inches will fall on Chicago today with perhaps more snow by Saturday.

He said don't overreact. "Caution, but not panic, is a very good way to put it," Coughlin said.

Harry Volkman, Chicago's most traveled weatherman currently employed by WGN-TV, Channel 9, said the snow storm is moving slowly across the Rocky Mountains.

"We expect to get some here tomorrow (Thursday)," Volkman said.

"The worst pile-up will come Thursday night and Friday. But it is a potentially very big one."

One who managed to remain cool, calm, confident and collected is Jim Tilmon, the flying weatherman for WMAQ-TV, Channel 5, which has given us the Newscenter and funny accompaniment music.

Tilmon told The Herald he would predict only between one and three inches. It is a large band of snow moving eastward, Tilmon said, but he thought most of the biggest nuisance would occur south of Chicago.

"There's always an outside chance of considerably more if for some reason this storm changes its path," Tilmon conceded.

SO THERE YOU have it. Get set for snow, cold weather and more frustration.

But relax! It's only temporary. These things happen. Don't fight it. Keep a low profile.

And remember something else which Coleman told his viewers Wednesday afternoon. "I am forecasting tomorrow to be the next day."

Now that's taking a stand! Right on, John!

No money and out of work? Dist. 214 may help you out

If you are 18 or older and out of work, High School Dist. 214 has a program that could make your future a bit brighter.

The Project 210 Job Opportunity Training Center at Wheeling High School, 900 Elmhurst Rd., offers training in machine operation, clerical skills, drafting and child care. The center is sponsored by the Cook County Office of Manpower and is financed through the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

The program is designed for the "economically disadvantaged," said Martin Quinn, program counselor. Persons enrolled in the program usually have low incomes and are often the head of their household. Many do not have high school diplomas.

WHILE ENROLLED IN the 12-week program, students are paid a "subsistence allowance" of $2.30 per hour, said Quinn, and receive supportive services to help them through the training program. The center may finance babysitting, supply eyeglasses, or provide personal, social and career counseling, he said.

Students attend classes for about 30 hours a week. Those who do not have a high school diploma attend 40 hours a week and receive extra schooling to help them finish their high school education through the General Education Development (GED) exam.

The center also offers a placement service to those who have gone through the training program. When the program was first offered in Dist. 214 last summer, 76 persons were enrolled and about 65 per cent were placed shortly after the end of the session. After they are placed, the center does a follow-up study on each trainee to insure they have been successful.

Quinn believes the program has been a success thus far. "With the unemployment rate as high as 12 per cent," the center is doing a good job in training and finding jobs for the unemployed, he said.

PEOPLE ARE REFERRED to the program through employment agencies, the Illinois State Employment Service and advertisements in local newspapers.

"This is not a give-away program," said Quinn. The requirements are fairly strict, he said. To be accepted into the program, a person must be a resident of suburban Cook County and at least 18 years of age, and he or she must have been out of work for at least a week and have no marketable skills.

The applicants are interviewed, and instructors of the training programs select those who are suited for the program. Attendance is taken daily, and the number of allowed absences is limited, said Quinn.

Classes meet at Wheeling and Hersey high schools from 2 to 10 p.m. five days a week. The winter session began this January, but persons interested in attending the program in the future should contact Quinn at 537-4890.

Over 50 Club plans trip

The Over 50 Club of Arlington Heights is sponsoring a field trip to Ingleside, Ill., Feb. 19.

The trip costing $6.50, includes transportation and lunch at the Holiday House on Wooster Lake in Ingleside.

For reservations contact Kay Gilday, 392-0034.

Village board wrapup

Shop center builder receives extension

Jack Jacobs and Co., developers of a proposed shopping center at Arlington Heights and Palatine roads, has received a one-year extension to begin construction.

Jacobs told the Arlington Heights Village Board this week he was "confident we will get this project off the ground this year."

The board had previously given Jacobs a nine-month extension, which recently expired.

Construction has been delayed because of leasing and financing difficulties, Jacobs said. "But we should be able to get our commitment from a major department store the first part of this year," he said.

Giraffe to continue serving

The Giraffe discotheque, 2121 S. Arlington Heights Rd., has received permission to continue serving liquor while the village board's public health and safety committee reviews a proposed adjunct liquor license.

Village officials and discotheque operators have disagreed on whether the Giraffe can legally operate under the Class AA liquor license issued to the Brasserie restaurant adjoining the discotheque.

The AA license is for the service of liquor incidental to the sale of meals. It permits the sale of liquor until 1 a.m. week nights and 2 a.m. weekends.

The board also accepted assurances from Trustee Richard Durava, acting chairman of the committee, that he is not biased against the attorney for the Giraffe, Richard Cowan.

Cowan charged Durava with making "inflammatory statements" toward him at a recent committee meeting. At that time, he requested that Durava not participate in future discussions regarding the Giraffe.

Sidewalk policy sent to panel

A sidewalk policy giving first priority to sidewalk needs near school buildings has been sent to the village board's finance committee for further review.

Two areas assigned top priority in a recommendation from the public health and safety committee are:

- Along Arlington Heights Road from Thomas Street to Palatine Road (except for the Jacobs property, which is a Planned Unit Development) to provide safety for children attending Wilson School;
- Along Arlington Heights Road from Magnolia to Cypress in the vicinity of Dunton School.

Keep sixth graders in junior highs: Dist. 59 panel

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 sixth-grade study committee has recommended the district keep sixth graders in the junior high schools but improve programs so sixth graders receive more personal contact with their teachers.

The committee presented its final report to the board Monday. It included recommendations for improving sixth-grade programs, placing sixth graders in the district and ways for alleviating overcrowded conditions at two of the five junior high schools.

The committee reported that "overcrowding exists at Grove and Holmes junior high schools."

THE COMMITTEE suggested the board consider the following options to alleviate overcrowding at Grove, 777 Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village:

- Convert Grant Wood School, 225 E. Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village, into an annex for Grove because the elementary school is located across the street from the junior high.

Students at Grant Wood could be transferred to Ridge and Clearmont schools. Parents from Grant Wood have strongly opposed converting the school into a junior high annex.

- Keep sixth graders in the Grove area in the elementary schools. Grove sixth-grade teachers and two of the five elementary school principals in the Grove area have opposed this plan.

- Change the dual-enrollment system currently used with Queen of the Rosary School and Grove. Junior high students, at the Catholic school currently attend Grove for certain classes and for lunch. The recommendation would have the parochial students stay at the Catholic school for lunch and have the Catholic students who live in the Lively Junior High School area attend that school for the special classes.
- Establish a committee from the Grove area to come up with other alternatives.

OPTIONS DISCUSSED for Holmes, 1900 W. Lonnquist Blvd., Mount Prospect, include:

- Changing boundaries so some Holmes' students would be transferred to Dempster and Friendship junior high schools. Parents in the Holmes area spoke against such boundary changes.
- Converting part of Forest View School, 1901 Estate Dr., Mount Prospect, into a Holmes annex.
- Allow a committee in the Holmes area to recommend other options.

The committee report said the district "currently is on the right track in meeting the needs of the sixth-grade age youngsters."

Thomas Powers, committee chairman and Hopkins School principal, said the district should keep sixth graders at the junior high schools because "The sixth-grade student today is probably more like the seventh grader than the fifth grader." He said junior highs should continue to work toward offering programs geared for the sixth grader. He said those students need more personal contact with their teachers to help make the transition between elementary and junior high school.

The committee also recommended the district improve its guidance program for sixth graders and urged that communication between the junior high and elementary school be improved.

Village raps zoning for Magnus

Mount Prospect will join Arlington Heights in opposing high-density zoning for the Magnus Farm, a 42-acre nursing home on Central Road.

The Mount Prospect Village Board voted Tuesday to authorize Village Atty. John Zimmermann to contact Jack Siegel, Arlington Heights village attorney, about a cooperative effort to block zoning for 728 units.

A hearing has been set for Monday before Cook County Circuit Court Judge Raymond Berg after Berg rescinded his Jan. 18 order permitting 17.4 units per acre on the property.

ATTORNEYS for Alexander Magnus, owner of the property, succeeded in obtaining the court order for the high-density zoning after the Cook County Board voted Jan. 14 to amend the zoning ordinance to eight units per acre. The new ordinance took effect Jan. 19, five days after the court order.

Mount Prospect officials said they were not notified of the ruling in favor of higher zoning, and that the judge was not aware of the new ordinance reducing the number of units per acre. During the county board hearings, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect opposed high-density zoning for the farm.

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D.

Teichert said Siegel could represent both villages in the case, with Mount Prospect paying a share of the legal expenses.

"I don't think we have the time now to have our attorney prepare something on it," said Teichert.

Villages, county may sue to recoup extorted funds

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT
and LINDA PUNCH

Dozens of former county and local officials convicted of extortion may return to court to answer demands by local and county attorneys for damages and recovery of payoff and shakedown funds, The Herald has learned.

Wheeling Village Board members and a spokesman for State's Atty. Bernard Carey said they are considering filing suit to recover funds lost in the payoffs and shakedowns.

At least three former Wheeling village officials, nine former employees of the county assessor's office, a former county board member, a former county clerk and a former county zoning administrator may be named in separate suits that could seek millions of dollars in damages.

WHEELING VILLAGE officials met Monday in a "closed" meeting to discuss collection of damages from former village officials who demanded payoffs from local builders.

In Hoffman Estates, where six former village officials pleaded guilty in 1974 to federal extortion and tax fraud charges, Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said a suit is not planned because developer Kaufman & Broad has paid $75,000 in damages.

Carey's staff began "preparation of approximately a dozen cases" last month after winning a precedent-setting verdict against former County Clerk Edward Barrett in the Illinois Appellate Court, a spokesman said.

Barrett was convicted in U.S. District Court in 1973 of extorting $180,000 from a firm that sold voting machines to Cook County.

CAREY ASKED Circuit Court Judge Walter P. Dahl to order payment of more than $180,000 by Barrett to the county because the former clerk abused his "position of trust by employing it to seek secret personal gains from the Shoup Voting Machine Corp."

Dahl dismissed the case, but the Illinois Appellate Court reversed the decision in December. Barrett has requested a rehearing.

"As an elected public official, he (Barrett) held a position of the highest public trust. Barrett acted as the county's agent," the Appellate Court stated. Because Barrett accepted the $180,000, "that benefit may be recovered from him" by the county, the court said.

In a similar downstate suit last year, the Illinois Appellate Court in the 4th Dist. refused to dismiss a taxpayers' suit, which asked damages from former state legislators who purchased race track stock at below-market prices from track owners. The case has been appealed to the Illinois Supreme Court.

"THIS IS A NEW area that holds public officials liable to their communities for financial misconduct," Deputy State's Atty. Sheldon Gardner said Wednesday.

"The giving of favors (like preferential zoning after receipt of payoffs) were at the expense of the community," Gardner said. "The community may even be entitled to damages from builders which were caused by overzoning."

Gardner said he "will not recommend to my boss (Carey)" that the state's attorney seek damages for municipalities where local officials were convicted of corruption. "We're putting things together" for claims against other county officials who were convicted of extortion or bribery, he said.

"There's no reason why the corporation counsel or village attorney can't proceed," Gardner said.

Wheeling Village Board members met Monday with Village Atty. John Burke, who refused to discuss the meeting.

BUT TRUSTEE Charles Kerr told The Herald, "If they (former convicted officials) did in fact receive money and benefited at the taxpayers' expense, the taxpayers deserve to get it back. If the courts now feel the money is refundable to the municipality, then I'm in agreement with it and would like to see it."

Three Wheeling officials, former building director William Bieber, former trustee Michael Valenza and former trustee William Hart were convicted of corruption in U.S. District Court last year.

Bieber pleaded guilty to federal extortion, perjury and tax charges, served a prison term and was paroled in 1975. Valenza pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy to commit extortion, and Hart pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit extortion in June 1974.

James Stavros, a former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman who pleaded guilty to extorting more than $92,000 from three Wheeling developers, was not a "public official" and probably will not be named in a damage suit, The Herald learned.

"WE'LL PROBABLY look to see what they (Bieber, Valenza and Hart) pleaded guilty to and if enough money is involved to make it worthwhile," Trustee Otis Hedlund said. "We're aware of the decisions and the position the village finds itself in, but we've taken no action yet."

"Monies that were given like that could have come to the village," Trustee William Hein said. "If the village has any monetary income coming, I think we should get it."

In Hoffman Estates, six former village officials pleaded guilty in 1974 to charges of corruption. The payoffs involved Kaufman & Broad Inc. and the Barrington Square development.

Kaufman & Broad paid the village $75,000 as part of an out-of-court settlement in 1975 after Hoffman Estates officials refused to approve building permits for completion of the project. Kaufman & Broad also agreed to reduce building density for the project.

"We recovered a considerable amount of money," Hayter told The Herald Wednesday. "We got a cash donation. If we had to go to court it may cost more in individual cases than we could get back. Most of those people are long gone."

Pay phone call 20 cents

ICC OKs rate hikes for Bell subscribers

by LEA TONKIN
A 20 cent pay phone call, charges for directory assistance and a 20 to 25 per cent increase in long distance rates within Illinois are included in a new rate package handed down Wednesday by the Illinois Commerce Commission.

The rate increases will provide Illinois Bell Telephone Co. an additional $70 million in annual income, said ICC chairman Marvin Lieberman. The utility had requested rate hikes totaling some $186 million.

"The Illinois Commerce Commission's decision is completely unrealistic," said Bell president James W. Olson. "It falls woefully short of what this company needs to provide reliable, high quality telephone service. This will force us to file for a new request for rates very soon."

OLSON SAID Bell will ask the ICC to reconsider its decision. "Failing that, we will appeal the decision in the courts," he said. Olson said payment for the company's $456.1 million construction program for 1976 will be affected by the rate decision.

Criticism is also offered by State's Atty. Bernard Carey, intervenor in the rate case. "Evidence presented by my office clearly demonstrated that a rate reduction not a rate increase, is in order," Carey said.

"It is particularly disturbing that the cost of coin-operated telephone calls will increase to 20 cents," Carey said. "Much of the burden of this 100 per cent increase will be carried by those who can least afford it, those who are too poor to maintain a telephone in their home. I am reviewing the commission's lengthy order and considering an appeal of their ruling to the circuit court."

THE ICC REJECTED Bell's request for increased basic monthly home and business telephone charges and higher charges within the City of Chicago, based on the length of a call. The commission said it is "mindful of the Bell System's long standing advertising philosophies which have encouraged the use of the telephone for socializing or personal conversation." Bell serves approximately 3 million customers in Illinois.

Among the changes in rates granted by the ICC are the following:

- Calls from pay phones will cost 20 cents compared to the previous 10 cent rate. Free operator and emergency service must be provided before the higher charge can be imposed, and instructions for phone use must be provided in Spanish in areas populated by Spanish-speaking people. The most recent pay phone rate hike was in 1961 when the charge increased from a nickel to a dime.

- Directory assistance calls will cost a dime after the first six each month, starting in mid-1977. A 30-cent credit will be given to customers who don't make directory assistance calls.

Calls to directory assistance will be free from public phones, hotels, hospitals, for calls outside a home area code, for numbers not published, not listed, new numbers, or operator calls, and from home phones of handicapped persons.

- Long distance calls within Illinois will cost 20 to 25 per cent more than previous rates. The initial three minute period for direct dialed calls will drop to two minutes.

- The additional message unit system charges used in the Chicago metropolitan area will increase. Most downstate Bell customers have flat rate monthly service charges. Chicago area customers, however, are offered service packages for a certain number of unit calls each month, with charges added for calls above a limit. Additional units will increase from 5.5 cents to 5.75 cents. Multi message unit charges for calls between Chicago and suburbs, and among suburbs, will increase.

Lieberman said the new charges amount to a 5.6 per cent rate hike for Bell. The company's rate of return will increase from 8.5 per cent to 8.75 per cent. Bell had requested a 9.5 to 10 per cent rate of return.

Decorative painting techniques were taught by Susan Scheewe, Oregon.

Sheila Schnura, Chicago, had five seminar projects to do.

by BARBARA LADD

Her husband moved back to his mother's home for the week. And her dog, Chinky, a huge boxer, kept tripping over bodies and paint tubes with a forlorn look in her wrinkled face.

It's no wonder. Muriel Mills, wife and dog-owner, hosted something similar to a painting marathon in her Arlington Heights home last week.

Beginning Wednesday night she opened her doors to 15 women, including a nationally renowned crafts instructor. Until Sunday, the crafts painters lived in the rambling old house — eating, painting, sleeping, painting, drawing numbers for use of the bathroom. And painting.

By all appearances it was a madhouse: furniture was pushed out of the way and piled high with crafts, living room space was filled with plywood desks, upstairs rooms were lined with wall-to-wall rented beds, and people were absolutely all over the house. But no one seemed to mind.

"This is such a congenial group," said Mrs. Mills, owner of The Web craft store in Arlington Heights. "No one has even spilled their turpentine." (That's not surprising. Mrs. Mills permanently fastened the turpentine cans to the desks before everyone came.)

THESE WOMEN are owners or instructors of crafts stores located throughout the United States, including Maryland, Missouri, Indiana, Wisconsin and Illinois. Their specialty is tole and decorative painting, which is the free-hand application of oil paints to just about anything from cloth to glass and tin.

To learn more about their hobby and profession, they often attend seminars featuring well-known tole artists. Instructing the women last week was Susan Scheewe from Oregon, who has co-written several books on the subject and conducts classes on tole techniques all over the country.

Last fall Mrs. Mills attended one of these classes and found out Mrs. Scheewe was participating in the January Chicago Trade Show. With Scheewe nearby, Mrs. Mills hatched the idea of the Arlington Heights seminar.

Originally only eight women planned to attend. But as word of the seminar spread, more and more persons asked to come. After some quick calculating, Mrs. Mills decided her home could hold 15 painters (maybe). She turned down other requests.

"I'm surprised at how great everything has gone," said a tired-looking Mrs. Mills. "At first I worried for fear they would notice the dust on the window sill, but as you can see, that was no problem," she said surveying the cluttered rooms.

ANY SEMBLANCE of neatness would have been nearly impossible, since the women painted daily from about 6 to 2:30 a.m. And painting is generally not as tidy a hobby as, say, raising tropical fish.

But everyone was happy. Enthusiasm bubbled throughout the rooms, as did light-hearted joking. Friends through thick and thin, they kidded each other about snoring, pajama patterns and hometown names. One woman was mercilessly teased for drying herself off with a bathmat, thinking it was a thick towel.

Mrs. Mills' husband, Bud, played no small part in the week, even if he did move back with his mother. He carried desks from The Web studio to his home, hooked up extra lighting in the living room and even showed up Thursday night to cook the women a gourmet feast.

Success of the seminar centered around the unique idea of having it in a home instead of a hotel. "It's been the most fun seminar I've attended," said Mrs. Scheewe, the instructor. "This is a super group."

Mrs. Mills agreed the group was great about pitching in with the dishes and housekeeping duties, but she preferred to describe the group as "a bunch of crazy ladies."

Poor Chinky, whose queenly domain was usurped by these "crazy" women with their tubes of Sky Blue and Payne's Gray, agreed.

The doctor says

by Lawrence L. Lamb, M.D.

Patient record key to changes in ECG

My husband is 33 years old and very active. He works as an athletic director and plays basketball three times a week. He also referees basketball and baseball. This has been his schedule for nearly three years.

Recently he had an electrocardiogram as part of a medical examination. The doctor said the ECG showed results of a mild cardiac problem. He was sent to a specialist in internal medicine and he said the same thing. He suggested that bad teeth could be the reason for the strange pattern.

My husband had the bad teeth removed and another ECG was done. It was the same.

My husband had asthma and rheumatic fever when he was a child. Last year an ECG was performed and the doctor said his heart was O.K. At this point we are at a standstill. Surely a man couldn't be as active as my husband if he'd had an attack.

I can't tell you what your husband's record shows without seeing it. But I can tell you after having seen records on over 122,000 men in the Air Force flying population that individuals with no significant heart disease can have records that look like almost every serious pattern commonly attributed to heart disease. You have to correlate the ECG with the patient's history and findings.

When a person has no symptoms at all and is physically active, you must be careful in concluding that seemingly abnormal patterns mean anything. Many well conditioned athletes have changes (particularly T wave changes for those interested in terminology) that mimic coronary artery disease. Individuals who have interpreted lots of records in healthy people become aware of this.

I do not wish to leave you with the impression that I think your husband has no problem. You will be surprised to know that people with heart disease can do lots of things, including quite a bit of physical exertion without having any symptoms. Athletes with diseased heart valves from rheumatic fever have won major athletic events. A large number of men who have had heart attacks and have been rehabilitated have even competed in the Boston marathon.

THOSE WHO want information on what you can expect after a heart attack can send 50 cents for The Health Letter, Number 2-12. After the Heart Attack. Enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1951, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

The old idea that if you have heart disease you can't do anything is an idea of the past. True, some people have enough damage to their heart that they do well to be able to accomplish the normal living tasks but this is by no means the rule. The problem is identifying who can be trained to do more and who needs to restrict activity.

Your husband's history of previous rheumatic fever would provide the basis for some changes in his heart that could be related to changes in the ECG. However, if he had no damage from rheumatic fever he would be expected to have a normal record.

What can you do to resolve the situation? I think you should have your husband seen by a heart specialist. I note you live in Nevada, so ask your doctor to refer your husband to the University Medical Center at either Salt Lake or Denver. The cardiac departments in either of these centers could resolve the problem and if additional tests are necessary, they could be performed.

by Dorothy Ritz

Reader tells her way of washing mushrooms

Dear Dorothy: Mushrooms are wonderful but, as you know, often come covered with sticky dirt that is hard to wash off. I've found that a fruit jar with a screw-on lid makes a great mushroom-washing machine. Fill a quart jar half full of dirty mushrooms. Add enough cold water to cover them, put the lid on and shake vigorously. Pour off this water and add enough fresh water to cover again, but this time add two tablespoons of vinegar. Again, put the lid on and shake vigorously. Pour this off and rinse once more in clear water. You'll find your mushrooms are squeaky clean. — Nyabee Gipson

Love your idea. A thousand thanks!

Dear Dorothy: I'm having a static problem. When I wear nylon pantyhose with polyester pants, the legs cling — and when I wear a polyester coat with a certain skirt or pants, the clothes cling after I remove the coat. What to do?—Mrs. F. Rich

Only thing that will help is to use fabric softeners with washable garments and have those that can't be washed drycleaned. After a time, the static gradually goes. You're not alone with the problem. Polyesters do this, particularly in cold weather.

Dear Dorothy: Is there any reason why you can't store water taken from the dehumidifier for use in the steam iron? After all, it is water taken out of the air and should be free of minerals.—Ada Tremaine

You have a good point, except that the temperature of water has a way of making the bacteria that falls in grow like mad. The query came up years ago and I did some experimenting, even to boiling the dehumidified water and pouring it through a cloth sieve. It didn't work. The fuzzy bacteria came floating through as usual.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 289, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60004.)

Sex bias charged in insurance

(First of two related columns)

The hearing room filled up early with men. Most of them were insurance industry officials and their lawyers, many of whom had gathered in a similar hearing room several days earlier in Springfield.

They were in Chicago Tuesday to support their views on the Illinois Insurance Department's proposed rule prohibiting discrimination based on sex or marital status in health and life insurance.

It wasn't until noon that women turned out in force to fight their battle. Most of them were doing this on their lunch hours. One, employed by an insurance company, said she had been denied a half day vacation to testify.

But though their appearance was brief and rushed, the women came armed with exhaustive research documenting insurance industry discrimination against women. Their testimony and supporting studies won praise from the state's insurance director, Robert B. Wilcox.

THOUGH THE RULE was originally set to become effective March 1, Wilcox said the testimony he had heard indicated the rule "can be further strengthened" and that it would undoubtedly be revised, thus delaying its effective date. (The insurance industry asked for an automatic six-month delay following final adoption of the rule.)

Several significant issues were raised in Tuesday's testimony that will now have to be resolved by the department:

- Should the rule be extended to require that normal pregnancy, as well as complications of pregnancy, be covered along with other disabilities?
- Should the rule be extended to cover casualty insurance (automobile, homeowners, tenants, etc.) as well as life and health insurance?
- Should it include specific language prohibiting discrimination

Keeping up

by Monica Wilch Perin

against homosexuals?

• Should the rule be amended to apply only to new policies written after the effective date, and not existing policies renewed after that date?

• Should insurance rate differences (as between men and women) be based on actual loss statistics as required in the proposed rule, or on "expected losses derived by actuarial principles?"

Jean Hoffenkamp, an insurance industry employee and member of Women Employed, the group spearheading the drive for the rule, charged that what the industry calls "sound actuarial principles are merely a self-serving method for discriminating against women."

The insurance department's director of consumer services, David Taylor, established during testimony by John K. Booth, actuary for the American Life Insurance Association, that there are no written procedural standards on the actuarial profession as there are in accounting.

On the question of applying the rule to existing policies upon renewal, the industry claimed this would illegally interfere with ongoing contracts.

BUT WOMEN EMPLOYED said renewal is tantamount to renegotiation of the contract and thus the requirement would be entirely legal. This position was affirmed in earlier testimony by John Schmidt, president of the Chicago Council of Lawyers.

Everyone testifying, including the industry, said they support the rule. But Women Employed, which wants certain strengthening additions made, pointed out that the industry objected to something in every section of the proposal.

NEXT WEEK: Discrimination: Pregnancy, homosexuality, casualty.

What it's worth to quit

by ROBIN FRAMES and MARK FUERST

(Last of 10 parts)

To quit smoking is a lonely process, but it's worth a lifetime of good health, says an expert who gave up a two-pack-a-day habit seven years ago.

Not only did June Walzer quit smoking herself, but the energetic head of the American Cancer Society's New York quit-smoking clinics estimates her volunteer-staffed program has helped nearly 400 people kick the habit.

Clinics can provide people with an atmosphere of support to help them change their smoking attitude and behavior, says Miss Walzer. "The aim is to get through to people that smoking is dangerous to health now and forever more."

AS LONG AS people look upon cigarettes as solutions to their problems, they will continue to smoke. "Smokers want to give up smoking because it's bad, but they don't want to give up their cigarettes," says Miss Walzer, who adds that it's hard to get the idea of preventive medicine across to people.

Still, there is a sense of accomplishment when a person quits, she says. "People feel if they've conquered this they can conquer the world."

Each person reacts differently to the process of quitting. Some prefer to stop altogether — the less the talk about it, the better they feel. Others benefit from the support a clinic can provide.

IF ONE METHOD fails, try another

SMOKING & YOU

One, Miss Walzer says. Some people return to clinics five or six times. Others don't stop until six months after attending a clinic. Even if the smoker continues, "at least he's an educated smoker, not a dumb one."

One of Miss Walzer's star pupils, Nat, smoked nearly four packs a day for 40 years until he developed leukemia, white spots in his throat that indicated cancer. "When the doctor looked down my throat and said I'm getting cancer, that was enough for me," he said.

Nat quit "cold turkey" after one lecture by Miss Walzer and says he would have paid $10 for a cigarette in the first weeks of nonsmoking.

AFTER FOUR months of nonsmoking, his spots had cleared up.

Nonsmoking is a continuous process, and just like the habit of smoking, has to be practiced. "It's a hard thing to face up to that the thing we enjoyed for years is going to kill us," Miss Walzer says.

Ultimately, the smoker must get a picture of himself as a nonsmoker and motivate himself to stop. "Unless the smoker wants to stop, no matter what you say won't stop him," she says. "But it's worth it to give your body a chance to adjust to the new, healthier you."

She's happy if her plants just grow

I just finished reading the bookiest paperback of the year. I think it was these statements that came into me reading "The Psychic World of Plants" by parapsychologist Hans Holser: "Discover what your plants are thinking." "Does a carrot scream when it is uprooted?" "Do plants experience fear, love?" "CAN THEY COMMUNICATE FEELINGS?"

It's probably true that the American public (plant growers) are very much perceptive fear, love? "Can the communicate feelings?"

The current fad of talking to plants all started in 1966 with Cleve Backster, a private detective, started attaching plants to a galvanometer late one night and discovered the life detector registered noticeable electrical charge when he attempted to burn a dracacena leaf or even thought about doing so. This gave birth to the idea that perhaps plants can read our minds.

BACKSTER'S EFFECT, as it has come to be known, that plants appear to be sentient has caused varied reaction all over the world, having become the subject of skits, cartoons and lampoons. Since Backster, much has been written about plants and their life forces. "The Secret Life of Plants," written in 1972, stayed on the best seller list for months.

I go along with talking to plants, especially when there is nobody else around to talk to. And I guess they "talk back," so to speak. They can say, in a fashion, "I'm dying of terminal houseplant," or "Water, water, or I'll drop a fistful of leaves on your carpet." But I draw the line at Holser's suggestion of psychical research

Potting shed

by Mary B. Good

to step down one's own vibratory rate to "enter" the plant organism and use it for observation. Or the potential value of using plants as senders of information not otherwise accessible to man, such as warning of natural catastrophes. (How about communicating with UFOs?)

PERHAPS IT IS human snobbery to consider plants of inferior value to man and animals, even though plants were here first. But to me it is purely good gardening practice and nothing more to avoid treating plants like furniture — automatically watering them when you feel like it or ignoring their needs when it is inconvenient, or sticking them in dark corners where they can't grow, just because they look good there.

Outside of growing and simply looking pretty, I don't expect any more emotional response from my plants than I'd get from a pet rock.

Public policy strategy — provide a local fairy tale

For those who like fantasy: Once upon a time there was a school district located in the heart of Des Plaines. The school district operated quietly for many, many years and hardly anyone who lived in the city knew much about it, other than it educated all the little children.

Although there were occasional parent and teacher uprisings in this district, residents of the city paid little attention to what was going on there. Elections were seldom contested, board meetings were seldom attended and questions were seldom asked. Everyone seemed very happy.

Then one day the little school district came under criticism. It seems the board voted to give all the administrators in the district a raise and didn't want to say how much.

SOME PEOPLE, whose noses appeared to be out of joint, got upset and said the school board was refusing to release public information to the public. They even said the school board had done things like this before, and were trying to keep things from the very taxpayers whose money paid the salaries and supported the budget and kept the district operating.

The school board was upset by all of these allegations and stated publicly that the district has always been open. They said when questions were asked they were answered and when information was requested it was given.

The board president went so far as to direct the board's policy committee to meet and draw up a policy on releasing public information to the public.

SO THE POLICY committee held two meetings to discuss a new policy with their lawyer. The meetings were open to all of the people, but hardly anybody came, and those that did sat silently in the room listening to what was being discussed.

Everything seemed to be progressing beautifully. The public meetings were being held and a new policy was being drawn up, all nice and legal. In just two meetings, the committee came up with a rough draft of the new policy.

Then, along comes this nosy old re-

Education today

by Dorothy Oliver

porter who went to the meetings. The reporter asked if she could have a copy of the proposed policy so she could explain it in a story to all the people who hadn't come out to the meetings. She thought it might be good for the public to know what the public information policy said before the board approved it, so if they didn't like it they could let the board know before it was voted on.

THE BOARD MEMBERS said no — the public information policy could not be made public.

The policy committee presented the rough draft to the rest of the board this week. The committee wanted to know if any changes should be made.

All of the board members sat around the table looking at the new policy. Some suggested wording changes, but no one let slip what the policy said. After all, it's not the proper time to make the public information policy public.

The policy committee will now smooth out the rough edges and return the policy to the board for approval in two weeks. If the board lives up to its reputation, the policy will be approved unanimously and the committee will be thanked for its diligent work. The board will congratulate itself for the open manner in which they drew up the policy and everyone will live happily ever after.

How do you like that fairy tale?

Howlett should explain 'job'

During his long Springfield career, Michael J. Howlett has appeared to stay clear of the jungle of corruption and conflicts of interest that too often consume state politicians. His public life has been untarnished by scandal.

But a report last weekend that he has long held an unpublished "consulting" job for Sun Steel Co. raises questions that must be answered forthrightly.

MICHAEL J. HOWLETT

Howlett has refused to disclose the nature of his work over the past 16 years for the Illinois steel firm. But there are reports that he has worked on behalf of a bill, supported by the firm, which would exempt scrap iron dealers from having to file identification numbers from junked cars with the secretary of state.

Howlett denies vehemently that he talked with State Sen. Philip Rock, D-Chicago, about the bill. But Rock told reporters recently that Howlett had, indeed, talked with him. Later Rock reversed himself.

We feel Howlett owes the people of Illinois a complete explanation of his association with the steel firm and the nature of his interest in the scrap steel bill. He should answer questions fully, and openly, and he should do so at a full-scale press conference.

He should resign his post at Sun Steel. That action would assure the public that he's at least aware of the potential improprieties raised by his part-time job.

Anything less than a complete response could damage Howlett in the public's eyes. At stake is the March 16 primary election, a fact which should encourage Howlett to be prompt and thorough with his explanation.

Double dipping for legislators must end

The Northwest suburbs — and particularly the 5th legislative district, which serves part of Des Plaines — is plagued with state legislators who participate in an age-old political practice known as double dipping.

According to a "roll call of double dippers" released this week by the Illinois Coalition for Political Honesty, four state representatives and two senators are receiving paychecks as members of the General Assembly and from other governmental agencies.

We have consistently deplored double dipping and have called for legislative reform to prohibit officials from holding two elective offices simultaneously or from drawing two paychecks from state-supported agencies.

Five of the legislators listed fall into that category, including State Rep. Edward Bluthardt, R-Schiller Park, village president of Schiller Park; State Rep. Jack Williams, D-Franklin Park, village president of Franklin Park; State Sen. Howard Mohr, R-Forest Park, mayor of Forest Park; State Rep. Leo LaFleur, R-Bloomington, who is employed by a state agency; and State Sen. Bradley Glass, R-Northfield, who is village attorney for Northfield and Palatine.

We do disagree with the Coalition's label being applied to State Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, who is a part-time teacher at Oakton College. We don't see Jaffe's involvement with the community college as a conflict of interest or an ethical problem.

The others are attempting to serve two master simultaneously, and we feel they should step down from one of their government jobs.

Another elected public official applying for a vice president-consultant job!

'A worthwhile project'

It is all too easy for a suburban newspaper to submit to the publication of hum-drum news about daily events in our community. The test of a real reporter is found in the creation of a story which brings to the attention of the public a really worthwhile project.

I wish to thank Toni Ginnetti of the Elk Grove Herald and a young lady in your travel department who interviewed me last week about the activities of Poplar Creek Unit, National Council of Jewish Women. Their beautiful story helped to spotlight the activities of our organization for the first time since we were founded one year ago.

My only regret is that the article focused too much on myself and not enough on my co-workers. The success of any organization is due to its committee chairmen and officers, not to its founders or presidents. Some of our most active members in the Roselle-Schaumburg-Hoffman area have contributed greatly to our development, and I only wish that a story could be done about them in the future so that readers in their neighborhood could find out about the council idea.

Now, however, for the first time, we have an identity in the Elk Grove area. We have received numerous calls from friends in the community as a result of our page one story, and hope that we will have more opportunities in the future to provide you with newsworthy material.

Thank you so much.

The almanac

(by United Press International)

Today is Thursday, Feb. 5, the 36th day of 1976 with 330 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and the first quarter.

The morning star is Venus.

The evening stars are Mars, Saturn and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

American evangelist Dwight Moody was born Feb. 5, 1838.

On this day in history:

- In 1631, British clergyman Roger Williams arrived in Salem, Mass., seeking religious freedom. He founded the colony of Rhode Island.
- In 1904, Russia and Japan broke off diplomatic relations in a dispute over Korea and Manchuria.

- In 1971, American astronauts Alan Shepard and Edward Mitchell of Apollo 14 walked on the moon for four hours.

- In 1974, Patricia Hearst, 19-year-old daughter of San Francisco newspaper executive Randolph Hearst, was spirited away from her apartment in Berkeley, Calif.

- In 1975, the House of Representatives suspended for 90 days President Ford's power to increase prices on imported oil.

A thought for the day: American statesman Henry Clay said, "If you wish to avoid foreign collision, you had better abandon the ocean."

Deficit problem

Rebuttal to editorial on Saturday, Jan. 24: "Don't sacrifice program quality."

If the individual who wrote that editorial went to Sunset Park School, "he or she" would have learned to add and subtract. It would seem to me that the next five years the closing of Sunset Park would save $500,000, when Dist. 57 will be over $2 million in deficit. So saving $500,000 is not enough, therefore, closing of Sunset Park School seems just nickel-and-dime savings. What will you do for the $1.5 million deficit?

The problem is not solved by the closing of schools. It will only add to the congestion in remaining schools. The problem is Governor Walker not giving the proper allocation to all school districts of Illinois, so a referendum or change in law plus not giving raises to school teachers and other employees of the school district without proper funding will eliminate the district problem and all other school district problems.

Dr. Frank A. Sconza

He applauds school concert

The Elk Grove High School orchestra and their director, Darrell Bloch, should be recognized for the excellent concert of Jan. 21.

The program itself was varied and pleasing. The direction was keen and the orchestra's performance was simply outstanding.

It's nice to see the talent these kids have, to see it developed as well as it is and have it all result in an evening of beautiful music. I would encourage anyone who enjoys good music to attend the next concert.

A 'garbage' topic

Ever since my wife and I moved into Arlington Heights, which was almost seven years ago, I have been fascinated by the local obsession with garbage.

The latest controversy over garbage has centered upon Mr. Ryan's veto of the proposed 8.3 per cent increase in the cost of the Laseke firm's service to the community. Residential service, for example, would increase about 45 cents a month. This works out to an annual increase per household of only $5.40 for service which is, in my opinion, truly excellent.

While this important matter of garbage has captured the attention of our village leaders, the costs of local vandalism, a golf course and flood control measures among other pocketbook issues have yet to be felt by the local taxpayer. I rather suspect that these costs will altogether amount to something more than $5.40 per year per household.

With Laseke's fine service, I hardly ever think about garbage. But the recurrent controversy over this very same topic is a constant reminder of something that, to me, amounts only to garbage.

Amnesty's no longer big issue

by DAVID E. ANDERSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The only real hope for amnesty for Vietnam war objectors is election of a liberal president this year, says a civil liberties lawyer.

As President Ford's clemency board made its final report public last month, the attorney who has long been active in the movement for a universal and unconditional amnesty privately stated his pessimism.

"The only way we are going to see amnesty is to elect a liberal president in November," he said.

THAT ASSESSMENT is quietly but widely held in the pro-amnesty movement, and some groups are scaling down their activities in the interim.

Charles Goodell, the former New York senator who chaired the administration's clemency board, says Ford's controversial program — announced shortly after the President assumed office and pardoned Richard Nixon — was only a partial success.

Yet there appears to be little enthusiasm at the White House or on Capitol Hill for devising a program that would do better. And supporters of amnesty are taking the "wait for November" approach.

There seem to be two key reasons why Ford's plan failed — public misunderstanding of what the effort was all about; and a serious question whether the conditional clemency actually improved a potential applicant's situation.

GOODSELL WAS undeniably right when he said only 20 per cent of the potential 113,000 eligible applicants took advantage of the clemency program partially because there was a lack of information about it.

Most people thought the program was only for war resisters who had fled to Canada, and it wasn't until the board undertook a massive public relations campaign that applications started arriving.

Gerald R. Ford

The irony of the situation is that there were few inducements for the exiled resisters, and less than two per cent of applications came from Canadian exiles.

The Clemency Board portion of the program dealt only with convicted draft resisters and servicemen who had been convicted of absence-related offenses.

UNDER TERMS of the Ford program, the Clemency Board could offer these people something between an outright pardon to doing up to two years of alternate service work in the national interest. It was this portion of the program that was most highly criticized by the draft resisters, in particular, as punitive, meaningless and not likely to produce the national reconciliation sought by Ford.

Goodell, himself a war opponent, defends the thrust of the program and consistently has spoken against any form of unconditional or blanket amnesty. He has appealed to the President and Congress to recreate the Ford program.

Congress has taken periodic looks at the question of amnesty and, as expected, there are wide-ranging views on the issue — from calls for an unconditional amnesty to suggestions for prohibiting any amnesty.

Rep. Robert Kastenmeier, D-Wis., who chairs a House judiciary subcommittee on courts, civil liberties and the administration of justice, has drafted a bill that falls somewhere between the Ford program and demands of the pro-amnesty movement.

THE BILL CALLS for no alternate service but requires applicants to sign a certificate saying any violations of law they committed resulted because of "disapproval of the military involvement in Indochina."

Goodell calls it "an invitation to lying."

Although the measure has been approved by Kastenmeier's panel, it appears likely to languish in committee at least until after November.

N.Y. media expert to aid Walker-backed hopefuls

Some of the statewide candidates running with Gov. Daniel Walker against the Regular Democratic Organization will use the services of New York media specialist David Garth.

Garth, who directed Walker's successful television campaign in 1972, and his associates were in Illinois this week directing the filming of television commercials for several Walker-backed candidates including State Sen. Vince Demuzio, D-Carlinville, who is running against State Treasurer Alan Dixon for secretary of state.

The television campaign will feature individual spots on each candidate, according to several sources. Several candidates running on the regular organization slate, including Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan and Michael Bakalis, a candidate for comptroller, said they plan little or no television commercials before the March 16 Illinois primary.

Besides working on Walker's 1972 campaign, Garth also handled the television campaign for New York Gov. Hugh Carey. Both the Walker and Carey victories were considered major upsets. Garth had a recent Illinois loser, however.

HE HANDLED THE television campaign for ex-Chicago Ald. William Singer in his 1975 primary campaign against Mayor Richard Daley. Singer lost decisively to Daley.

Ronald Stackler, a Walker-backed Democratic candidate for attorney general, said he has talked with Garth, but has not determined if he will use the firm.

"We have not decided if we can afford him, I understand he is expensive and he wants cash on the barrelhead in advance," Stackler said. He said that his primary campaign budget is about $150,000 and the bulk of that will be spent on television.

Plans for a major television campaign for some of the lesser statewide posts were regarded as unprecedented by some observers.

Prisons overcrowding hit

State Sen. John Graham, R-Barrington, has blamed Gov. Daniel Walker's administration for overcrowded conditions in Illinois prisons.

Graham, who is chairman of a state commission on penal institutions, said he and other legislators have been warning Walker for three years that insufficient state resources were being committed to deal with the rising rate of convictions.

Graham charged David Fogel, executive director of the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission, had become a troublemaker in Illinois corrections.

In recent days, Allyn Sietoff, Illinois Dept. of Corrections director, has denied reports of overcrowding. Fogel, however, claimed that the prisons were 97 per cent full.

Lid asked on taxing power

Roger Stanley, a candidate for the Illinois House from the 4th Legislative District, has called for a constitutional amendment to limit the amount the state can collect from an individual's income to 6.6 per cent.

Stanley said the plan will "restore fiscal sanity in Springfield."

He said the limit would include all state taxes including those on income, cigarettes, gasoline and others.

"Gov. Walker and his people seem to think that the tax well will never run dry," Stanley said.

The second point of Stanley's fiscal program would require each state spending proposal to include the cost of the bill on the individual taxpayer. He noted such a program would encourage lawmakers to be more careful in proposing new spending programs.

He also called for all monies collected in the state lottery to be used for state aid to schools, providing an automatic annual increase in the standard deductions to keep up with inflation.

Stanley also called for legislation to create a mandatory work requirement as a condition for receiving welfare aid.

Political briefs

Fundraisers planned

Two more candidates have announced plans for fund-raising events in the coming weeks.

Supporters of Roy Bergquist, a Republican candidate for the Illinois House from the 4th Legislative District, will host a reception Feb. 29 at the Casa Royale, Des Plaines.

Tickets for the event are $9 per person and can be obtained by calling 965-8565.

Tickets for the party may be obtained by calling 457-5826.

Judge orders rehiring of 32 cops in Skokie

U.S. District Court Judge Joseph Sam Perry ordered the village of Skokie Wednesday to reinstate 32 policeman fired after they showed up for work in civilian clothes last July. Perry ruled the village and its Board of Fire and Police Commissioners could suspend the officers for up to 30 days, but ordered the board to reinstate them with back pay, minus the time they were suspended during their uniform protest.

He also said the village could deduct salaries the officers earned from full-time jobs since their firings as well as $3,423.80 in damages he assessed each officer because of the protest.

Perry said the strike had cost the village $159,297 in extra payroll expenses and $65,832.45 in other expenses including legal fees.

John Flood, president of the Combined Counties Police Association in Wheeling, said the association's next step is to resolve the contract dispute that caused the job action in the first place.

Siragusa quits state panel

Charles Siragusa has resigned as head of the Illinois Legislative Investigating Commission because of poor health, the commission's acting director, Ron Ewert, said Wednesday.

Ewert, also the commission's chief investigator, said he received a letter from Siragusa Tuesday which announced the resignation effective Feb. 15.

"He's in Florida, fishing and recuperating," Ewert said. "I think recuperating is the best word."

Siragusa, 63, took sick leave Dec. 16 and underwent a kidney operation before Christmas. He also had surgery last April.

Smoke short-circuits flight

Smoke from a short-circuited fluorescent light filtered through the cabin of a United Airlines jetliner Wednesday, causing the pilot to decide to return the plane to O'Hare International Airport.

None of the 54 passengers aboard the Boeing 727 jet, bound for Grand Rapids, Mich., was injured.

A United spokesman said that "It was a very, very minor occurrence."

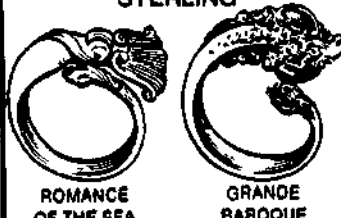

The spokesman said the incident did not disable the plane but, in order to relieve passenger anxiety, the airline decided to put the passengers onto another plane.

The environment

Ecologists urge backing bottle bill

by LEA TONKIN

Here's your chance to do something about the litter and solid waste disposal problems, said representatives of the Illinois Environmental Council.

The organization urges Illinois residents to turn out for a Springfield hearing Wednesday on the "bottle bill," HB 1830. State Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park, called a meeting of the Illinois House of Representatives Committee on Environment, Energy and Natural Resources to consider the measure.

The bottle bill, sponsored by Pierce, would impose a deposit on all soft drink and beer containers. It's a measure supported by Palatine's Pollution and Environmental Problems organization and other environmental groups. State or federal bottle deposit legislation can solve litter problems and reduce energy used in bottle production, supporters say. Opponents of the legislation, including bottle manufacturers and labor unions contend the bottle bill would cause serious economic problems.

READY FOR A field trip? The Des Plaines Valley Geological Society plans an outing Saturday to the Dixon Mounds Museum near Lewiston, Ill. It is an anthropology museum of American Indian artifacts exhibits. The group will meet at noon at the museum.

IT'S A QUESTION of timing: The Lake Michigan Federation said Monsanto Chemical Company's recent announcement that it will eventually phase out polychlorinated biphenyls raises more questions than it answers. Used in products such as electric transformers and inks, polychlorinated biphenyls pollute streams and lakes. Officials from the Chicago-based federation said Monsanto failed to announce a timetable for the curtailment of the substance's production. The pollutant is identified as a cause of cancer and "serious adverse effects," in man.

"As soon as we are satisfied that the electrical power supply industry's needs for usable, acceptable alternate dielectric fluids have been met by whomever, Monsanto will voluntarily shut down its polychlorinated biphenyls manufacturing unit," said F. J. Fitzgerald, Monsanto vice president and managing director of the Monsanto Industrial Chemicals Co.

YEARS AGO, YOU could shine a light out on a Florida pond and see one set of eyes, said L. F. Rossignol of the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission. "Now you shine a light out on that same pond and you'll see four or five sets of eyes." He's talking about the comeback of the alligator. The toothy critter has enjoyed a baby boom since it was classified an endangered species.

The U. S. Dept. of the Interior may reclassify the gator as a "threatened" species, opening the door for legalized hunting. Meanwhile, an increasing number of swimmers and boaters complain of attacks by alligators. The Florida Audubon Society and other environmental groups oppose gator hunting. "As soon as the legal hunters get to work, the poachers will also," said Peter Pritchard, society vice president.

STATE AIR POLLUTION control regulations for coal-burning plants were recently thrown out by the State Supreme Court. The ruling sustains ambient air standards, however, said Illinois Environmental Protection Agency director Richard Briceland.

All air pollution sources must also obtain construction and operating permits. Sulphur dioxide and particulate emission standards were invalidated. Briceland praised Commonwealth Edison Co. for its announcement that it will comply with the suspended regulations.

The electric utility said in some instances more time and money are necessary to solve environmental problems. Edison's assistant vice president Robert Bolger recently testified before the Illinois Commerce Commission, outlining the company's cleanup programs at coal-burning plants and other facilities.

WANTED: VAMPIRE BAT MAN. Someone trained in zoology to determine effects of nocturnal nips of bats on cattle and swine in Belize. This is just one of the job openings listed by the Smithsonian Peace Corps Environmental Program.

Botanists, parks planners and other persons skilled in environmental sciences can apply. For information write: Dr. James Sherburne, Smithsonian-Peace Corps Environmental Program, Dept. 8-1, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C. 20560.

POPULATION EXPLOSION. The alligator comeback in Florida hunt caused the state game commission to propose a limited gator hunt.

Suburban industry wins flexibility, easy access

by LEA TONKIN

There was a time when a company on the move looked to the city as a central plant location.

Nowadays, business executives can find flexibility and access to customers in suburbia, said Elk Grove Village businessman Frank Reid. He's president of W. W. Watson Co., a plumbing and mechanical service firm which has weathered change in location, technology and personnel in its 100-year history.

Reid said the business and industry shift to suburbia is one reason the company moved from N. Ogden Avenue in Chicago to Elk Grove Village in early 1975.

"We wanted to get away from congestion and we wanted to get closer to the source of our income," Reid said. "We found accessibility to the tollroad and transportation. That gives us so much flexibility we can go anywhere."

W. W. WATSON CO. maintains a Chicago warehouse, in addition to the new plant at 394 Crossen.

"The reason we chose Elk Grove Village is that it's centrally located. The pattern of business development has changed. Now it's all over the Chicago area," Reid said.

"Whether the work is in Elk Grove Village or in Timbuktu, it doesn't matter to our people," he said. The firm employs 35 to 50 persons to fulfill its installation and service contracts throughout the metropolitan area.

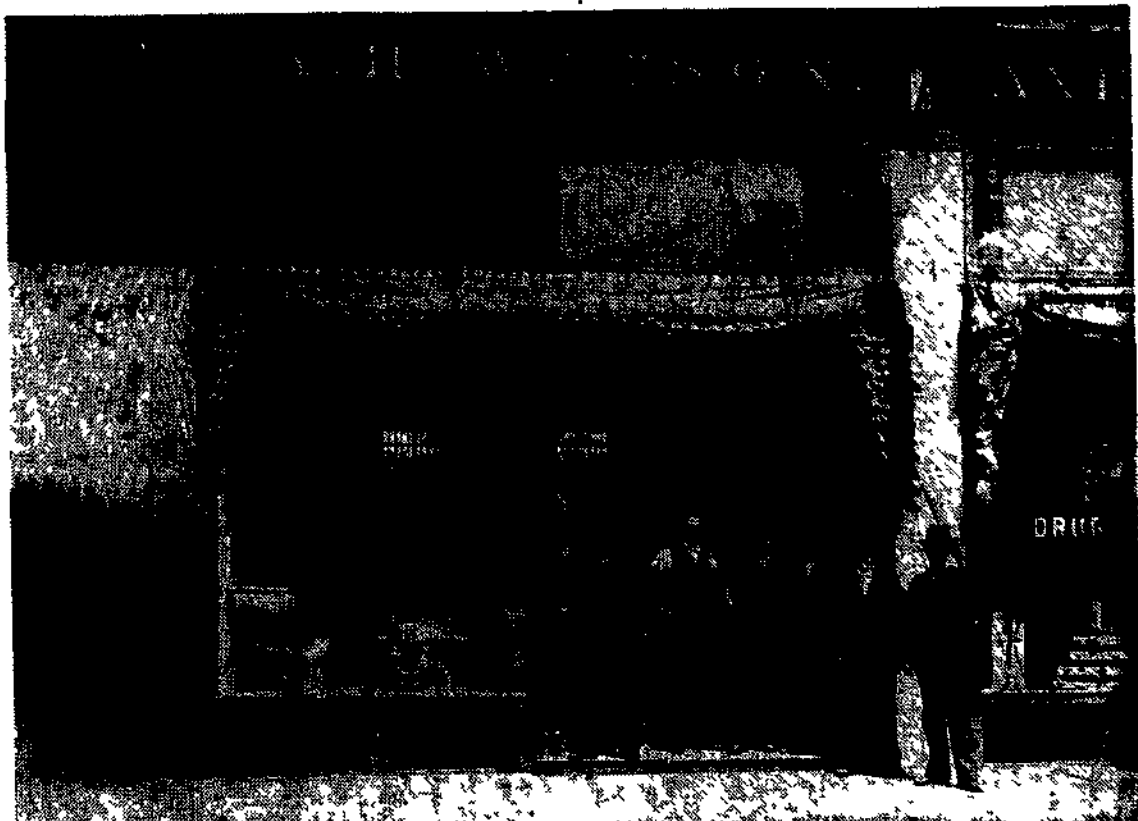

REID SEES THE transition to the suburbs as one in a series of changes that mark W. W. Watson history. Well known in the plumbing installation and service business, the firm expanded its expertise in heating contracts, pollution control and other fields.

"Fifty per cent of our business is for the railroads," Reid said.

Pollution control is fast replacing plumbing contracts as a source of railroad contracts. "In six years it will be 75 per cent of our business," he said of the process and industrial piping installations. The company has $3.5 million worth of business on the books for 1976, he said.

THE CONTRIBUTIONS of W. W. Watson employees during the years enabled the company to expand and provide quality service, said W. W. Watson, chairman of the board. The company executive was encouraged that most employees stayed with the firm when the transition to suburbia was made.

Watson figures his company is

"IT WAS A DIFFERENT period entirely," said W. W. Watson, of the family business during the 1800s. The W. W. Watson Co. moved from Chicago to Elk Grove Village in 1975.

the oldest plumbing firm in Illinois. It was founded in 1876 by his uncle Alex as A. H. Watson Co.

"Plumbers used to carry big 75 pound carpet bags over their shoulders and tools in their other hand," he said. "After the Chicago fire, wagons would go to the lead house for materials. It was a different period entirely."

The success of the W. W. Watson Co. is a reflection of change, Watson said. He remembers when wooden water mains were used in Chicago. The use of new materials and technology and the increased training of employees in the field are essential, he said.

AMONG THE COMPANY'S area contracts were the county courthouse third building in 1885, the Washburne Trade School in 1898 and the recent A. C. Nielsen facility in Northbrook.

"We intend to pursue business at an accelerated rate, for instance in the service area," Reid said. "And flexibility in our location is very important." The general trend of industry expansion continues to move away from the central city, he said.

Reid said economic improvement in the past few months should spark new construction. "Companies are not exuberant, but they're a little enthusiastic," he said.

STAN KLYBER, AN executive of the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce, said the W. W. Watson Co. move is representative of the city-to-suburbia industry trend. Economic problems set back many company plans for expansion or relocation during 1975, he said. "But if the economy continues its gradual rise, as we see now, I think we'll see an increase in movement."

Businesses moved to Elk Grove Village at the rate of 100 a year for the period of 1962 through 1973, Klyber said. The economy took its toll on mobility in 1974 and 1975. "Last year we had probably 50 to 60 companies coming out," Klyber said. He predicts the rate of industry moves to the community will climb to the annual rate of 100 by 1977.

Steel structural supports increasing in popularity

by LASZLO K. DOMJAN
United Press International

While the all-steel house promoted after World War II and again a decade ago never caught on, there is growing interest today in steel underpinnings for conventional-looking frame houses.

Steel structural supports, such as wall studs, floor joists and roof trusses, are being used in an increasing number of residential construction projects.

Other steel products commonly in use in homes include siding, doors, windows, kitchen cabinets, generally in combination with more traditional materials.

Steel manufacturers say their product has several advantages, among them durability, uniformity of quality and ease of assembly.

Prices of steel building materials, they say, become competitive with wood when all factors are taken into account.

They cite possible labor savings because pre-cut steel materials make for easier assembly; elimination of callbacks caused by such problems as warped or twisted wood; material reduction since steel joists can be spaced 24 inches apart, rather than the 16-inch spacing normally used for wood studs, and reduced maintenance for steel exterior materials.

A virtually all-steel house, built three years ago in Canada, was the subject of a report at a recent international conference of steel experts in St. Louis, sponsored by the University of Missouri at Rolla and the American Iron and Steel Institute.

Larry W. He, an engineer with the Steel Company of Canada Ltd., builder of the experimental house, said the structure was built in a Hamilton, Ont., subdivision. An identical wood frame house was built a short distance away to be used for comparison.

After initial tests were run, the house was rented and has been occupied the last three years. Tests are performed periodically.

He said the tests concerned the main structural parts — wall studs, roof trusses and floor joists. The other steel materials on the house were installed mostly for promotional reasons.

He said the steel studs had no significant effect on the insulation qualities of the building. Concern about condensation and dusting on the studs proved unfounded, he said. The steel roof trusses proved to be durable, he added.

Vibration characteristics of the steel floor joists were of major concern because the plywood subflooring on steel joists has a somewhat metallic sound.

"Our tests show there would not be any noticeable difference of performance under normal transient vibrations such as caused by someone walking across the floor," He said.

Because use of so much steel in a house is unusual, he said, potential builders and buyers "look at steel hypercritically." "Some of this is psychological," He said. "There's no real difference in the floors, but it sounds different. Once it is understood that steel is very easy to erect and has all its advantages in terms of durability and maintenance, it sells itself."

Steel building materials can be especially attractive in developing countries, the conference was told.

Alejandro L. de la Barra, a Mexican civil engineer, said prefabricated steel parts for housing with simple assembly instructions could save architect's fees as well as time in construction.

"There exists in Mexico a need for economical steel structures that can be easy to design, fabricate and erect," he said.

"Due to the small size and weight of the steel building parts, these have been erected in inaccessible areas, with transportation done by very primitive means, such as mules."

Record mortgage loan volume seen

Good news for home buyers is coming, reports the U. S. League of Savings Associations.

The league forecasts a record mortgage loan volume for U. S. savings and loan associations for the first quarter of 1976. More than 700 lenders were surveyed.

"A computer system forecasts that mortgage lending volume will run up to $13 billion in the January-through-March period, making it the strongest first quarter on record in the savings and loan business," the league's Trends Report said. Strong savings deposits tend to increase lending beyond the forecast.

"WHEN THIS factor is added to the forecast, the lending volume may be anticipated to experience further lift, bringing the anticipated volume from the January-through-March period to at least $14.5 billion," the report said.

During December, savings deposits in associations increased approximately $4.5 billion, topping the $3.4 billion mark in 1974 and 1975.

Lending activity during December amounted to a record $5.1 billion. Total mortgage lending for 1975 amounted to $54.8 billion.

"This high rate of mortgage lending volume is, of course, good news for American families, the real estate dealers and the home builders of the nation," Trends Report said.

Your home

by Carolyn Murray

The decorating look we label "nostalgic" is a rather fussy, funky kind of clutter. Rooms filled with odds and ends of leftovers from previous generations seem "nostalgic" to us.

But not everything that was designed 200 years ago or 100 years ago was fussy. Witness the marvelous simplicity of one of the earliest American inspired designs — Shaker household furnishings.

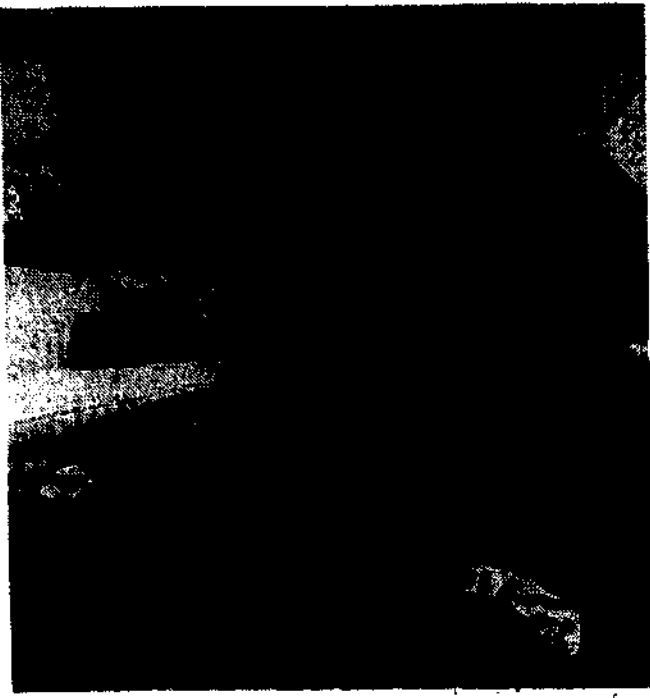

Although the idea of living with a minimum of accoutrements was a religious virtue to the Shakers, it was also practical. Since there was no desire for ornamentation, materials were spared, wood was handled directly, from following function.

Out of this simplicity developed a series of dual-purpose furnishings, the kind we still copy in contemporary life.

The room shown today proves you can achieve a classic look with a mix of modern and traditional materials. A modern floor lamp sits next to a fine traditional sofa. Pieces of Oriental porcelain embellish the contemporary bookshelves and a classic pine sideboard. A highback wing chair doesn't seem incongruous atop the good-looking GAF Air Ease vinyl flooring.

And it's an easily put together room. No big deal made here about the variety of woods and the mix of upholstery fabrics. The windows use woven blinds and straight drapery panels instead of more ornate, traditional window dressing.

On the wall not shown is a bit of fakery that comes off very well — the owners have dared to use the "Brick" pattern flooring on the wall. They had some encouragement from Bill Marley, staff designer at GAF Corp. Bill encourages people to experiment and thinks even the pretend "natural" look fits into today's lifestyle.

BACK TO BASICS: Here's a room that gets back to simpler times. A classic look begins with the flooring, which is actually GAF's Air Ease cushioned vinyl flooring.

Investors send prices soaring at stock market

NEW YORK (UPI) — Investors brushed aside blue-chip profit takers to drive prices to their highest level in 27 months Wednesday, the third heaviest trading session in the 104-year history of the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which fluctuated much of the day, forged ahead 4.01 points to 976.02, the best level since its 904.80 close Oct. 29, 1973. The average has gained 124.21 points so far this year.

The turnover of 38,270,000 shares was up from the 34,000,000 traded Tuesday. The record was 38,508,470 shares last Friday, and the second most active day was Jan. 15, when 38,451,300 shares were traded.

THE RALLY WAS BROADER rather than steep. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 0.73 to 101.81, a 1975-76 high, and the average price of an NYSE common share increased by 28 cents. Advances routed declines, 1,148 to 446, among the 1,926 issues crossing the tape.

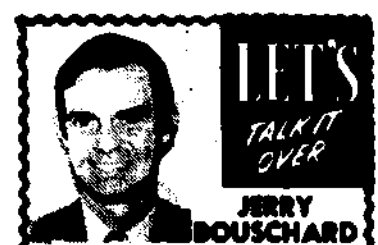

Natural gas and related stocks were pacesetters. In key action Tuesday, the House voted to take up a natural gas price decontrol bill, which many consider likely to pass. Coastal States Gas was the third most active Big Board issue, up 1-3/8 to 14-5/8 on 464,800 shares, including an opening block of 120,000 shares at 14 1/4.

Superior Oil, a 16-point gainer Tuesday, gained another 5 1/2 to 197. Superior has large natural gas reserves.

Observers said many institutional investors — and some of the public — were actively buying because they did not want to miss out on the new year rally that has taken prices sharply higher in the heaviest trading in NYSE history.

RAILS GENERALLY were stronger, sending the Dow Jones transportation average to a 1975-76 high of 201.94. Southern Pacific gained 1-3/8 to 33, Burlington Northern 1 1/4 to 37, Union Pacific 2 to 79 1/4 and Southern Railway 1 to 61 1/4.

Prices soared in the heaviest trading in more than two years on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased 14 cents. Volume totaled 5,360,000 shares, the heaviest since 6,345,900 were traded Dec. 13, 1973. Turnover Tuesday totaled 3,800,000 shares.

Selling your property yourself to save the sales commission is something you'll probably consider before listing with us. It may work out well but definite hazards exist and they're pretty expensive.

You might spend too much improving or remodeling your property without a Realtor to guide you on what pays and what doesn't. You can price your property too high or too low, either is bad! You might accept an insincere or invalid offer and then spend months as well as money trying to free the property so a clear title can be given. You get conflicting suggestions from friends, who probably have no real experience.

We've had lots of good experience and we can see you through to a successful sale at a price that pleases all concerned. Thinking of selling? Call me personally if you have any questions.

The time to buy a home in 1976 is now, some lenders are saying, or at least during the first six months of the year.

Some financial managers are looking at 1976 as a time of lowered interest rates and an excellent money supply to finance a new home.

"It's a very good time to buy," says Richard W. Wilde Jr., president of Glenview Guarantee Savings and Loan Association.

"Interest rates won't get much lower, and the costs of home building will definitely go up," he predicts.

A 9 per cent interest rate and 1 1/2 points for closing costs for a 25 year loan is common where the borrower puts down 20 per cent.

"If savings picks up we could see 8 1/2 on an 80 per cent loan; or a drop of one-quarter per cent," believes Richard E. Farrell of Home Federal Savings in Elgin.

Depending on the association and the terms of the loan, some are already making loans at 8 1/2 per cent, an informal survey of the Illinois Savings and Loan League reveals.

Few association managers are as confident, however, as one investment counselor who sees mortgage rates possibly sliding to 8 1/2 per cent by mid-summer. Dr. Irving Boberski says he is "looking for 8 1/2 per cent by summer — and staying there through the rest of the year." "And I don't see a fast pick-up in mortgage rates later," His advice counters other published estimates that rates could go to 10 per cent in some parts of the country during the year.

"With a situation of real estate investors — savings associations and others — having lots of money, the prospect of lowered rates is reinforced by the prospect for further moderation of inflationary pressures," Dr. Boberski says.

ONE CALL DOES IT ALL

Wise buyer gets promises in writing

Here's a situation we know, from experience, almost certainly means you are facing trouble. It's the situation where the seller or broker makes oral promises, but balks when you ask to have them put in writing.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: We have found the house we want. The price is right and the location is right. There are a few minor things, however, which are not right. Advise me how to handle these.

Two of the bedrooms show water stains on the ceiling. The owner assures me the roof has been repaired. There's a crack in the foundation that looks suspicious. The owner says it's been that way for over 25 years. The basement looks as if it floods occasionally. The owner tells me the water marks are due to his wife being too liberal with the garden hose.

When we were working up the agreement of sale, I insisted that the owner's promises and assurances be put in writing. Then everything stopped! Both the broker and owner became angry and accused me of "not trusting them."

I want the house. I'm beginning to think that the broker and owner had good reason to be angry with me because I cast aspersions on their honesty. Also, I'm beginning to accept the broker's statement that a "clean" agreement with no special conditions is the best kind.

I will sign if you tell me so.

WAS I HASTY?
Don't fall for the "clean" agreement gimmick. Many years ago, when I was a lad breaking into this field, my mentor told me that one of the best ways to still the objections of a buyer was to pull the "clean" agreement approach.

After more than 30 years of observation of real estate practice, I have come to the definite conclusion that honorable people have no objection to putting in writing all oral statements.

If what they say is true, they have nothing to fear. However, if their statements are false, then putting them in writing is dangerous.

Mr. Meltzer on real estate

by Bernard Meltzer

In real estate, the difference between verbal and written statements is important because of the statute of frauds. This legislation states, in effect, that if it isn't backed up in writing, the oral statement has no validity.

The violent objections of both the owner and broker indicate to me that your suspicions are probably well grounded. If you cannot live with these probable deficiencies, don't buy! If you can, then sign.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: A public housing project was built across the street from my house. To get away from the nuisance, I sold the house in a hurry and lost $6,000. One of the main reasons I sold at a loss, is that the salesman told me I could claim this loss as an income tax deduction. Now friends tell me I can't.

CAN I OR CAN I NOT?

You can't. Uncle Sam will not participate in your loss. It's all yours. The reason is that your home is classified as a personal asset, rather than an investment property.

Uncle Sam is unfair the way he treats capital losses for homeowners. If the opposite were true, and you had sold the house for a profit he would have been there with his hand out, demanding a substantial portion of your capital gain. And you would have had to pay it!

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I have four young children who have a special talent. They have developed the ability to bring in mud from all over the neighborhood and deposit it on my nice, upholstered furniture.

The palm of my hand aches from constant spanking. Since that doesn't work, maybe you had better tell me a way of getting rid of the mud stains.

ARE ALL CHILDREN MESSY?

Mud on upholstered furniture is something that has been harassing mothers for generations. Here's the best way to handle it.

Most situations can be adequately taken care of by letting the mud dry and then thoroughly brushing. Certain clays, however, will still leave a noticeable stain. In these cases, sponge with alcohol. If the fabric is washable, soap and water can be used.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: My wedding gift from my parents was three beautiful rugs that have been in the family for generations. That was five years ago.

Now, all three rugs are curled up at the corners and ends. It's unsightly, but even worse, it's dangerous. How do you get old rugs to lay flat?

SLIP AND SLIDE

A new rug lays flat because it is usually sized. However, with age, wear and cleaning, the sizing slowly disappears. This is when the corners and ends begin to curl.

To resize the rug, stretch it upside down on the floor and tack down the corners and ends. Then spray the back with a solution consisting of one-half pound of blue chips in two quarts of water. Or, you can brush in a thin coat of white shellac.

Allow the rug to dry thoroughly while it is still tacked down. This takes about 48 hours. After this treatment, you will find that your rugs lay flat once more.

Hoffman Enterprises established

Hoffman Rosner Corp. announced the establishment of a new subsidiary, Hoffman Enterprises, which will consolidate three other subsidiaries — Du-Co Construction Co., Tri-Co Builder's Supply Co. and North States Construction Co. Jack Hoffman, chairman and president, made the announcement.

William E. Griffin Sr. is the new president of Hoffman Enterprises and continues as executive vice president of the parent company in Hoffman Estates.

Hoffman Rosner Corp. is a publicly held diversified construction and development company. Its principal activity is homebuilding through its Hoffman Homes subsidiary.

"Each of our non-building subsidiaries is an important source of sales and earnings to us," Hoffman said. "They will each continue as separate organizations from an operating standpoint. However, marketing and administration will be centralized in Hoffman Enterprises."

THROUGH THIS move, the company expects to strengthen its relations with architects, developers, builders, and municipalities who form the market for the non-homebuilding services.

Du-Co Construction Co. does engineering and basic land improvement work, including construction of utilities and other municipal improvements. The company is headed by Hubert Boje as president.

Tri-Co Builder's Supply Co. supplies millwork and manufactures building components, such as roof trusses and wall and floor panels, for builders. The company operates a 68,000 square foot plant in Naperville. Herbert Tison is president.

North States Construction Co. is a general contractor which performs a wide range of general building work for others as well as for Hoffman Rosner. Robert Wahlberg is president.

"Through Hoffman Enterprises, we will be able to offer customers a wide range of building services, from improving the land to building almost any kind of finished structures, from homes to shopping centers," Hoffman said.

Headquarters of Hoffman Enterprises will be at 1076 Roselle Road, Hoffman.

Arlington Barber Shop facelift completed recently by new owners

Remodeling work recently was completed at the Arlington Barber Shop, 11 E. Campbell St., Arlington Heights.

Paul Grundman said he and co-owner Larry Gruber bought the business in October 1975. The shop previously known as Neuman's Barber Shop, has been in operation 40 years.

Long and short hair styles, regular cuts, razor cuts, hair coloring and custom hair pieces are specialties, Grundman said. Gruber and Grundman also own the Northpoint Barber Shop, 308 E. Rand Road, Arlington Heights.

Big Macs new part of British diet

by THOMAS CHEATHAM
LONDON (UPI) — It had to happen. The golden arches of McDonald's hamburgers are about to sprout in the shadow of Buckingham Palace.
Big Mac will go on sale in March on the Haymarket, one of the city's most famous boulevards, at the center of a triangle bounded by the palace, Piccadilly Circus and Trafalgar Square.
But it will not be advertised out front as a hamburger. No, the Queen's agents have decided the word "hamburger" in lights would, as they put it, "lower the tone" of the neighborhood.
"It was not worth arguing with them," said Bob Rhea, head of McDonald's in Britain. "They will eventually come to recognize that we are a reputable organization and that the word 'hamburger' is nothing to be ashamed of."
RHEA CAME OVER from Cleveland and got Big Mac going in the suburbs two years ago.
He knows by now that the British know a good McDonald's burger when they sink their teeth into one, despite early market research indicating Big Mac might flop here in the land of tradition.

First, according to the research, the average Briton eats everything, including sandwiches and pizzas, with a knife and fork. Fast finger food would be anathema, especially on paper plates and in paper cups that he himself would have to throw away.
Second, there was "preconditioning." Most McDonald's burgers come with the pickle and secret sauce already on. The British were said to be defenders of the right to administer their own salt, pepper, mustard or ketchup.
Rhea came into this new frontier with guns blazing. He put commercials on television and ran full-page newspaper ads proclaiming McDonald's as "the United Tastes of America."
HE BOUGHT HIS MEAT locally, but brought the cheddar cheese from Germany, the potatoes from Canada, the apple pies from Oklahoma and the hamburger sauce from New York.
It worked, but not without a few hitches.

In-depth solar energy tests slated by HUD for spring

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first extensive testing of solar energy to heat and cool homes will begin this spring, Housing Secretary Carla Hills said.

The testing will give the government, the housing industry and the public a broad look at practical applications of solar energy for heating and cooling homes in varying weather conditions.

Mrs. Hills said success in the experiments would "increase public interest in solar-equipped homes and thus encourage builders to construct more of them."

SOLAR ENERGY originates from the sun and would last as long as life itself compared with diminishing fuels such as oil and coal, which are pumped or mined from the earth.

Solar energy would also reduce U.S. dependence on high-priced imported oil, which contributed to the recession in 1974-75 by spurring inflation and cutting consumer buying power.

Mrs. Hills said experiments will be made in 143 homes, apartments and condominiums in 27 states. The experiments will be conducted in varying environments, including arid New Mexico, humid Georgia, mountainous Colorado and temperate Pennsylvania.

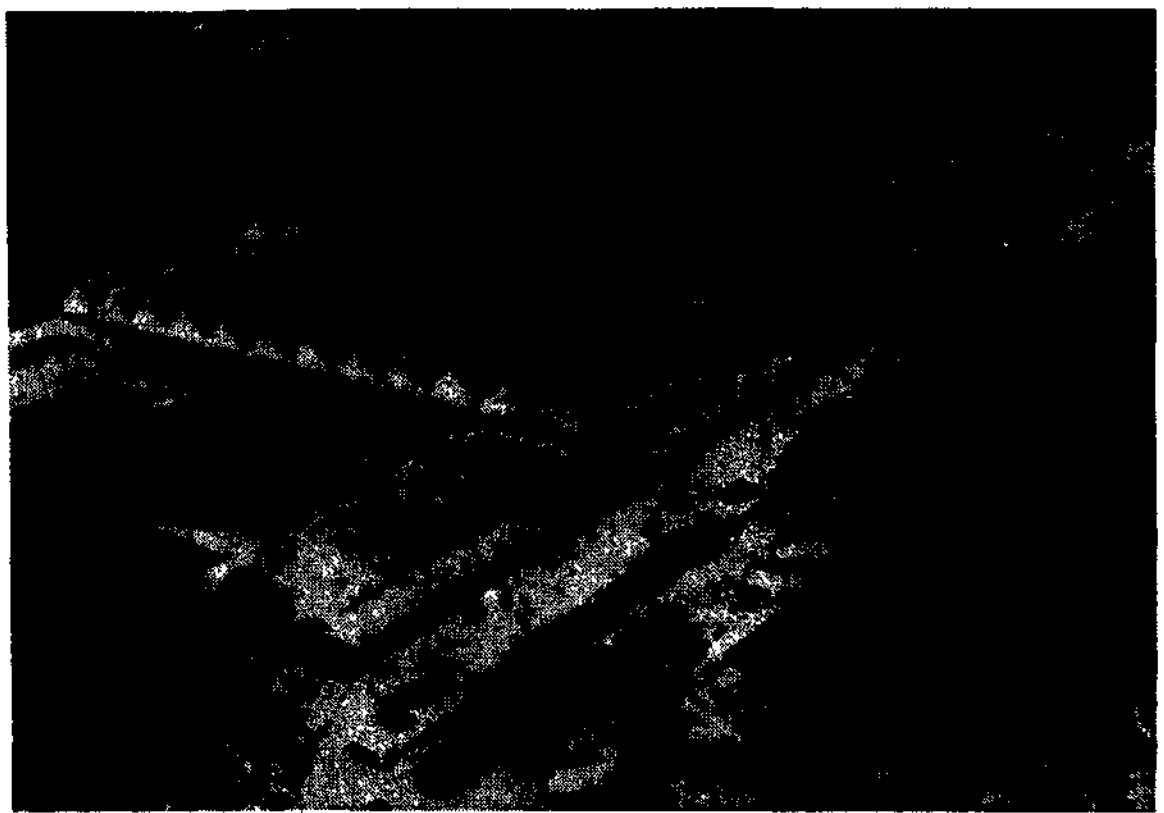

By testing solar energy for cooling and heating under a wide-range of conditions from extreme heat to extreme cold, HUD expects to get valuable information that could possibly lead to broader use of solar energy.

MRS. HILLS said the first grants totaling $1 million went to 55 construction companies, eight local governments and three universities. Grants ranged from $4,000 to $75,000. Work on the experiments must begin within 90 days.

Grants for further experiments will be made this summer and fall, Mrs. Hills said.

Local governments receiving grants were Rio Piedras, P.R.; Newark, N.J.; St. Petersburg, Fla.; Okmulgee, Okla.; Browning, Mont.; Pueblo and Colorado Springs, Colo., and Santa Clara, Calif. Grants also went to Drexel University, the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Wisconsin.

The experiments will be made in both new and existing homes and apartments.

EXTENSIVE TESTING of solar energy to heat and cool homes will begin this spring, the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development said. Earlier installations include this school in Atlanta, Ga.

Manage clothing cash to find fashions at remarkable savings

Clothing, although one of living's three necessities, costs families widely varying dollar amounts. By managing your clothing dollars, you get more style, variety and wear than by using hit-or-miss methods.

How, where, what and when to buy clothing is the subject of this column. Clothing care affects how much wear you get from your clothing. Next week's column develops that aspect.

Similar high-style fashions for women or rugged outdoor wear for children and adults sell at almost scandalously different prices. Try one or all three of these approaches to get more for your money when shopping:

Buying used clothing was once considered the lot of the poor, but no longer. High-fashion, previously worn women's clothing can be bought for a fraction of its once-new price at two levels — resale and thrift shops.

Better quality dresses, evening wear, coats and similar goods are sold at resale shops on consignment. That is, the owners bring in, for resale, items no longer wanted, with the expectation of collecting part of the sale price. One woman I know buys fashionable wear from the one resale shop and resells it on consignment at another store after wearing the pieces a number of times.

Thrift shops sell clothing that has been donated to a charity. Here, clothing quality varies widely — less stylish and worn adult clothing — better quality children's dress-up wear.

The reasons are obvious. Since the donor gains only an income tax deduction for the value of the clothing, they hang onto their suits, dresses and other goods longer. But children outgrow their dress-up wear. So practically new dresses, jackets and slacks end up on plain pipe racks.

Thrift shop prices tend to be lower than resale shop prices because of quality differences and the volunteer labor contributed by organization members. Once- or twice-a-year rummage sales attract a mixture of clothing — considerable junk, but many good bargains if you recognize quality.

New clothes at a discount are available three different ways:

• Seconds and irregulars of jackets, slacks and limited outdoor clothing are sold at factory outlets in many cities. During manufacture small flaws may prevent a jacket, for example, from being sold as a first class article. Rather than scrap the jacket the manufacturer sells it through an outlet, often in a basement.

Or, the manufacturer may offer seconds and irregulars at once- or twice-a-year warehouse sale. Retail stores frequently feature seconds and irregulars on sale. Flaws in garments are usually so insignificant they can scarcely be seen and seldom affect wear.

• Sample shops sell brand new, first quality clothing at a quarter to a third off normal retail prices. However, since the goods are samples, only medium or averagesizes are available. If you can wear the sizes a sample shop stocks, you can pick up the latest styles at discount prices.

• Low-overhead stores sell first-quality goods at discounts, and they stock a full range of sizes. But, you have to find them. They warehouse shopping area.

may be located on the upper floors of a downtown building or in a With few familiar labels, you may be able to recognize quality differences on your own — handling of seams, styling and fabrics. Among the upstairs shops are outlets for Hong Kong tailors.

Off-season shopping calls for long-range planning and offers one of the best ways to conserve cash allocated for clothing. Practically everything a family needs will be offered at sale prices sometime during the year. Retail stores and catalog shops regularly reduce prices 20 to 40 per cent.

Shop for next season's clothing immediately after the peak of a current season. That is, you buy summer clothing at sales in July and August; winter clothing in January and February.

First Federal reports gains in '75

First Federal Savings of Chicago announced increases in assets, savings, mortgage lending, reserves, and earnings for 1975.

The association's assets climbed to $1.67 billion, an increase of $315 million over 1974. Savings balances grew by $287 million to $1.28 billion, and mortgage loan balances increased by $282 million, bringing that total to $1.43 billion for 1975.

Reserves rose $19.5 million in 1975 for a total of $71 million. Interest paid to savers was the highest in the association's history, $73.5 million, a gain of $12 million over 1974.

FIRST FEDERAL'S CORPORATE earnings (net after-tax income) also made a healthy gain from $1.8 million in 1974 to $3.17 million in 1975, said E. Stanley Enlund, chairman.

"Consumers were saving more in spite of inflation, and the savings account came into its own again as the most basic form of consumer investment. The increase in First Federal's corporate earnings for 1975 was particularly heartening," Enlund said, "in light of heavy start-up costs for our branch network and the rather severe earnings squeeze at the beginning of the year caused by disintermediation."

First Federal plans to open a new office in Northbrook and complete an approved merger with Interstate Savings at 1616 W. Pershing Rd., by mid-1976. The association also has approval from the Federal Home Loan Bank for a branch in Schaumburg near Woodfield Mall.

Two new buildings are under construction to replace temporary quarters for the association in Niles and Mount Prospect. First Federal of Chicago is Illinois' largest savings and loan.

Storage problems solved

Kitchen design features efficient workable layout

They're not making kitchens like they used to, as any homemaker who has tried to store things in crowded cabinets knows. In an effort to solve common kitchen problems, Family Circle Magazine, in cooperation with Hotpoint, got together with readers and designers to plan and build a workable, efficient kitchen. The result, a "Kitchen of Storage Ideas," is featured in the magazine's February issue.

The readers polled are wives of the nation's leading builders, all members of the National Association of Home Builders Women's Auxiliary. Besides storage space the ladies asked for "up-to-the-minute appliances; no-wax, cushion vinyl flooring; good lighting; and a bright, cheerful color scheme."

The designer's solutions to common space problems are adaptable to any kitchen. Even the space behind closed top drawers is used. As most kitchen drawers do not extend the full depth of the counter top this dead space behind the top drawer is great for a knife rack. Knife blades are inserted in slots in the counter top, keeping them safely out of reach of small children.

A triangular shelf takes advantage of an unused corner and provides storage for canisters and small appliances. The space below is partitioned into food wrap bins to store boxes of varied lengths neatly and conveniently.

A set-back sit-down sink was achieved by cutting the front panel of a standard sink horizontally and recessing the lower section to allow air to circulate. Holes drilled on the side of the drawer unit allow ventilation for vegetable storage. What were false drawer panels directly under the sink are now handy tilt-out storage compartments.

The center-island houses the oven and features a ceramic warming surface that doubles for cutting and lifts out for portability. Pots and utensils are hung on S-hooks from picture frame molding along the hood above the island. The hood is plywood, finished on the exterior with brushed steel aluminum.

To give maximum cooking options the "second" oven is a microwave, placed on a special shelf above the counter. Beneath it, a sliding-door cabinet stores cleansers and detergents.

The new kitchen cabinets featured in the article come "ready-to-finish." Family Circle applied a clear lacquer to preserve the natural wood look for a country feeling, but other finishes are possible. "Handewn" ceiling beams are lightweight, glue-in-place urethane, "pickled" by brushing on watered-down latex paint (three parts water, one part paint), then wiping off with a cloth.

THIS KITCHEN was designed in an effort to solve common kitchen problems. Many of these ideas featured in the February Family Circle, are adaptable to any kitchen.

Baird closes '75 with best December sales record ever

Baird & Warner, Inc., climaxed its best sales year in history fittingly with its best December ever, signaling what officials believe will continue to be a vigorous market for real estate sales.

December production of 264 sales participations and $17,020,170 volume was the largest for the month of December since the diversified real estate organization came into existence in 1955.

For the year, including sales from other divisions, the company posted 4,540 sales participations and a volume of $283,880,230. Earlier records were 4,123 sales (1972) and $243,433,000 (1974).

"Results for December are almost as significant as the fact that we established new annual records in a year when economic uncertainty and under-confidence was supposed to have us all in the doghouse," commented Robert G. Walters, senior vice president and general manager of the residential sales division.

"Our company and many other leading real estate companies in Chicago and elsewhere have been going strong for many months, and December is just frosting on the cake," Walters continued.

"There is a myth that ours is a seasonal business and December is a complete loss. But despite at least one major snowstorm and the competition of Christmas shopping and the holidays we had our best December."

"This confirms our conviction that any time is a good time to try to sell or buy a home when favorable circumstances, like a strong supply of mortgage money, reasonable credit terms and fair prices make it possible for sellers and buyers to get together."

Walters suggested that the slump in new housing construction also aided the sale of existing homes in 1975.

Realtors to hear Valle Thursday; talk topic is trends in regulation

Marion J. Valle, Commissioner of Real Estate for the State of Illinois Department of Registration & Education, will address the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors at its regular monthly dinner meeting Thursday, Feb. 12, at 7 p.m. at the Casa Royale, 783 Lee St., Des Plaines.

Valle has been with the Department of Registration & Education for the past two years. He was appointed assistant commissioner Feb. 1, 1974, acting commissioner Feb. 1, 1975 and commissioner Dec. 19, 1975. He received his bachelor's degree from Bradley University in Peoria, owned and operated a business consulting firm for about three years and was an active real estate broker with the Chicago area for about five years prior to his association with the department.

Subject of Valle's talk before the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors will be, "Trends in Real Estate Regulation." He will discuss the implementation of the new escrow rule (Real estate escrow accounts audits); consumerism policies — both national and local; the chance from "buyer beware" to "seller beware" and give a brief investigation report, followed by a question and answer period.

At Versailles-on-the-Lake

Apartments provide renter options

Many housing experts have predicted high interest rates and rising building expenses will keep apartment construction to a minimum this year, forcing renters into a squeeze. Yet there is a happy alternative for those who may not want to purchase a single-family house or condominium; whether they are singles, young marrieds or older couples with grown children.

That alternative is the Versailles-On-The-Lake apartment complex at Golf and Plum Grove Roads in Schaumburg. Studio, one-two and two-bedroom plus den units rent from $200 per month.

All of the apartments are air-conditioned and rental includes appliances, wall-to-wall carpeting and underground parking.

Each building at Versailles-On-The-Lake is specially suited to the needs of the occupant; people with common interests are grouped in the same building. This puts singles with singles and couples with growing families with others of a similar life-style.

The developer, Donald J. Scholz &

Co., has provided residents with the Versailles Club, overlooking a private lake. The recreational complex offers heated pool, sunbaths, exercise and sauna rooms, lounge and club rooms and private dining room and bar.

The lake in the center of the development provides renters with ice skating during these winter months. In warmer weather, residents can sail or fish; play tennis or tour the Par 3 golf course.

Versailles-On-The-Lake is aptly named; the complex is patterned after the elegant traditional gardens and architecture of the famous palace of Versailles, near Paris. Focal point of the entire complex is the 50-foot-high Fountain of Versailles.

The luxury apartments are located at Golf Road (Route 58) and North Plum Grove Road in Schaumburg, west of Route 53 and the Woodfield Mall Shopping Center. Or call 882-5338.

Three-story buildings at Versailles-On-The-Lake in Schaumburg are framed by this island gazebo.

Cragin Federal Savings assets reach record $211 million in '75

Cragin Federal Savings' assets for 1975 reached $211,248,077.95, topping the year-end 1974 figure by nearly $27.9 million or more than 15 per cent. Of this, $174 million represents the savings of over 50,000 customers. Record interest payments of almost $9 million were distributed to these savers in 1975.

There are two Cragin locations in Schaumburg, at 1465 W. Schaumburg Rd. and 800 E. Higgins Rd.

OLYMPIC 1976 downhill champion Christl Haas lights the second of the twin flames to open the 12th Winter Olympics Wednesday in the Berg Isel ski jump arena in Innsbruck.

ALPINE SKIER Cindy Nelson, 20, of Lutsen, Minn., carries the U.S. Olympic team into the arena during opening ceremonies. Thirty-seven nations are taking part.

Winter Olympics open; first medals today

INNSBRUCK (UPI) Before a swelling crowd of 60,000 people, hundreds of whom had climbed the side of a mountain to enter the stadium, the 12th Winter Olympics opened Wednesday afternoon with a simple disciplined ceremony.

Affected perhaps by the tragedy that occurred in nearby Munich four years ago when 11 Israelis were massacred, the opening program was marked by less pomp and pageantry than is usually associated with such events.

Instead, there was a dignified air to the proceedings, and except for a two-minute interruption because of microphone failure, the 90-minute program went along on schedule.

Not the least dismayed by the tight security checks, overcrowded passageways and hazy skies that clouded the stunning scenery of the Tyrolean Alps, the crowd was in a festive mood and only minor incidents were reported by the police.

The huge delegation from the United States, the biggest here with 120 athletes, entered the Berg Isel Jumping Stadium next-to-last among the 36 countries and was greeted by an ovation equalling that given to the host country Austria and neighboring West Germany.

Carrying the standard for the U.S. was skier Cindy Nelson of Lutsen, Minn. A pretty blonde girl with long hair, she raised the Stars and Stripes high as she paraded past the gathered dignitaries, upholding an American tradition of not dipping the flag.

The Americans were brightly clothed in red-hooded pea jackets, white knit hats and scarves and blue pants.

Although there were many security guards and police on duty, virtually everyone was allowed easy access to the stadium. There were cursory checks of baggage done at random at various points, but otherwise the guards made themselves unobtrusive.

A far bigger problem was created by the horde of people trying to jam into the stadium, which is the site of the 90-meter jump and is located 600 feet above the city and overlooking the cemetery.

A full hour before the start of the ceremonies the main entrance was so jammed that a number of people chose to crawl on hands and knees on trails and clearings up the side of the icy mountain. One woman, wearing a leopard skin coat, climbed a barbed wire fence and then slid some 50 feet on her backside down into the stadium area. There were also many women wearing mink coats who had to bump elbows with their neighbors for an advantageous standing room spot. Standing room cost $14, half the price of a seat.

Police reported 50 arrests for minor incidents at the scene of the stadium, and away from it a 52-year-old man named Robert Drechsler was arrested when it was alleged he planned to fly over the site to drop 10,000 leaflets demanding independence for the South Tyrol region annexed by Italy after World War II.

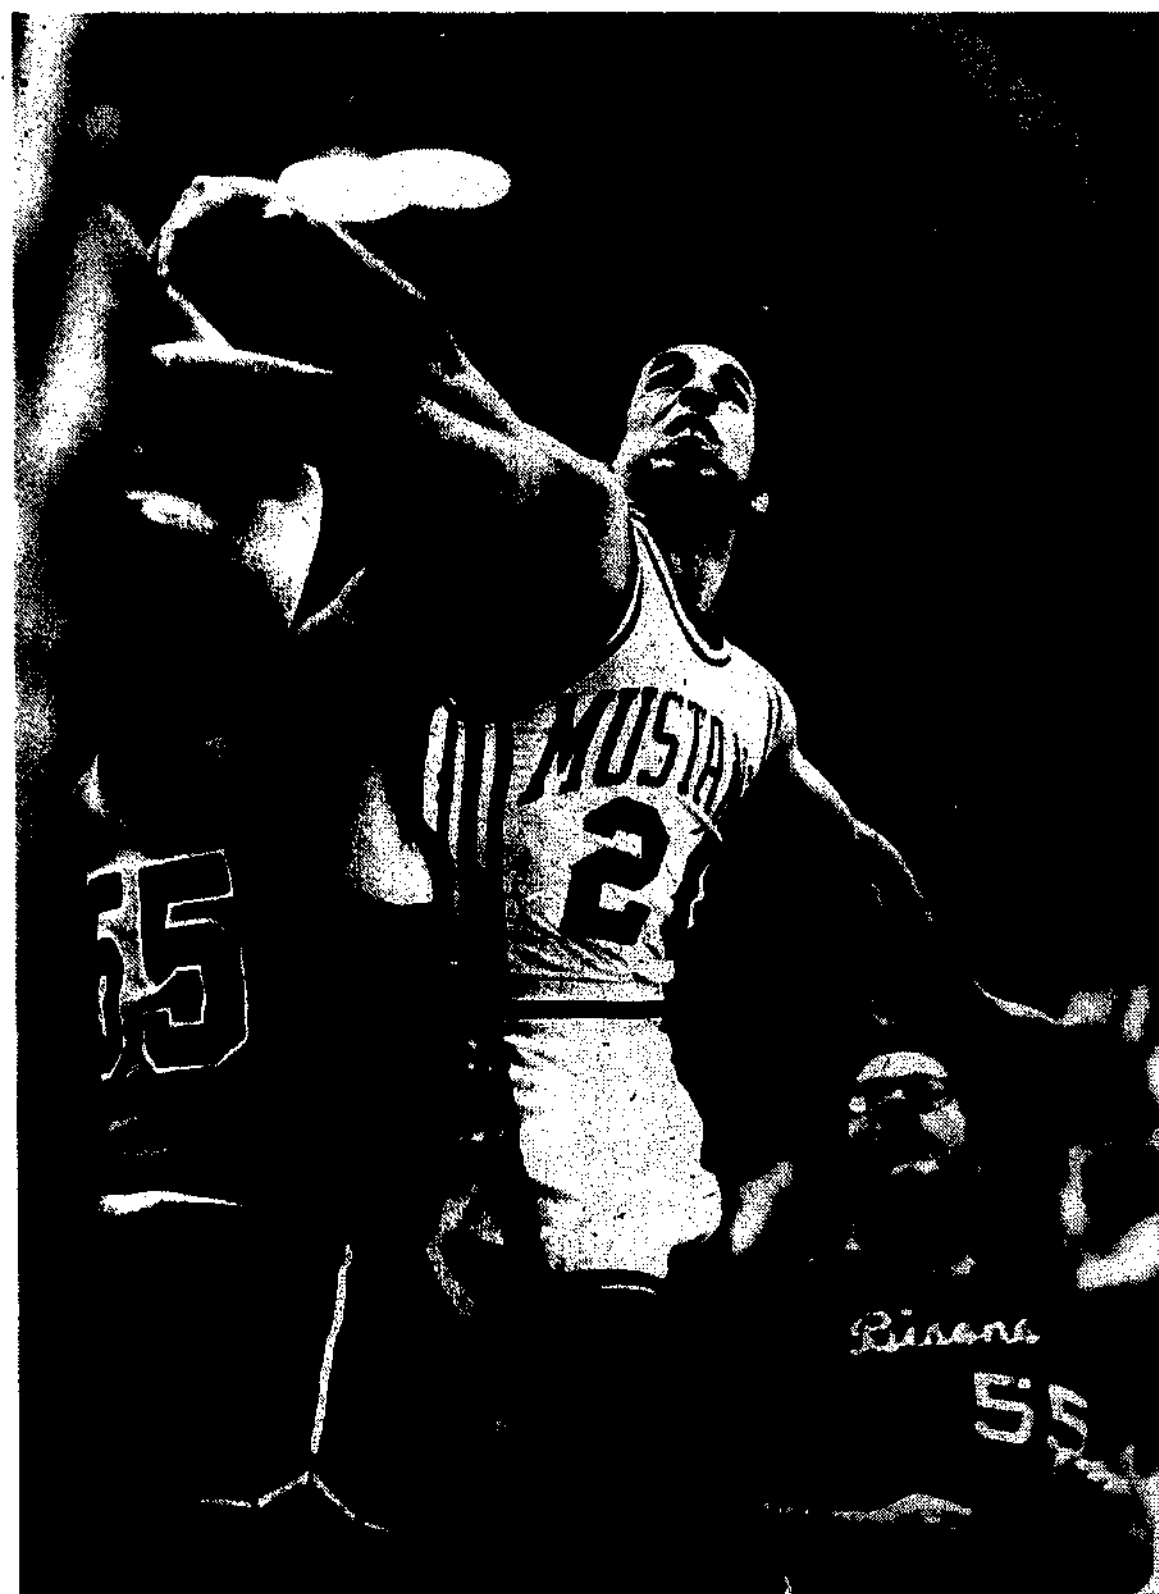

Along with the parade of athletes in their brightly colored outfits, the highlights of the opening ceremonies were the official declaration opening the games by Dr. Rudolf Kirchschlaeger, the Austrian Federal president, and the lighting of the twin Olympic bowls by Josef Feistmantl, and Christl Haas, who won gold medals for Austria in 1964 when the Winter Olympics last were held here.

With the end of the ceremonies, the 12 days of competition began with the first runs in the four-heat luge singles for men and women, and the compulsory figures in ice dancing, one of two new events introduced to the program this year.

In the luge, the best the American team could hope for was to avoid last place. In the dancing, Colleen O'Connor and Jim Millins, second in last year's world championships at the Broadmoor World Arena, their home rink at Colorado Springs, Colo., hoped to split the two powerful Russian teams.

The first medals will be awarded Thursday in the men's downhill, the glamor event of Alpine skiing in which Austria's Franz Klammer is favored; the men's 30-kilometer (18.6-mile) event which could provide America with its first ever medal in Olympic cross country skiing through Bill Koch of Guilford, Vt., and the women's 1,500 meter speed skating in which the U.S. fields highly touted Sheila Young of Detroit and Leah Poulos of Northbrook, Ill.

Elk Grove, Meadows meet in Mid-Suburban gym duel

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Gymnastics Editor

Connoisseurs of fine gymnastics meets, those people with a taste for flair and daring, will have their buds tweaked tonight with an interesting menu of Mid-Suburban League contests.

The tastiest battle may be in the Elk Grove gym where the Grens will host the Rolling Meadows Mustangs in a South Division showdown.

Hersey will begin the stretch run to the conference meet Feb. 14 with a match at Buffalo Grove and Arlington will travel to Wheeling in a meet that will feature two of the best still rings performers in the league.

Other meets tonight will include Hoffman Estates at Prospect, Forest View at Conant, Fremd at Palatine and Schaumburg hosting DeKalb in non-conference tilt.

All meets begin at approximately 8:00 p.m.

Rolling Meadows has been waiting for their shot at the Grenadiers for a long time and head coach Vic Avigliano is confident his team is ready.

Honor roll

MID-SUBURBAN LEAGUE HONOR ROLL

"We've been doing a beautiful job in practice," the Mustangs' mentor said. "All we have to do is hit in the meets."

Meadows has not been missing by much this year, consistently tying with the 140 level. They scored 137.54 against Forest View last week, despite attempting several unfamiliar routines, and stayed close to defending state champion Hinsdale Central.

"We were too keyed up for the Hinsdale meet," Avigliano said. "We tried too hard. We're going back to the basic routines for the Elk Grove meet so the kids will feel comfortable doing routines they're used to."

Keith Liszewski (high bar, 8.4), Glenn Johnson (trampoline, 7.8), Dave Bycroft (rings, 8.25) and Guy Owsiany (P-Bars, 7.55) all made the conference Honor Roll this week.

Elk Grove gymnasts took five of the seven top Honor Roll spots last week as Gene Christensen took firsts on free ex (8.45), P-Bars (8.3) and all-around (8.18).

Side horse ace Tim Connelly mastered his routine for an 8.85, the best in the league by .60 of a point and Tom Balla nudged Christensen for the top high bar mark with an 8.75 judging.

Hersey's Huskies will be in a unique situation when the conference meet arrives in less than two weeks.

The Huskies will be both host and defending champion for that extravaganza. Tonight they will get a look at the future when they take on streaking Buffalo Grove in the Bison's gym.

"We've been trying to peak," said Hersey head coach Don Von Ebers, "but we're running into sickness and

North wins Keefe game

Palatine High School coaches combined for 39 points Wednesday night to lead the North Division to a 94-84 victory over the South in the Coach Dave Keefe Benefit Basketball Game at Prospect High School.

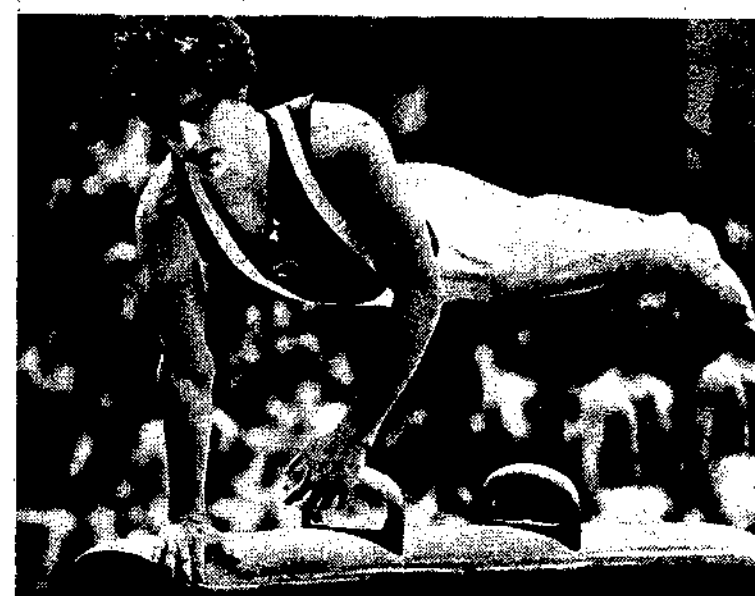

Tom Walz of Palatine paced the North, coached by Larry Tanaka, with 12 points. Don Crandall of Palatine, Mark Frase and Rick Roberts of Buffalo Grove had eight each.

Conant's Jerry Mikrut paced the South team, coached by Ron Ashley, with 12 points. Dennis Lynch of Rolling Meadows had 11.

Highlighting the game was a 35-foot two-handed rainbow set shot by Elk Grove's Don Schnake and the hook shot — that missed — of Darryl Phillips.

Habs bury Hawks, 8-3

Jacques Lemaire, returning after a one-month absence, Doug Risebrough and Guy Lapointe scored a pair of goals apiece Wednesday night to spark an 8-3 victory for the Montreal Canadiens over the Chicago Black Hawks.

In addition to Lemaire, the game also marked the return of Montreal goaltender Bunny Larocque who was making his first start since Dec. 3.

Lemaire, out of action because of a broken thumb, scored his 13th goal on a power play at 13:57 of the second period and his 14th at 5:51 of the third period.

Guy Lafleur scored his 34th goal of the season and Murray Wilson added the other goal for Montreal.

Larocque, who picked up an assist on Wilson's goal, turned aside 20 Chicago drives in getting a rare start when the Canadiens decided to rest Ken Dryden.

Black Hawks defenseman Keith Magnuson was taken off the ice on a stretcher in the second period after he was checked head-first into the boards by Montreal's Doug Jarvis. Magnuson was taken to the hospital and officials said the injury did not appear to be serious.

Judge backs Seitz ruling

A federal judge Wednesday upheld arbitrator Peter Seitz's ruling that made two baseball pitchers free agents, saying he lacked authority to review grievances submitted to arbitration panels.

Major league baseball owners filed suit, asking U.S. District Judge John W. Oliver to rule Seitz did not have authority to hear the cases of Andy Messersmith of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Dave McNally of the Montreal Expos and even if he did he overstepped his authority in making the two free agents.

"The Supreme Court has determined courts have no business overruling an arbitrator's decision," said Oliver. "The federal policy of settling labor disputes by arbitration would be undermined if courts had the final say on the merits of the awards."

He said owners and players who agreed to the use of an arbitrator to solve their problems, "did not bargain for the decision of this or any other court."

Seattle suit continues

Despite issuance of a new American League baseball franchise to Seattle businessman Lester Smith, a multi-million dollar suit over the loss of a team six years ago continued against the league Wednesday.

A condition attached to the league's expansion team granted to Smith for 1977 was the dropping of the suit. However both sides proceeded as if the trial would reach a conclusion.

Former Seattle Mayor J. D. (Dorm) Braman completed his testimony, saying decisions he made relative to city expenditures for refurbishing Sicks' Stadium were influenced by American League resolutions granting Seattle a franchise in 1967.

The loss of that franchise — the Seattle Pilots — in 1970 resulted in the suit.

Dantley's 41 keys Irish

Adrian Dantley scored 41 points and grabbed 17 rebounds Wednesday night to spark 12th-ranked Notre Dame to a 106-99 victory over LaSalle.

Dantley hit 14 of 21 field goals and 13 of 17 free throws to lead Notre Dame to its 13th victory in 17 games.

Notre Dame quickly moved out to an 8-0 lead, built up a 29-10 lead with 8:05 left in the half and coasted to victory.

Dantley had 24 points in the first half which ended with the Irish in front 52-34.

Charlie Wise led LaSalle with 26 points.

The Explorers are now 9-11.

US pair in third place

Colleen O'Connor and Jim Mills turned in a smooth performance Wednesday but it was not good enough to beat out two Russian pairs who shared the leading places after the compulsory program of the Olympic ice dancing event.

The Colorado Springs couple scored 23.0 ordinals and 59.56 points to trail favored Ljudmila Pakhomova and Alexander Gorshkov and the other Russian team of Irina Moiseeva and Andrei Minenkov. The leaders scored 11.0 ordinals and 61.40 points.

The American pair were not too upset at trailing the Russians and Mills said they had found the competition, a new Olympic event, less demanding than the U.S. nationals.

Skater denies pro pact

World figure skating champion Diane de Leeuw, a strong favorite to win the Olympic gold medal, called a special meeting Wednesday to emphatically deny that she has already signed a professional contract.

"There was an article in a newspaper that people misunderstood," said the California-born skater who'll appear for Holland at the Games. "It was talking about skaters who'll be coming up for next year's championship, that there was a girl in the wings to become the new champion because I had a pro contract in hand."

"This was misinterpreted by a Dutch official and it is totally not true."

Jones joins White Sox

Cleon Jones, 33, former New York Mets' outfielder, has agreed to report to the Chicago White Sox major league spring training camp at Sarasota, Fla., the club announced Wednesday.

Jones is a free agent, having been released by the Mets in 1975, and will be attempting a comeback with the Sox.

As a Mets' outfielder, he was one of the hitting standouts on their winning teams of 1969 and 1973, and in 1970 set a club consecutive hitting streak of 23 games. He also was the first Met to get 1,000 hits, and has a lifetime average of .281 in 10 seasons.

Bothered with a knee injury in 1974, he underwent surgery in October of that year, and was handicapped by slow recovery in 1975, when he played in only 21 games, batting .240 before his release.

Holmes case to grand jury

The Potter (Tex.) County grand jury met Wednesday without hearing evidence on the cocaine possession charge against Pittsburgh Steelers defensive tackle Ernie Holmes.

District Attorney Tom Curtis said the case was not presented to the grand jury, apparently because of the lack of time to prepare it, and would be taken to the grand jury at a later date.

Holmes was arrested last Saturday in the restroom of an Amarillo hotel. He was charged with possession of 250 milligrams of cocaine, a second degree felony in Texas.

Conviction on such a charge could bring a jail sentence of from two to 20 years and a maximum fine of $10,000.

injury. As long as our third and fourth kids keep improving we should be in good shape."

Danny Muenz and Bob Barst led the Huskies to a 138.73 score last week against Wheeling. Muenz cracked the Honor Roll in three categories and Barst threw the best trampoline set of the week with a 7.95 score.

Buffalo Grove, after breaking into the Honor Roll for the first time last week, is back with Mark Haisley taking second on P-Bars (7.95), Mark Farrington third on still rings (8.2) and Dewey Deal third on P-Bars (7.55) and all-around (7.24).

Arlington and Wheeling are so evenly matched, only 1.25 points separated them in their respective dual meets last week, that the outcome of the meet may rest with the still rings event.

That is only fitting because the teams boast two of the best in that event.

Wheeling's Dale Brangraber and Arlington's Tom Staley tied for the lead in the Honor Roll this week with 8.45.

The backups for these still ringers have pretty good credentials themselves. Wheeling's Jamie Wallace threw his best set of the year for an 8.05 last week and Kyle Chamblee of Arlington backed up Staley's effort with a 7.9.

Excitement is running high in the Prospect Knights' camp after Pat Kivland's team skied to 148.46 in a dual meet over the weekend.

The stunning show, nearly 20 points higher than Prospect has been averaging this year, did not surprise their head coach.

"The kids hit better than they have in their life," Kivland remarked. "They've all gotten better scores than they've been hitting most of this year and they really put it together this time out."

Dave Schelble, completing what Kivland said was "the best high school routine I've seen this year," was scored accordingly on the side horse with a 9.1.

Glen Wilke, with the help of a pike double dismount, showed the form he had as a state finalist last year on the still rings with an 8.85 score.

Jim Tangney fired an 8.8 on P-Bars, Bob Lopotko an 8.55 on rings and Doug Zahour was in the eights on free ex, high bar and trampoline.

"Zahour's high bar, Tangney's P-Bars and Lopotko's rings were the best routines they have ever done," Kivland exclaimed.

Buffalo Grove plans Little League sign-up

The Buffalo Grove Little League baseball program will kick off the 1976 season with two registration sessions Saturday, Feb. 7 and Feb. 14 at the Emmerich Park Fieldhouse from 3:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. both days.

The cost is $25 for one player and $40 per family. New players and seven and eight year olds must bring a birth certificate, and parents are required to sign a medical form. For more information call Nick Tufano at 537-7930.

Golf ball fastest

Chuang Tse-tung of China, the table-tennis champion of the world in 1965, could hit a ping-pong ball at an estimated speed of 60 mph. Gordie Howe has sent a hockey puck rocketing off his stick at 118.3 mph. Michael Sangster, of England, has hit a tennis ball as fast as 150 mph. When Sugar Robinson hit you, you were being hit by a 35 mph fist. But the fastest moving sports object is a golf ball driven by Lee Trevino, that moves at a chipper 170 mph.

Warrior runners win again

Junior distance runner Brian Tolan turned in a superb indoor double in the mile and the two-mile as the Maine West Warriors captured their second straight track meet of the year, 108-28 over Hinsdale Central at the Maine South High School fieldhouse Monday.

Tolan clocked a 4:33 mile and a 9:40 two-mile but had to settle for second in both events as Hinsdale's John Herbert flashed mid-season form. Herbert ran the mile in 4:28 and the two-mile in 9:36.

Maine West got first-place efforts from Joe Parsons in the long jump (20-1½), John Whipple in the 50-yard high (1:06.3), Jeff Brydges in the 800 (2:01), Don Murray in the quarter-mile (1:54.0), and Steve Myers in the high jump (6-0).

Jim Wieniecke of Maine West took a pair of firsts in the pole vault (12-0) and the low hurdles (1:06.3).

Other good times were recorded by Brydges in the 1000-yard run (3:26), Tony Krainik in the 300 (1:33.1), and Howie Bletz in the 600 (1:17).

Sting player to visit at Celtic Soccer signup

As a part of their continuing support of youth soccer, The Sting, Chicago's professional soccer team, will send a player to represent them at the annual Celtic Soccer Club signup on Saturday, Feb. 7, at Birchwood Park on Illinois Avenue in Palatine from 9:00 a.m. to noon. He will distribute literature about the team and the Sting Soccer Camps, and show a short film of the Sting in action.

The Celtic Club is estimating that more than 600 boys and girls will sign up to play on 28 boys' and 12 girls' teams. Boys born in the years 1962 through 1969 and girls born in 1959 through 1969 are eligible. The fee for the spring and fall season is $10 for residents of the Palatine Park District and $14 for non-residents.

The Club will provide team shirts, but the individual players are expected to supply their own white shorts, socks, and tennis or soccer shoes. No street shoes, metal cleats, belt buckles, watches or other jewelry may be worn on the field.

Practice times and locations will be set by the individual coaches.

The schedule for the early spring is as follows:

Monday, February 16: Annual Meeting, Birchwood Park at 8:00 P.m. to elect officers and discuss plans for the coming season.

Friday, March 12: Board Meeting in the North room at Community Park, 8:00 p.m.

Saturday, March 20: Coaches' meeting and clinic at 9:00 a.m. at Maple Park. The Club hopes that Mr. Bill Foulkes, coach of the Sting, will be available as instructor.

Friday, March 26: Referees' meeting and clinic at 8:00 p.m. at Community Park Recreation Building. Mr. Jim Rennie, instructor.

Saturday, March 27: Goal post training session at 10:00 a.m. at Community Park garage.

Saturday, April 3: Season begins.

Because the Celts are totally dependent on adult volunteers to staff the program, they are looking for men and women to act as coaches, referees, field crews, team parents, and various other committee jobs. There will be a separate table for volunteers at the sign up.

Palatine trackmen launch indoor campaign with win

Palatine's track team made a successful indoor debut Tuesday defeating Conant and Maine North in a triangular meet at Maine East's fieldhouse. The Pirates of second-year coach Jeff Teach totaled 74 points to edge Conant (68) and Maine North (36).

Palatine took first places in nine events, including five field events and the four-lap relay. Leading the way was versatile senior Rich Falbo, who won the triple jump (38-4) and the high hurdles (:06.8), and took third in the lows.

Falbo had just recovered from complications stemming from root-canal surgery and had only got in a couple of practices before the meet.

Other Pirate winners were Kirk

Morris in the long jump (18-0), Bill Pulak in the pole vault (12-0), Tom Digan in the high jump (5-10), Mike Kolker in the shot (41-6 1/4), Bill Finlay in the 50-yard dash (.05.6), and Tim Bellamy in the 440 (:54.5).

Conant got victories from sophomore Bill Baird in the 600-yard run (1:20.2), Jeff Krautwurst in the mile (4:39.1), and the mile relay team of Sam Assal, Brian Foss, Tony Stompanato, and Baird.

Pat Hagan of Conant won a two-mile duel with Palatine's Chuck Elliott as Hagan ran 9:59.8, edging the Palatine soph by just over a second.

Stompanato turned in an outstanding time in winning the 50-yard lows with an .06.2. Assal ran .06.3 and Falbo .06.4.

Camp Duncan swimmers take two titles in Mid-America feature

The Camp Duncan YMCA Swim Team captured the title of Mid-America Champions as they whipped top swimmers from Ohio, Iowa and Wisconsin in the first annual Mid-America Invitational.

Teams participating in the meet included an All-Star team from Toledo, Ohio; the state champions from Cedar Rapids, Iowa; the Midwest Area Champions from Waukesha, Wis., and the Camp Duncan "Y" Dolphins.

The Dolphins scored a double victory as both the girls' and boys' teams were able to capture the first place overall team trophies.

The girls, who swam at their home pool in Volo, also won first place age group trophies in the Cadet (8 & under), Midget (9 & 10), Junior (11 & 12) and Intermediate (13 & 14) while the Preps (15 & 16) took the second place trophy.

The boys, swimming at the St. Victor High School pool in Arlington Heights, won first place trophies in the Cadet, Prep, and Junior ages while they took the second place trophy in the Midget and Intermediate.

...mmm home baked!

Home bread baking is back and whole grain flour and cereals are reappearing in the marketplace. The soft, white loaf has had it. Baking of bread has become a weekend ritual in many homes and it is no longer a feminine pursuit. Since man is no longer the sole bread winner he apparently likes providing bread for the family table — the kind he's learned to make himself.

Making bread is a creative process that calls for involvement between cook and dough. No other food preparation task fulfills expectations to such an extent. The seasoned cook can tell by the feel and appearance of the dough what to do next. It yields, it performs, it responds and fulfills. It's rewarding, too, to see your bread disappear as it always does among discriminating diners.

Neophytes to bread baking are surprised to discover that bread making isn't the time consuming chore they thought it was. At first glance at a recipe the process appears to be three hours from start to finish, but actually it requires less than thirty minutes of attention. During the time required for rising and baking, most seasoned cooks will dovetail other cooking and housekeeping chores. A timer will signal when attention is needed.

Recent focus on the role of fiber in daily nutrition provides another solid reason for making bread at home. Commercially prepared specialty breads high in fiber, protein and other nutrients carry specialty prices which can be reduced fifty per cent by home baking. And dieters concerned with fiber intake have discovered that bread is one of the most palatable ways to increase it. Fiber ingredients which add bulk to the diet add interesting texture and flavor to bread when properly incorporated. Good sources of fiber are whole grain flours, bran cereals, dried fruits such as raisins, dates, figs and nuts. The following recipes for yeast breads contain an assortment of high fiber ingredients.

PECAN DATE BREAD

|---|--|
| $\frac{3}{4}$ cup milk                              | $3\frac{1}{2}$ cups unsifted whole wheat flour   |
| $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sugar                             | $3\frac{1}{4}$ cups unsifted white flour (about) |
| 1 tablespoon salt                                   | 1 cup chopped pitted dates                       |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup margarine                         | $\frac{3}{4}$ cup water                          |
| $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups warm water (105 to 115 degrees) | $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped pecans                 |
| 2 packages active dry yeast                         | $\frac{1}{4}$ cup firmly packed brown sugar      |
| 1 tablespoon grated lemon peel                      | 1 tablespoon lemon juice                         |

Scald milk; stir in sugar, salt and margarine. Cool to lukewarm. Measure warm water into large warm bowl. Sprinkle in yeast; stir until dissolved. Add lukewarm milk mixture, lemon peel and whole wheat flour. Beat until smooth. Stir in enough white flour to form a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board and knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Meanwhile, prepare filling. Combine dates, water, pecans, brown sugar and lemon juice in a saucepan. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly. Continue boiling until mixture is thick enough to spread, about 8 minutes. Cool.

Punch dough down and turn out onto a lightly floured board. Divide dough in half. Roll one half into a oblong 12 by 9 inches. Spread with half of the date filling. Cut in half forming two oblongs, 6 by 9 inches each. Roll each into a roll 9 inches long. Seal edges. Place side by side in a greased 9 by 5 by 3-inch loaf pan. Repeat with remaining dough and filling. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Bake at 400 degrees about 30 minutes, or until done. Remove from pans and cool on wire racks.

RUSSIAN BLACK BREAD

- |   |  |
|---|--|
| 4 cups unsifted rye flour               | $2\frac{1}{2}$ cups water                          |
| 3 cups unsifted white flour             | $\frac{1}{4}$ cup vinegar                          |
| 1 teaspoon sugar                        | $\frac{1}{4}$ cup dark molasses                    |
| 2 teaspoons salt                        | 1 square (1-ounce) unsweetened chocolate           |
| 2 cups whole bran cereal                | $\frac{1}{4}$ cup ( $\frac{1}{2}$ stick) margarine |
| 2 tablespoons caraway seed, crushed     | 1 teaspoon cornstarch                              |
| 2 teaspoons instant coffee              | $\frac{1}{2}$ cup cold water                       |
| 2 teaspoons onion powder                |  |
| 2 teaspoon fennel seed, crushed         |  |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ packages active dry yeast |  |

Combine rye and white flours, in a large bowl thoroughly mix  $2\frac{1}{3}$  cups flour mixture, sugar, salt, cereal, caraway seed, instant coffee, onion powder, fennel seed, and undissolved active dry yeast.

Combine  $2\frac{1}{2}$  cups water, vinegar, molasses, chocolate and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are very warm (120 to 130 degrees). Margarine and chocolate do not need to melt. Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add  $\frac{1}{2}$  cup flour mixture. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour mixture to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board. Cover; let rest 15 minutes (dough may be sticky). Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down, turn out onto lightly floured board. Divide in half. Shape each half into a ball about 5 inches in diameter. Place each ball in the center of a greased 8-inch round cake pan. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Bake at 350 degrees 45 to 50 minutes, or until done. Meanwhile combine cornstarch and cold water. Cook over medium heat stirring constantly until mixture starts to boil; continue to cook, stirring constantly, 1 minute. As soon as bread is baked brush cornstarch mixture over top of loaves. Return bread to oven and bake 2 to 3 minutes longer, or until glaze is set. Remove from pans and cool on wire racks.

Makes 2 round loaves.

CRACKED WHEAT LONG JOHN'S

- |   |   |
|---|---|
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup milk                              | 2 packages active dry yeast                           |
| 3 tablespoons sugar                                 | $4\frac{3}{4}$ to 5 $\frac{1}{4}$ cups unsifted flour |
| 4 teaspoons salt                                    | Melted margarine                                      |
| 3 tablespoons margarine                             | Coarse salt   |
| 2 cups cracked wheat                                |   |
| $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups warm water (105 to 115 degrees) |   |

Scald milk, stir in sugar, 4 teaspoons salt and 3 tablespoons margarine. Add cracked wheat; cool to lukewarm.

Measure warm water into large warm bowl. Sprinkle in yeast; stir until dissolved. Add lukewarm mixture and 3 cups flour. Beat until smooth. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board and knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down. On lightly floured board divide dough in half. Form each half into a roll about 12 inches long. Place on greased baking sheets. Brush with melted margarine and sprinkle with coarse salt. Cover; let rise in warm place free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 50 minutes.

Bake at 400 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes, or until done. Remove from baking sheets and cool on wire racks.

Makes 2 loaves.

New soy product used in baking

Sandwiches made from a new bread laced with soy concentrate have as much protein in the slices as they do in their meat ingredients.

The protein-packed bread contains Xanthomonas campestris, a bacteria which grows on corn sugar and is made into a food gum called xanthan gum.

The gum is put into a dry mix to make bread and other bakery products. Biochemist Donald Christianson, Peoria, said, "Twenty two per cent of the total mix is protein, which is comparable to most lunch meats and wieners."

Researchers feel the bread has a big future. It can provide protein to vegetarians, such as the millions in India, and serve as a substitute for persons with bread gluten allergies.

Xanthan gum was discovered in 1968 at the Northern Regional Research Center of the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Peoria. In 1969 the federal Food and Drug Administration approved its use in foods.

Christianson said he and other researchers wanted to "produce some type of product that we can put fairly large amounts of vegetable protein in." The three major vegetable proteins are peanuts, soybeans and cottonseed.

He said bread was chosen because it usually is the staple in every meal. "This baked product could serve as a protein extender in the diet, so you could have meatless nights and still have enough protein in the diet to satisfy the requirements," he said.

The dry mix contains xanthan gum, starch, yeast, protein and salt for flavoring. "Then just add the water and mix it up like a cake," Christianson said, adding, "it tastes good."

"It has a texture like a pound cake right now, but we are trying to vary the textures at the present time," he said. Other ingredients such as dry eggs and sugar can be added to the mix to make cakes, doughnuts, pancakes and sweet rolls.

Xanthan gum is presently used as a thickener in salad dressings, bakery fillings, canned goods milk shakes, sauces, gravies, frozen foods, pourable dressings, syrups, puddings and dairy product spreads.

Christianson said the gum is advantageous to fast-food services because it causes some foods to rise in half the time.

Christianson said he hopes the gum will be on the market within a year. Patents are held by Kelco of San Diego, Calif., the main manufacturer who is building another plant in Okmulgee, Okla., and General Mills, which is opening a plant in Keokuk, Iowa.

Easy method exists to convert volumes

In the kitchen liquid and dry measures will be marked in milliliters (ml). They are 1000-milliliters in a liter and a liter is slightly larger than a quart. Utensils will read in "metric" spoons or cups or in ml.

Your non-metric recipes can easily be converted to metric if the amounts are stated in cups and spoons. One cup equals 16 tablespoons in each system. But remember, metric measures give slightly larger yields.

Cooking with metrics

When recipes are stated in weights, all amounts must be converted using metric tables. When converting these recipes, it is easier to adjust the amount of liquids than to alter dry ingredients.

This Bavarian style supper dish is stated in both metric and U.S. Standard measures.

BAVARIAN STYLE APPLES AND FRANKS

- 2 metric tablespoons (30 ml.) or 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 medium onion, cut in wedges
- 2 stalks celery, sliced
- 2 Golden Delicious apples
- 454 grams or 1 pound frankfurters
- ½ metric cup (125 ml.) or ¼ cup water,
- ¼ metric cup (60 ml. or 43 gms) or ¼ cup brown sugar
- ¼ metric cup (60 ml) or ¼ cup apple cider vinegar
- 1 metric teaspoon (5 ml.) or 1 teaspoon caraway seeds
- ¼ metric teaspoon (3% ml.) or ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 metric tablespoon (15 ml.) or 1 tablespoon cornstarch

Melt butter in skillet. Add onion and celery and saute 5 minutes. Core apples and cut into wedges. Slice frankfurters crosswise in half. Add apples and franks to skillet. Saute for another 5 minutes. Add half of water and brown the sugar, vinegar, caraway seeds and salt. Cover and simmer gently until apples and vegetables are tender. Dissolve cornstarch and remaining water. Stir into liquid in skillet. Cook until thickened and clear. Makes 4 servings.

How to cook for yourself

When cooking for only yourself — and perhaps one other person — don't slip into the habit of eating skimpy, monotonous meals. With planning and careful shopping, you can prepare a variety of appealing low-cost meals containing the nutrients your body needs every day.

Irene Downey, University of Illinois Extension food and nutrition specialist, has these suggestions for small-scale shopping, diet variety and leftovers reduction:

Buy only the food you can use within a reasonable length of time. The large package, even though you may get more for your money, is no bargain if the food becomes stale or spoiled before you can eat all of it. Likewise, pick the small size cans of fruits, vegetables and seafood. Single-serving cans may cost more per serving, but they do eliminate having to eat the same food several days in a row or to discard food unnecessarily.

THE LARGER packages of loose frozen vegetables, however, may be the best choice because you can pour out just what you'll eat for one meal, keeping the rest frozen.

Dry milk is inexpensive, requires little storage and can be used in cooking and for drinking. Ms. Downey said. If carrying groceries home is a problem, a package of dry milk is much easier to carry than cartons of fresh milk.

Dried fruits, vegetables, soups and mixes may be better choices for you than fresh ones. They are easy to use, you can prepare only the amount you want, and the remainder will keep until you need it.

TV dinners, individual meat pies and frozen entrees are simple-to-fix meals on days when you are not feeling well. This convenience purchased at the grocery store is less costly than hiring someone to prepare food in the home.

WHEN BUYING meats, remember this guide: one pound of poultry or meat with a lot of gristle or bone equals one to two servings; one pound of fish fillets or meat with some bone equals three servings; one pound of boneless meat equals four to five servings.

Buy the larger roast or whole chicken, then simply cut it into smaller pieces, Ms. Downey suggests. Use part, then freeze remainder in meal-size packages.

Prepare your own "meals in a freezer" by cooking enough food for four and freezing the extra portions to use later.

Use a variety of cooking methods to keep meals from getting monotonous. Cook the meat in a skillet or pot, in the oven or in the broiler.

If a dry mix makes six servings and you want just two, prepare only one-third of the package. To divide a mix, stir the mix and measure it, then divide into equal portions. Don't forget to reduce the ingredients you add to the mix proportionately. And finally, mark the package to show how many servings are left.

Plan ahead and use shortcuts, Ms. Downey concludes. For example, use part of a can of soup as a sauce. The remainder can be served as soup the next day.

Cereals reflect sugar-coated facts

THE SWEET TASTE of sugar-coated cereals is one most children don't mind cultivating. Cereal manufacturers say their products make up a complete meal. They also say pre-sweetened cereals are no different nutritionally than the plain ones. Some nutritionists call the cereals "candy."

Now back to our cereal promotion

by BARBARA LADD

Regardless of the power of television advertising on children's desires, it is up to the parents to control the type of food brought into the home, said Betty Wedman, a dietitian associated with the American Dietetic Association.

"Not enough parents control the eating of their children," she said. "They let advertisers control instead."

It's easy to see how that might happen. On a given Saturday morning candy bars dance across the screen extolling the benefits of "energy"; purple and green pirates become gentle and honest with pre-sweetened cereal in hand; and that all-familiar tiger, Tony, now eats breakfast fixed by his loving mother.

ABOUT NINE minutes of such advertising are allowed during each hour of children's programming — a 25 per cent reduction from 1972. Three advertisers, Kellogg and General Mills (cereal manufacturers) and a toy manufacturer, contribute about a third of the total advertising on children's television.

"I don't want to imply there are nutritionally poor ads," said Gary Costly, representing Kellogg Co. at recent nutrition seminar in Chicago. "But, of course, there are."

He said scientists at Kellogg screen each advertisement before it is aired to catch misleading statements, but he didn't know the policies of other companies.

The per capita consumption of sugar in the U.S. is around 100 pounds. Only one-third of that amount is pure sugar bought in the supermarket.

The U.S. Dept. of Agriculture reports 45 per cent is used in processed foods like canned and frozen fruits, baby foods, cereals, cakes, pies and others. About 23 pounds per person are consumed each year in the form of soft drinks.

"IF KIDS ask for pop, parents give in far too easily," said Mrs. Wedman. "Yet parents turn around and complain about high dental bills."

Some parents also complained several years ago about the advertising during children's programming. In 1972 the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) responded by holding hearings on the subject.

Though much time was spent in heated debate among parents, psychologists and TV producers, a couple suggestions came out that have merit and some support by the various industries.

One was to have a "clustered" advertising in which all commercials would be grouped at the end or beginning of a television program. It is a practice European countries follow and seems to also be finding its way into the Saturday morning children's shows. (It appears the stations are now interrupting the shows with commercials every 15 minutes instead of every seven or nine minutes.)

ANOTHER suggestion was to have "institutional" advertising. In this way, a favorable image would be promoted for the manufacturer instead of the predominantly hard sell product promotion done now.

Regardless of the style of advertising, Mrs. Wedman says it's the parent's responsibility to administer restraint concerning the types of foods their children eat.

"Eating habits start from home," she said. "And kids will always try to get whatever they can from the parent. It is the parent who makes the decision."

by BARBARA LADD

Pre-sweetened cereals reign at the top of the list of breakfast foods for many children. Ready-to-eat cereals are easy to fix, they are fairly filling and they taste good. Their popularity is evident, since about one-third of all cereals consumed in the U.S. are eaten by children, who make up only one-fifth of the population.

For years, though, the question has been banded: are pre-sweetened cereals nutritionally good?

Unfortunately, the answer isn't as simple as the question.

At a recent seminar sponsored by the Chicago Nutrition Association, experts debated the issue. Gary Costly, representing Kellogg Company, gallantly defended his company's products — including the sugar-laden Sugar Smacks and Sugar Frosted Flakes.

"PEOPLE HAVE to eat the product before it can make a nutritional contribution to the diet," he said. According to research available to Kellogg Co., he said cereals take an either/or place in the American diet.

Either cereals are eaten for breakfast or breakfast is not eaten at all, he said.

Betty Wedman, a registered dietitian associated with the American Dietetic Association, said she was unaware of any published data corroborating his statement.

"Ready-to-eat cereals provide 90 per cent of the nutrition of the meal they are eaten at," said Costly. This nutrient content is determined with milk taken into account, however, said Costly.

"ABOUT 22 PER CENT of all pre-sweetened cereal is eaten with milk," he said. "And on a weight per weight basis there is no difference in calories between pre-sweetened cereals and plain ones," he said.

But that's precisely the catch, said Mrs. Wedman.

"In general, pre-sweetened cereals are diluted in nutrients and the consumer is getting less nutrition for the dollar, but this is not readily identified in the label," she said.

A quick Herald survey of the labels confirms her statement. Per ounce, frosted corn flakes and plain corn flakes are nearly exactly equivalent in fortified nutrients. Also, the ca-calories per ounce are the same — 100 calories.

What cereal labels reveal

Therefore, it can be assumed that consumers of pre-sweetened cereals are getting the same nutrition and calories as consumers of plain cereals. Or can it?

A CLOSER LOOK shows that pre-sweetened cereals weigh more than plain cereals. For example, three-fourths of a cup of corn flakes (a usual serving) weighs about an ounce while the same quantity of the pre-sweetened kind weighs between 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 ounces. So the calorie content per serving size increases to 240 for the sugar coated flakes.

And Mrs. Wedman said that if the two cereals were evaluated per 100 calories instead of per ounce, consumers would see that nutrition is greater in the plain cereals than in the sugar-coated kind.

Part of the reason for the dilution of nutrients involves the quantity of sugar included in the pre-sweetened cereals — between 30 to 55 per cent of the contents of the box.

COSTLY SAID Sugar Frosted Flakes consists of 35 per cent sugar and Sugar Smacks contains 55 per cent.

Mrs. Wedman said her reading indicates only 20 of the 78 brands of cereals on the market contain less than 10 per cent sugar.

"Pre-sweetened cereals are like eating candy. I wouldn't recommend them for snacking because of the damage it could cause to teeth," she said.

Costly said he was not aware of any data which concluded pre-sweetened cereals were any worse for human teeth than regular cereals. Apparently he chose to ignore the deluge of dental research presented at the seminar substantiating a direct link of sugar to increased dental decay.

MRS. WEDMAN does not believe pre-sweetened cereals should be banned from the market, as many anti-sugar supporters do.

"These cereals are good from the standpoint that some people won't consume anything else," she said. "I see nothing wrong with eating pre-sweetened cereals for breakfast one, maybe two times a week."

Cereals are a convenience and they are a less expensive form of nutrition for breakfast than the bacon and egg alternative, she said.

The problem with the sugar-coated cereals, Mrs. Wedman said is one of "restraint."

"It is the parent who makes the decision what foods children should be allowed to eat. But unless we (nutritionists) want parents to listen to the manufacturers, it appears we have a lot of educating to do in this country so parents can make conscientious decisions," she said.

Area classes teach cooks

Several cooking classes, sponsored by MONACEP, will begin this month. One-evening sessions will be "Omelettes," scheduled for Monday, Feb. 9, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at Maine South High School, 1111 S. Dee Rd., Park Ridge, and "Crisp Baking," to be demonstrated Thursday, Feb. 12, at Maine East High School, Dempster and Potter, Park Ridge, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. The fee for each session is $7.

"Basic Gourmet Cooking," an eight-week demonstration class introducing such techniques as sauteing, poaching, au gratin and soup-making, will begin Tuesday, Feb. 10, at Maine East at 7:30 p.m. A second section will begin Monday, Feb. 16, at Maine South, also at 7:30 p.m. Tuition for each course is $40. ## Seasonings enhance meat pies

If you've been caught up in the cook-it-yourself - the - natural - way revival, then maybe you've already discovered what satisfying good eating homemade pot pies can be.

If not, here are three very special recipes for meat pies developed at Best Foods. Each is seasoned to complement the featured meat and vegetable and all sauces are thickened with natural corn starch. Two different thickening techniques are used. In one recipe, the sauce is made by the regular white sauce method. In the other, the corn starch and water are stirred together, then other ingredients added.

CHICKEN OR TURKEY POT PIE.

2 tablespoons margarine
1 cup sliced mushrooms
1 clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons corn starch
1½ cups milk
2½ cups cooked chicken or turkey cut in bite size pieces
1 package (10 ounces) peas, thawed (2 cups)
1 whole pimiento, chopped
½ teaspoon thyme leaves
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1 recipe double crust pastry
In skillet melt margarine. Add mushrooms and garlic. Saute over medium heat until lightly browned. Measure corn starch into saucepan. Gradually stir in milk until smooth. Mix in mushrooms, garlic and pan drippings. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly. Boil 1 minute. Stir in chicken, peas, pimiento, thyme, salt and pepper. Pour into pastry lined 9-inch pie plate. Cover pie with pastry; seal and flute edge. Cut slits in top to allow steam to escape during baking. Bake in 375-degree oven 35 minutes or until crust is golden brown. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

PORK POT PIE

2 tablespoons corn starch
1½ cups milk
2 tablespoons margarine
3 cups cooked pork, cut in strips (1½ pounds)
½ cup finely chopped celery
¼ cup finely chopped onion
¾ teaspoon salt
¾ teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon sage leaves
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 recipe double crust pastry
Measure corn starch into saucepan. Gradually stir in milk until smooth. Add margarine. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly; boil 1 minute. Remove from heat. Stir in pork, celery, onion, salt, paprika, sage and pepper. Pour mixture into pastry lined 9-inch pie plate. Cover pie with pastry; seal and flute edge. Cut slits in top to allow steam to escape during baking. Bake in 375-degree oven about 35 minutes or until crust is golden brown. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

MEAT AND POTATO POT PIE

1½ cups diced potatoes
1 cup sliced carrots
2 cups water
2 tablespoons corn starch
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons margarine
2 cups cooked roast beef cut in bite size pieces
¼ cup finely chopped onion
½ teaspoon dried basil
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 recipe double crust pastry
In saucepan place potatoes, carrots and water. Bring to a boil; reduce heat cover and simmer 15 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Drain, reserving ½ cup vegetable liquid. Measure corn starch into saucepan. Gradually stir in milk until smooth and add reserved vegetable liquid and margarine. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly. Boil 1 minute. Stir in beef, carrots, potatoes, onion, basil, salt and pepper. Pour into pastry lined 9-inch pie plate. Cover pie with pastry; seal and flute edge. Cut slits in top to allow steam to escape during baking. Bake in 375-degree oven 35 minutes or until crust is golden brown. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Iron in meat more effective

An iron deficiency, common cause of irritability, loss of appetite and listlessness, can be alleviated by eating more meat. That iron you eat must be absorbed to be of any value, and the iron you receive from plant foods is less well absorbed than that from meats. For instance, 15 to 20 per cent of the iron is absorbed from diets containing large amounts of animal protein, while only 5 to 10 per cent is absorbed from diets composed of vegetable foods.

One-dish meals

For cooks with no time to spare

by LOIS SEILER

Inexpensive yet hearty casseroles are the specialty of Judy Slifer, Wheeling. Judy likes to cook it all day, so she concocted these easy-to-dishes that are both nourishing and tasty.

No spices are needed in either casserole since tomato soup provides the seasoning. One casserole consists of macaroni, ground beef and kidney beans mixed with the soup, while the other combines ground beef, green beans and the tomato soup topped with mashed potatoes. Both dishes are well-liked by Judy's husband, Jim, and her small daughter.

If you wish you may serve a green salad or gelatin and rolls as accompaniments, although each casserole can be a meal-in-one.

Another family favorite is a simple chili recipe which Judy doctored up to suit her taste. A generous amount of basil gives this chili more of a sweet rather than spicy flavor.

The amount of water added to the ingredients is an individual decision, she said. Three cans suit most people, Judy explained, but some, like her husband, prefer thinner chili.

Although chili may be eaten after an hour's cooking time, Judy prefers to cook it at least three hours so the meat absorbs the various flavors. The chili is even better made a day or two ahead, and will freeze well. Served in soup bowls, Italian bread or garlic French bread makes an excellent accompaniment.

MACARONI AND BEAN CASSEROLE

- 2 cups uncooked macaroni
- 1 pound ground beef
- 2 cans (10½ ounces each)

ONLY FOUR ingredients go into Judy Slifer's Simple Casserole. No seasonings are needed since she uses tomato soup as a base to the beef and vegetables.

tomato soup

- 1 can dark red kidney beans (15 ounces), drained
- Cook macaroni according to package directions. Drain well. Brown ground beef and drain. Mix all ingredients together, turn into a two-quart casserole, cover and bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 40 minutes. Serves 4.

SIMPLE CASSEROLE

- 1 pound ground beef
  - 1 can (15 ounces) green beans or peas, drained
  - 1 to 2 cans tomato soup
  - Instant or fresh mashed potatoes to serve four
- Brown beef, drain and place in the bottom of a two-quart casserole. Drain beans or peas or other green vegetable and place over ground beef. Spread tomato soup over all.
- Prepare mashed potatoes and pile on top of casserole. Cover with lid or foil and bake at 350 degrees about 30 to 45 minutes or until soup bubbles and casserole is heated through. Serves 4.

CHILI

- 1 pound (or more) ground beef
- 2 cans (12-ounce size) tomato paste
- 1 can (14 ounces) stewed tomatoes, broken up and drained
- 2 cans (15 ounce size) dark

- red kidney beans, drained
  - 3 or more kidney bean cans of water, (about 6 cups)
  - 3 ribs celery, chopped
  - 3 teaspoons chili powder
  - 3 teaspoons basil leaves, crushed
  - 3 tablespoons dry parsley flakes
  - 1½ teaspoons celery salt
- Brown beef and drain. While browning, mix all remaining ingredients together in Dutch oven and simmer. Mix well. Add browned beef and simmer at least one hour, covered, stirring occasionally. Add one or two more cans of water if you want thinner Chili.
- Taste and correct seasonings during the cooking period. If possible, cook an additional two hours. Will keep in refrigerator four days and freezes well. Serves 6 generously.

Many eat no grain

About 40 per cent of all cattle now being marketed have eaten little, if any, grain during their lives. These animals have been raised on grass, forages and various plant by-products. Humans are not capable of digesting these foodstuffs, but cattle, which have a more complex digestive tract, thrive on these items and convert them to nutritious beef for human consumption.

Dieter with sweet desire may nibble these cookies

It's frustrating for a person to be watching calories and cholesterol at the same time, especially if the individual has a sweet tooth. It is possible to satisfy an urge for desserts with "diet" cookies that are low in cholesterol and in calories. Of course, the calorie control can be wiped out if someone insists on eating a dozen cookies at one time. Still, one of these cookies is about 15 to 20 calories less than most regular ones. These three treats are made from a recipe using a small amount of polyunsaturated margarine alone or with a low-fat yogurt.

SLIMMA-BANANA BARS

1/2 cup sunflower oil
margarine
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup mashed ripe bananas (approximately 3 medium bananas)

In large bowl blend margarine, sugar and vanilla. In medium bowl mix flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. Add alternately with mashed banana to margarine mixture, mixing well after each addition. Turn into lightly greased 15 by 10 by 1-inch baking pan. Bake in 350 degree oven 20 to 25 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cook completely. Cut into 2 by 1-inch bars. If desired, sprinkle lightly with confectioners' sugar. Makes 75 bars; about 30 calories each.

PROMISING (OATMEAL KISSES)

1/3 cup sunflower oil
margarine
1/3 cup plain yogurt
1/2 cup packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 cup uncooked oats, regular or quick
1/4 cup raisins
1/4 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 teaspoon salt

In large bowl blend margarine, yogurt, brown sugar and vanilla. In medium bowl mix rest of ingredients. Blend into margarine mixture. Form into 1-inch balls and place 1 inch apart on ungreased baking sheet. Bake in 325 degree oven 15 to 20 minutes. Remove cookies from baking sheet and cool completely. Makes 4 1/2 dozen cookies; about 35 calories each.

WALNUT THINS

1/3 cup sunflower oil
margarine
1/3 cup vanilla yogurt
1/3 cup packed brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon almond extract
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 1/2 cups whole wheat flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 egg white, slightly beaten

Walnut pieces

In large bowl blend together margarine, yogurt, brown sugar, almond extract and vanilla. In small bowl mix flour and baking powder. Blend into margarine mixture. Shape dough into ball, wrap in waxed paper and chill 2 hours or more. Roll out less than 1/4-inch thick on lightly floured board. Cut with 2-inch cookie cutters and place on ungreased baking sheet. Brush lightly with egg white and decorate with walnut pieces if desired, or leave plain. Bake in 325 degree oven 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 4 1/2 dozen cookies; about 28 calories each.

COOKING SCHOOL ANNOUNCES WINTER-SPRING SCHEDULE 9 NEW COURSES ADDED

The Continental Cooking School, 1144 S. Elmhurst Rd., in Mt. Prospect's Countryside Court, has extended its Winter-Spring Class Schedule and added, by request, 9 new courses. Continental also reduced tuition on all in-depth 6 session gourmet classes, in some cases as much as 40%. All new courses are indicated on the schedule below.

"After much hard work and with the increase in enrollments, we were able to reduce the gourmet class tuitions the same way several specialty course tuitions were cut last semester," explained European master chef Henko Buchloh, who is also the school's head chef. "In both cases," he continued, "we actually improved both the quantity and quality of instruction. Our goal is to bring gourmet cooking into everyone's kitchen at the most affordable instruction ever offered."

Food, recipes, and all material are included in the tuition. Lower tuition, increased demand, and small workable class sizes, are causing classes to fill up fast. Anyone interested in enrolling or in more information should visit the school's unique and home-like kitchen classroom or call the school at 593-3020.

Ask Andy

Nature's beauty saved in parks

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Scott and Grant Marcum, 11, of Santa Maria, Calif., for their question: HOW DID NATIONAL PARKS START?

Wherever man has lived, he has changed the face of the earth. Let's face it, it's hard to build a house or a road without first clearing away the trees, shrubs and other greenery in the way. In the early days of our country there were far fewer people and so much land that not too much thought was given about the changes taking place. Thank goodness for a few farsighted people who sought to save the more beautiful spots for future generations to enjoy.

The idea of national parks began in 1864 when the U.S. Congress granted the Yosemite Valley to the state of California with the condition that it be held in trust for public use and recreation for all time. Yosemite was chosen because of its great and beautiful groves of redwood trees and other scenic wonders.

Most Californians are familiar with Yosemite and many regard it as one of the greatest national parks in the United States. When it was first created, however, it was not called a national park. This honor goes to Yellowstone, located mainly in Wyoming, with overlaps in Montana and Idaho. Yellowstone was established in 1872 and became the first national park in the world. It was the intent of the Congress that areas of great natural beauty should be set aside for all time so that their wondrous beauty would provide pleasure for countless future generations.

At the present time, there are 33 national parks in the United States. They cover an area of about 14 million square miles and each has its own special kind of magical beauty. The parks are supervised by the National Park Service which is a bureau of the U.S. Department of the Interior.

A park superintendent and a force of park rangers supervise the various parks. Together with naturalist, foresters, biologists, geologists and other park employees, they do their best to make sure that the more than 22 million yearly visitors enjoy themselves. The rangers also are on hand to assist in times of emergency or to help visitors in any way they can.

The United States was the first country to establish national parks. In a little less than 100 years most other countries have followed suit, using the park system of the United States as a model. Almost half a million square miles around the world have been established for the preservation of wildlife, natural vegetation and other natural wonders.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Hem Adran, 8, of Kingston, Ont., Canada, for her question: DO TOADS GIVE YOU WARTS?

Rumor has it that toads cause warts. Trouble is, some children get warts who have never set eyes on a toad. Actually, warts are caused by certain virus germs that burrow under the outer layer of the skin. The virus thrives and multiplies, causing a wad of tough, dead skin cells to form. Sometimes a wart will disappear of its own accord. Other times it remains as a pecky nuisance, occasionally spreading to other parts of the body and even to other people.

Doctors regard a wart as a benign growth called a verruca. The skin, as we know, is a series of layers. The verruca virus never digs down to the deep, sensitive skin layer. It stays in the tough surface, where it orders the cells to build folds of corny material and stack them in a hard button. When the virus dies, the warty wad of folded skin dries up and falls away — leaving the skin as it was before. If a wart keeps growing or becomes irritated and inflamed, have a doctor take a look at it. Hemay apply stronger remedies than the drugstore variety, such as x-rays, electric needle or liquid nitrogen — all relatively painless and permanent.

Tough, retired film great honored

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Director William Wyler cracked with good humor at the desk of his office-bedroom in a Beverly Hills mansion as he said, "Yes, I guess I could be an S.O.B. when it was necessary."

The 73-year-old movie pioneer was reflecting on his reputation for being a martinet with actors.

He was a fearsome perfectionist on the set who broached little temperment from performers. Because he was the best, Wyler seldom was tested by the peacocks in costume.

HIS 15 OSCAR nominations and three Academy Awards are records not likely to be broken soon.

Testimony to his greatness will be made March 14 at the fourth annual Life Achievement Award ceremony.

by the American Film Institute. Preceding him in this honor were directors John Ford and Orson Welles and actor James Cagney.

No Hollywood artist has a more impressive body of work than Wyler.

His three Oscars were achieved for "Mrs. Miniver," "The Best Years of Our Lives" and "Ben Hur."

But his credits also include such landmark films as "Wuthering Heights," "The Little Foxes," "Roman Holiday," "The Collector," "Funny Girl" and virtually scores of others.

HE THINKS THERE are good and bad young directors making films today but doesn't envy them working with superstars.

"Today stars are the boss and run the show," he said. "I don't like that."

If the whole picture is financed because of the star, naturally he runs the show and is indispensable.

"The director is not indispensable. If there is a dispute, the director goes out. Fortunately, some stars don't take advantage of this power."

Tributes will ring for the great director on the CBS-TV special next month. But the praise won't turn Wyler's head. He may be the best director who ever lived. His films speak more eloquently than all the inscriptions on all the awards his admirers can compose.

Count hand for sure finesse

No set of teaching hands would be complete without one designed to show how to count the defender's distribution in order to make finessing easier.

North counts his 21 points three or four times to make sure he isn't the victim of some new mathematical disease and then bids seven notrump.

South looks over dummy and sees that he has to pick up the queen of diamonds to make the grand slam. His first thought is to lead his jack of diamonds at trick two and play East for the queen if West fails to cover. Second thought tells him to postpone the diamond play until he can get some sort of count on the enemy distribution.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

So he cashes the top clubs and West discards a spade on the third club. He goes after hearts next and again West has to discard on the third one.

Now South cashes a second spade and East follows. Twelve of East's cards have been accounted for and none of those 13 are diamonds. South plays his king of diamonds and East follows. South knows East does not hold another diamond so South finishes with absolute certainty.

Howlett urged to tell role with steel firm

by WANDALYN RICE
and STEVE BROWN

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael Howlett should make a full explanation of his relationship with Sun Steel Co. of Chicago Heights, Michael Bakalis, one of Howlett's running mates, said Wednesday.

In an interview with The Herald, Bakalis, the regular Democratic candidate for state comptroller, said Howlett should resign his $15,000 post with Sun Steel if "there were even gray areas" which might be interpreted as a conflict of interest.

Howlett has come under increasing criticism for holding the post, which included the title of vice president, during the past 10 years while serving as state auditor and secretary of state.

HOWLETT HAS said there has been no conflict of interest between his work as a consultant to Sun Steel and his state offices. He also has said he never kept the job a secret because it has been listed each year since 1972 on the economic disclosure form required by law.

Bakalis, the former state school superintendent who is running on the ticket with Howlett in the March 16 primary in opposition to a state backed by Gov. Daniel Walker, said he believes some of the news coverage of Howlett's Sun Steel job has been unfair. However, he said that while Howlett is technically correct that he never concealed the job, he thinks the secretary of state should have done more to reveal it.

"Apparently the information was always available for anybody who wanted to look for it," Bakalis said. "But I think we politicians have to do something extra to raise our credibility." Bakalis said he personally makes all his financial dealings public even though "I'm not comfortable with everyone knowing how much I have and how much I owe."

Bakalis said he will not call on Howlett to resign the job because "I don't know the nature of the arrangement." He said if Howlett is correct in saying he only offered management advice and that there was no chance for a conflict of interest, he should not have to resign.

"I FTHERE WERE areas (in the job) that were even gray (in terms of conflicts of interest), he should disassociate himself from the company," Bakalis said.

He said, "I think a clarification has to be done because people don't trust politicians."

In related developments, Ronald Stackler, a Democratic candidate for attorney general, said he was glad to see Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott decide to appoint a special prosecutor to look into the Howlett situation.

Stackler also cited several recent Illinois Appellate Court decisions which suggest that a court hearing should be held to determine if Howlett should repay the money he earned from Sun Steel to the state.

Stackler cited court cases involving

State Rep. Clyde Choate, D-Ana., and former Cook County Clerk Edward Barrett, which ruled that public officials may be liable to repay the state any financial gains they may have received because of conflict-of-interest situations.

A second investigation also was called for by Donald Page Moore, a Democratic candidate for Cook County state's attorney.

Moore said a county grand jury should investigate Howlett's outside job with Sun Steel. He also called for the Internal Revenue Service to audit Howlett tax returns and the returns of Sun Steel.

City takes second look at C&NW road bypass

Des Plaines officials are reconsidering construction of a railroad underpass or overpass at the Chicago and North Western Ry. outer belt tracks on the west side of the city.

In recent years, city officials have considered putting such a structure at Thacker Street, Algonquin Road or Oakton Street, but they have not acted because of objections from residents and businesses. The city council shelved the plans in December.

But city officials have decided to take another look at the matter following a suggestion by Ald. Patrick Brannigan, 8th, to install a single-lane overpass at the outer belt tracks to allow fire, police and other emergency vehicles to cross when freight trains are blocking crossings.

Brannigan's action was prompted by a fatal accident last week, when the arrival of firemen was delayed because of a stalled freight train on the outer belt tracks. Although fire officials said the delay made no difference because they could not have saved the victim, Brannigan said he wants to prevent future delays to emergency vehicles.

MAYOR HERBERT H. Behrel said that while he believes Brannigan's suggestion has merit, he believes the city should again consider a full-size structure that would serve regular traffic as well as emergency vehicles.

"Installing a one-lane overpass for emergency vehicles is not as easy as it sounds," Behrel said. "Maybe we should look at the whole thing again because it might be as easy to construct a full-size underpass or overpass."

City urged to go directly to U.S. for project funds

A Cook County official Wednesday night said it would be to the advantage of Des Plaines to apply directly to the federal government for community development funds rather than to go through the county's program.

Terry Hansen, project director for Cook County Community Development, said the city would have more control and be guaranteed more benefits and more control if it applied for the funds directly.

He said there also is some question whether the city could participate in the county program.

Adult literature cover-up law urged by panel

by JOE FRANZ

Des Plaines officials are about to order a cover-up.

That is, a cover-up of adult magazines, newspapers or books depicting nudity sold in the city.

City officials have given preliminary approval to an ordinance that will require businesses selling such publications to display them so their covers are out of public view.

The ordinance was recommended by the city council's city code and judiciary committee as a result of complaints from city residents. The city council is expected to give the measure final approval in about two weeks.

Ald. Alan Abrams, 8th, committee chairman, said the ordinance does not attempt to censor publications sold in stores, but only regulates their display.

THE CITY COUNCIL to date has turned down $400,000 in funds available through the U.S. Housing and Community Development Act. Officials met with Hansen Wednesday night to discuss the county plan.

The city has not applied for the federal funds because many officials are leery of federal guidelines attached to the program. Although the funds obtained under the act could not be used for new construction, the federal government would require the city to submit a housing-assistance plan for approval. City officials said they fear that could lead to high-rise, low-income housing in the city.

Hansen said, however, that if the city were to participate in the county program it still would have to submit a housing-assistance plan. He added that participation in the county program would not guarantee the city funding for its desired projects.

ALD. ALAN ABRAMS, 8th, has suggested the city again consider Thacker Street as the location of a railroad underpass or overpass.

"I think Thacker Street would benefit the most people in the city," he said. "I think we owe it to our people to find them some relief to this problem."

Behrel said he thinks any location chosen by the city will meet opposition, but believes the city still should move ahead with the project.

"I think we have to try some place again and do it soon," he said. "I'm referring it to the streets and traffic committee for them to consider an underpass or overpass someplace in the city."

BEHREL SAID if city officials agree on a location he will present the recommendation to the Federal Aid to Urban Systems committee of the Northwest Municipal Conference. The committee ranks requests from municipalities for federal funding on a priority basis.

If approved, federal funds would pay up to 70 per cent of the expected $3 million cost. "I don't even know that we could get the project approved now, but I'd like to try," Behrel said.

Engineering consultants hired by the city have determined that freight trains block crossings at the outer belt tracks six out of 30 minutes each day.

"WE HAD NUMEROUS complaints about the types of displays that were prevalent in certain convenience food stores and other stores in town," he said. "People complained that the covers of some magazines were offensive and should not be visible to children."

He said the ordinance will call for a fine if any business is found in violation. "I think that most of the stores will go along," he said. "I'm not anticipating problems."

He said some of the major adult magazine publishers recently developed a special stand so that the publication name and not the nudity can be seen by customers.

City officials this week had the option of giving final approval to the ordinance, but decided not to after Mayor Herbert H. Behrel suggested aldermen take another two weeks to "study the bare facts."

"By the time we're through somebody's going to win, somebody's going to lose, and somebody's going to walk away with ruffled feathers."

"If the city applies directly they will be guaranteed a certain amount of money," Hansen said. He suggested the city consider establishing a housing authority to prepare a housing-assistance plan.

"A housing authority would have complete control over projects," he said.

Although the city has turned down the federal funds the last two years, officials have the option of applying to the federal government in 1977. The city will be eligible for about $600,000 in federal funds at that time.

Patty a robber or innocent victim?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst, a tiny, motionless girl in court, went on trial Wednesday with the prosecution picturing her as a cunning bank robber and the defense claiming she was "broken" by the same brutal terror used on prisoners of war.

Exactly two years after she was kidnaped, a jury was seated and opening arguments begun in a case boiling down to the question of whether the 21-year-old heiress joined her revolutionary captors or was driven near madness by fear.

Firefighter faces traffic charges

A Schaumburg fireman faces traffic charges in connection with a fatal accident last week in Elk Grove Village that killed a 60-year-old Roselle man. The firefighter, Martin Coniglio, 32, has been ticketed by Elk Grove Village police for disobeying a traffic signal and failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident, police said Wednesday. Coniglio was driving the fire department ambulance that collided with an auto driven by Walter J. Wisniewski, Roselle. The two vehicles collided at Meacham and Nerge roads while the ambulance was enroute to Alexian Brothers Medical Center with a patient.

Coniglio will appear in the Elk Grove Village branch of Cook County Circuit Court Feb. 26.

Adult literature cover-up asked

Des Plaines officials have given the preliminary OK for a city-wide cover-up. Aldermen are expected to approve an ordinance that would require adult magazines, newspapers and books depicting nudity covered up in city stores. Ald. Alan Abrams, 8, said the ordinance is not an attempt to censor publications, but rather an attempt to regulate their display. Officials agreed not to give final approval to the ordinance this week after Mayor Herbert H. Behrel suggested aldermen take two weeks to "study the bare facts."

Weapons charge against janitor

A Palatine man who shot and killed an alleged burglar last December during a break-in at his home was arrested Wednesday for carrying a concealed weapon. Palatine police said Donald B. Baczynski, 36, of 53 S. Smith St., was charged with unlawful use of weapons following his arrest at Harper college. College security officers reported seeing one of the college's janitors carrying a handgun in a shoulder holster, police said. On Dec. 1, Baczynski shot and killed Mark L. Desmore, 23, of Palatine Township, while Desmore was allegedly breaking into Baczynski's apartment. No charges were filed in connection with the shooting.

Probe of police abuse complaint

Mount Prospect Police Chief Ralph Doney is investigating charges by a village resident who said he was physically abused by a local policeman during a traffic violation stop. Paul Rufolo, 47, of 149 Gregory St., said the policeman used "undue physical force and aggravated a shoulder condition the motorist said he has after being stopped for a traffic violation Tuesday. Doney declined to identify the patrolman but said an in-house review board will hear the case and determine if further action is necessary. Rufolo told The Herald that while being searched following his arrest, "I had my hands on the hood and he kicked my legs out from under me and kept taking my arms off the hood to make it look like I was resisting arrest which I really wasn't." Rufolo said. Doney said the patrolman's story differed but the police chief refused to give his account of the incident.

Case not served properly

Harper faculty suit rejected

The Harper College Faculty Senate lawsuit against the college board of trustees on negotiations issues was rejected in court Wednesday because it was not filed properly.

Cook County Circuit Court Judge Edward Wosik dropped the case filed against the college. The suit charged the board with setting salary ranges before negotiations began and for negotiating in bad faith.

"There is no pending case of any kind at this time," said Robert Rausch, board member and chief negotiator. The judge said the case was "not served properly," said Rausch. "If the faculty wishes to pursue negotiations in court, they must start all over again."

"We wish to pursue negotiations to meet a March 1 deadline," he said. "If the faculty senate is prepared to present a negotiable proposal, we will be willing to discuss it."

FACULTY SENATE officials could not be contacted for comment Wednesday.

The suit was filed last week after contract talks broke off Jan. 26. Negotiations began Jan. 12.

Judge Wosik last week issued a temporary restraining order against the board prohibiting it from threatening faculty members or discussing the issue with them. He also had prohibited the board from issuing faculty contracts or setting a March 1 deadline for ending negotiations. Wednesday the judge dropped the restraining order and the order against an arbitrary settlement deadline.

Michael Bartos, chief negotiator for the faculty, said earlier the faculty was suing the board for setting salary ranges before negotiations began. The board in December set faculty salary ranges for the 1976-77 school year that established minimum and maximum pay for associate instructors, instructors, assistant professors, associate professors and professors.

Faculty members objected to setting salary ranges before contract talks began saying all salary decisions should be made during negotiations. Board members say salary ranges have never been part of negotiations.

Move over Elton—we've got our own pinball wizard

by DIANE MERMIGAS

All's well with the world for a pinball enthusiast who has $3 in quarters, a good machine with a lot of bumpers and a nonstop, stereophonic recording of the rock opera "Tommy" blaring in his ears.

It's no ordinary world you enter after stepping up to a pinball machine and springing the small, silver ball into action.

The rock rhythms bellow, the bells ring out, the flippers move back and forth wildly, and 1,000 points light up across the slanting board.

IS IT DELIRIUM? Maybe, of a mild sort.

But for at least 65 teen-agers who jam the pinball machine rooms at Hotter Than Mother's Music record store in Mount Prospect on weekend nights, it's an illuminated maze of challenge and excitement.

The music store, 2 E. Northwest Hwy., began featuring the pinball machines nearly two years ago as a way to lure teen-age patrons to the records.

Although the plan has resulted in increased record and cassette sales, "more people of all ages come into the store to play the machines more than anything else," said Mike Herman, store manager.

"Some are really good. Others keep trying to be," he said.

THEY HUDDLE around the amusement machines that are lined up like soldiers against the walls of the dimly lit rooms in the converted, two-story frame house. Each "pinball wizard" picks up the best of rock tunes coming over the loud speaker system.

They probably envision themselves as the "Bally Table King" in the rock opera that spurred the current pinball madness: the story of the deaf, dumb and blind boy who was master of the machines.

It's knowing just how much to shake the machine without "tilting" it. It's knowing just when and how hard to hit the flippers. It's vibrations, sensations and feelings, said Don Hochstatter, Arlington Heights.

He "loves" to play "The Wizard," the most popular of all the pinball machines, because "it has lots of bumpers and obstacles that help keep the ball in play," Hochstatter, a junior at Rolling Meadows High School, said.

HE AND HIS FRIENDS play four-at-a-time on the games. Some father-and-son teams play doubles. The pinball sharks, who can play a whole night on 50 cents and free replays, usually "operate" alone.

Some "regulars" come in after dinner at about 6 p.m. "and stay until the place closes at 1 a.m. the next morning," Herman said.

"Some guys spend as much as $10 or $15 on the machines in one night because they have the urge to keep on tryin'," he said.

And Hotter Than Mother's Music, not your typical music store, makes the playing more inviting by offering hot pizza and pop along with the continuous tunes every night of the week.

"There are some things we don't tolerate. There are some things we keep strict control of and that's why this has worked out so successfully," said Mike's brother, Bill, the store's owner.

Smoking, curfew laws and abusive language are prohibited in the store.

"WE DO IT BECAUSE this is a great kind of place for kids to be — they don't have anywhere else to go. It gives them what they are looking for — a place to meet and have fun," Herman said. Most patrons seem to agree.

A steady stream of area high schoolers, Harper College students and amusement game fans from as far as the Western suburbs play the machines daily. Many patrons make a point of coming in three or four times a week.

"It's just a lot of fun. I come in with my friends to practice. I like the Olympics game because you only need 80,000 points for a replay," said Larry Verhulst, Des Plaines.

The buzzer goes off, the digit counters clear themselves with a string of zeroes and the game is over — his points are lost.

"So, I'll try another game," he said, and moves on to "The Champ" or "Sky Jump" or "Monte Carlo." The pinball machines number 30 and each has a different name and way of winning.

"I'VE GOT A thousand more points to go," yells Hochstatter, "and then I'll be a wizard."

But, no one except the friend he's playing doubles with is listening. The room is ringing with sounds. It's a carnival for the senses.

It's the pinball phenomenon at its best.

Township wrapup

$14,800 reported in welfare account

Elk Grove Township welfare funds continue to meet current assistance needs, despite earlier predictions that funds will run out by March.

Township Supervisor Richard M. Hall said only $3,500 was paid out in the general-assistance account during January, while $2,700 in tax receipts was received. He said the fund now has a balance of $14,800 for February and March, the remaining two months of the fiscal year.

Declines in the general-assistance rolls during the past few months have been credited for the reduction in payouts, which were high early last year.

$49,619 revenue-sharing check

The township received its quarterly federal revenue-sharing check for $49,619, plus $147 interest.

Openings on mental-aid panel

The township is looking for three persons to serve on its mental health committee. Interested persons should call the township at 437-0300.

Branch of juvenile court favored

The township board passed a resolution in support of the decentralization of the Cook County Juvenile Court, as requested by the Northwest Municipal Conference. Officials hope to move the facilities from Niles to Schaumburg.

The board also passed a motion expressing its interest in joining the Northwest Municipal Conference, now made up of 16 area municipalities.

Three officials honored

The township board passed three resolutions of appreciation for former employees and officials. They were for Walter R. Bartley, former auditor; Frances C. Altenburg, former deputy tax assessor; and Margaret I. Blaschke, former general-assistance director.

Most fire code woes at DeSoto corrected: city

A Des Plaines official Wednesday said most of the fire code violations at DeSoto Inc. have been corrected and the firm has agreed to correct others in the near future.

Building Comr. William Baldaccini said officials inspected DeSoto's new addition, 1700 Mount Prospect Rd., Wednesday, and put the chemical firm "on notice" that if the violations are not corrected it will be ordered to vacate the building.

"The building has not been closed down because a majority of the items have been corrected in the last two days," he said. "They have been given a certain amount of time to correct the other violations."

BALDACCINI WAS attacked by several city council members Monday night because he issued a temporary occupancy permit to DeSoto for the first floor of the building. Officials said the permit should not have been issued because the violations "endangered life-safety."

The temporary occupancy permit was issued to DeSoto even though the city's Fire Prevention Bureau recommended the city not allow the firm to move into the building.

Baldaccini said he issued the permit because he believed the building was safe. Fire Chief Donald Corey said, however, he considered the violations to be serious.

The violations included taped sprinkler heads, improper storage areas for flammable liquids and chemicals, and unfinished doors and windows.

BALDACCINI SAID HE is preparing a report on the matter for the city council's review.

City officials also expressed concern because DeSoto moved into the second floor of the new addition without an occupancy permit. There are numerous fire code violations on that floor, they charged.

Baldaccini and Corey each said they advised against occupancy of the second floor until construction was completed.

Will Ninnis, a vice president at DeSoto, Wednesday said the company will cease operations on the second floor of the building until the violations are corrected and an occupancy permit issued. He said the company will correct the violations on the first floor as soon as possible.

"Now it's up to us to meet the target dates set by the city," he said. "We intend to do that to the best of our ability. If we have problems doing that we hope the city will understand."

IN ADDITION TO the problems at DeSoto, several officials charged Dry Storage Corp., 1800 Wolf Rd., was issued a temporary occupancy permit for an addition despite fire code violations.

Baldaccini said the firm has been notified it must correct the violations or face revocation of its temporary occupancy permit.

Baldaccini has come under fire by city officials numerous times in recent months over his conduct and handling of matters in the building department. Sources say a growing number of aldermen are intent on firing Baldaccini or forcing the commissioner to quit.

Dist. 26 mulls 2c tax to aid special education

Taxes in River Trails Dist. 26 could increase by 2 cents per $100 equalized assessed valuation next year if the school board decides to levy a special education tax being investigated by the administration.

The Dist. 26 board is considering the 2-cent tax to be levied without a referendum to provide money for special education. The levy would raise residents' tax bills from $2.55 to $2.57 per $100 equalized assessed valuation in 1977, said Ralph Beaudoin, district business manager.

"At this point we're just looking into it," he said Wednesday. "We would use the funds to convert classrooms for special education use because we do have a number of classes for the hearing impaired," he added.

Beaudoin estimates the 2-cent levy would bring in approximately $14,000 per year for the school district. In addition, the state offers districts using the tax $1,000 for each of its special education teachers, which could bring in another $14,000 annually.

The 2-cent special education tax was levied before in Dist. 26 to help finance the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization's Kirk Center, Palatine, a facility for handicapped youngsters shared by all NSSEO member districts.

District officials said they may have a few empty classrooms available for conversion to special education needs in the future because of projected declining enrollments.

Villages, county may sue to recoup extortion funds

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT
and LINDA PUNCH

Dozens of former county and local officials convicted of extortion may return to court to answer demands by local and county attorneys for damages and recovery of payoff and shakedown funds, The Herald has learned.

Wheeling Village Board members and a spokesman for State's Atty. Bernard Carey said they are considering filing suit to recover funds lost in the payoffs and shakedowns.

At least three former Wheeling village officials, nine former employees of the county assessor's office, a former county board member, a former county clerk and a former county zoning administrator may be named in separate suits that could seek millions of dollars in damages.

WHEELING VILLAGE officials met Monday in a "closed" meeting to discuss collection of damages from former village officials who demanded payoffs from local builders.

In Hoffman Estates, where six former village officials pleaded guilty in 1974 to federal extortion and tax fraud charges, Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said a suit is not planned because developer Kaufman & Broad has paid $75,000 in damages.

Carey's staff began "preparation of approximately a dozen cases" last month after winning a precedent-setting verdict against former County Clerk Edward Barrett in the Illinois Appellate Court, a spokesman said.

Barrett was convicted in U.S. District Court in 1973 of extorting $180,000 from a firm that sold voting machines to Cook County.

CAREY ASKED Circuit Court Judge Walter P. Dahl to order payment of more than $180,000 by Barrett to the county because the former clerk abused his "position of trust by employing it to seek secret personal gains from the Shoup Voting Machine Corp."

Dahl dismissed the case, but the Illinois Appellate Court reversed the decision in December. Barrett has requested a rehearing.

"As an elected public official, he (Barrett) held a position of the highest public trust. Barrett acted as the county's agent," the Appellate Court stated. Because Barrett accepted the $180,000, "that benefit may be recovered from him" by the county, the court said.

In a similar downstate suit last year, the Illinois Appellate Court in the 4th Dist. refused to dismiss a taxpayers' suit, which asked damages from former state legislators who purchased race track stock at below-market prices from track owners. The case has been appealed to the Illinois Supreme Court.

"THIS IS A NEW area that holds public officials liable to their communities for financial misconduct," Deputy State's Atty. Sheldon Gardner said Wednesday.

"The giving of favors (like preferential zoning after receipt of payoffs) were at the expense of the community," Gardner said. "The community may even be entitled to damages from builders which were caused by overzoning."

Gardner said he "will not recommend to my boss (Carey)" that the state's attorney seek damages for municipalities where local officials were convicted of corruption. "We're putting things together" for claims against other county officials who were convicted of extortion or bribery, he said.

"There's no reason why the corporation counsel or village attorney can't proceed," Gardner said.

Wheeling Village Board members met Monday with Village Atty. John Burke, who refused to discuss the meeting.

BUT TRUSTEE Charles Kerr told The Herald, "If they (former convicted officials) did in fact receive money and benefited at the taxpayers' expense, the taxpayers deserve to get it back. If the courts now feel the money is refundable to the municipality, then I'm in agreement with it and would like to see it."

Three Wheeling officials, former building director William Bieber, former trustee Michael Valenza and former trustee William Hart were convicted of corruption in U.S. District Court last year.

Bieber pleaded guilty to federal extortion, perjury and tax charges, served a prison term and was paroled in 1975. Valenza pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy to commit extortion, and Hart pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit extortion in June 1974.

James Stavros, a former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman who pleaded guilty to extorting more than $92,000 from three Wheeling developers, was not a "public official" and probably will not be named in a damage suit, The Herald learned.

"WE'LL PROBABLY look to see what they (Bieber, Valenza and Hart) pleaded guilty to and if enough money is involved to make it worthwhile," Trustee Otis Hedlund said. "We're aware of the decisions and the position the village finds itself in, but we've taken no action yet."

"Monies that were given like that could have come to the village," Trustee William Hein said. "If the village has any monetary income coming, I think we should get it."

In Hoffman Estates, six former village officials pleaded guilty in 1974 to charges of corruption. The payoffs involved Kaufman & Broad Inc. and the Barrington Square development.

Kaufman & Broad paid the village $75,000 as part of an out-of-court settlement in 1975 after Hoffman Estates officials refused to approve building permits for completion of the project. Kaufman & Broad also agreed to reduce building density for the project.

"We recovered a considerable amount of money," Hayter told The Herald Wednesday. "We got a cash donation. If we had to go to court it may cost more in individual cases than we could get back. Most of those people are long gone."

Burglars stole $92.80 in cash after entering the home of Arthur W. Ware, 1921 Stockton Ave., Des Plaines, police said Wednesday.

The money was taken from three rooms in the home. Police believe entry may have been gained through an unlocked bedroom window.

Police also said a television set of undetermined value was stolen by burglars from the apartment of Russell Ellsworth, 642 Colonial Ln. The burglars are believed to have removed a window screen to get inside.

A neighbor noticed the screen missing Wednesday and notified police, authorities said.

Howlett urged to tell role with steel firm

by WANDALYN RICE
and STEVE BROWN

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael Howlett should make a full explanation of his relationship with Sun Steel Co. of Chicago Heights, Michael Bakalis, one of Howlett's running mates, said Wednesday.

In an interview with The Herald, Bakalis, the regular Democratic candidate for state comptroller, said Howlett should resign his $15,000 post with Sun Steel if "there were even gray areas" which might be interpreted as a conflict of interest.

Howlett has come under increasing criticism for holding the post, which included the title of vice president, during the past 10 years while serving as state auditor and secretary of state.

HOWLETT HAS said there has been no conflict of interest between his work as a consultant to Sun Steel and his state offices. He also has said he never kept the job a secret because it has been listed each year since 1972 on the economic disclosure form required by law.

Bakalis, the former state school superintendent who is running on the ticket with Howlett in the March 16 primary in opposition to a slate backed by Gov. Daniel Walker, said he believes some of the news coverage of Howlett's Sun Steel job has been unfair. However, he said that while Howlett is technically correct that he never concealed the job, he thinks the secretary of state should have done more to reveal it.

"Apparently the information was always available for anybody who wanted to look for it," Bakalis said. "But I think we politicians have to do something extra to raise our credibility." Bakalis said he personally makes all his financial dealings public even though "I'm not comfortable with everyone knowing how much I have and how much I owe."

Bakalis said he will not call on Howlett to resign the job because "I don't know the nature of the arrangement." He said if Howlett is correct in saying he only offered management advice and that there was no chance for a conflict of interest, he should not have to resign.

"I F THERE WERE areas (in the job) that were even gray (in terms of conflicts of interest), he should disassociate himself from the company," Bakalis said.

He said, "I think a clarification has to be done because people don't trust politicians."

In related developments, Ronald Stackler, a Democratic candidate for attorney general, said he was glad to see Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott decide to appoint a special prosecutor to look into the Howlett situation.

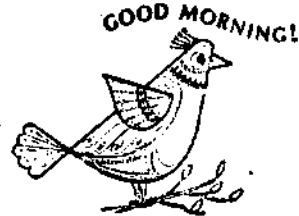

Stackler also cited several recent Illinois Appellate Court decisions which suggest that a court hearing should be held to determine if Howlett should repay the money he earned from Sun Steel to the state.

Stackler cited court cases involving

State Rep. Clyde Cheate, D-Anna, and former Cook County Clerk Edward Barrett, which ruled that public officials may be liable to repay the state any financial gains they may have received because of conflict-of-interest situations.

A second investigation also was called for by Donald Page Moore, a Democratic candidate for Cook County state's attorney.

Moore said a county grand jury should investigate Howlett's outside job with Sun Steel. He also called for the Internal Revenue Service to audit Howlett tax returns and the returns of Sun Steel.

County, villages may act against ex-officials

Lawsuits to recoup extortion money?

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT
and LINDA PUNCH

Dozens of former county and local officials convicted of extortion may return to court to answer demands by local and county attorneys for damages and recovery of payoff and shakedown funds. The Herald has learned.

Wheeling Village Board members and a spokesman for State's Atty. Bernard Carey said they are considering filing suit to recover funds lost in the payoffs and shakedowns.

At least three former Wheeling village officials, nine former employees of the county assessor's office, a former county board member, a former county clerk and a former county zoning administrator may be named in separate suits that could seek millions of dollars in damages.

WHEELING VILLAGE officials met Monday in a "closed" meeting to discuss collection of damages from former village officials who demanded payoffs from local builders.

In Hoffman Estates, where six former village officials pleaded guilty in 1974 to federal extortion and tax fraud charges, Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said a suit is not planned because developer Kaufman & Broad has paid $75,000 in damages.

Carey's staff began "preparation of approximately a dozen cases" last month after winning a precedent-setting verdict against former County Clerk Edward Barrett in the Illinois Appellate Court, a spokesman said.

Barrett was convicted in U.S. District Court in 1973 of extorting $180,000 from a firm that sold voting machines to Cook County.

CAREY ASKED Circuit Court Judge Walter P. Dahl to order payment of more than $180,000 by Barrett to the county because the former clerk abused his "position of trust by employing it to seek secret personal gains from the Sheup Voting Machine Corp."

Chief tells fire district trustees

No ambulance tax, no paramedics

Buffalo Grove Fire Chief Wayne Winter said Wednesday his department will not be able to meet state guidelines for paramedic service without an ambulance tax.

Winter told Wheeling Rural Fire Protection District trustees, "we've got to have this ambulance tax."

"Without it, we'll be back to the 'you call, we haul' service. There will be no telemetry, no drugs," he said.

Fire district trustees are planning an ambulance tax referendum later this year. A date for the referendum will be set at a special Feb. 18 meeting.

FIRE OFFICIALS are seeking the tax because general revenue funds can only be used for firefighting costs. The district wants to levy the tax to fund ambulance and paramedic service now required by the state. The Illinois Dept. of Public Health since 1974 has required that two paramedics answer ambulance calls. Previously, only one paramedic was required on calls.

Winter said if the fire district doesn't get the tax by September, there's "going to be rough going — some really rough going."

Fire District Trustees Lance Hooper said the fire district will have to go through with the ambulance tax referendum despite Wheeling village officials' discussions about withdrawing from the district.

"The district has to take action on the ambulance tax," he said.

Wheeling Village Trustee William Hein, who has proposed that his village withdraw from the fire district, said he feared the ambulance tax might endanger Wheeling's chances of disconnecting from the district.

"WE NEED YOUR assurance that you won't oppose us going out of the district," he said.

Hein said many Wheeling residents face double taxation since village general tax funds are used to support the Wheeling Fire Dept. Most Wheeling residents, except for some 2,000 residents in the northeast section of town, also pay taxes to the rural fire protection district.

"Speaking for myself, I'd like to see Wheeling have a municipal department. We've got to give our people the best possible protection for the least amount of money," he said.

Hein also noted if the Wheeling Fire Dept. withdraws from the district, the 2,000 residents currently outside the district could be taxed. He said revenues from this area would be about $35,000.

Hein suggested officials of the fire district meet with Wheeling trustees to discuss the issue. The ambulance tax referendum will seek approval for a maximum tax of 25 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Patty a robber or victim of terror group?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst, a tiny, motionless girl in court, went on trial Wednesday with the prosecution picturing her as a cunning bank robber and the defense claiming she was "broken" by the same brutal terror used on prisoners of war.

Exactly two years after she was kidnapped, a jury was seated and opening arguments begun in a case boiling down to the question of whether the 21-year-old heiress joined her revolutionary captors or was driven near madness by fear.

Famed criminal lawyer F. Lee Bailey told the jury of seven women and five men that Patricia was kept in a closet without lights for six to nine weeks, sexually abused and finally convinced she would be killed by the FBI if she attempted to surrender. She was forced to go to the bank, Bailey said, by her captors who wanted to show her conversion — "to take her in like a prize pig and place her directly before a camera."

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr., in a low key address, made no mention of brainwashing but said the prosecution would present evidence that Miss Hearst voluntarily joined the bank holdup and afterwards made tapes boasting about it and saying she had joined the Symbionese Liberation Army.

A bank guard will testify, Browning said, that he heard Patty call out to employees and personnel in the bank lobby: "The first person to move gets his m—f— head blown off."

Bailey told the jury that the girl was "a prisoner of war for 20 months."

Burglars take tires in locker break-in

Burglars stole a pair of auto tires worth $80 owned by Robert Rhodes, 873 Trace Dr., after breaking into an apartment storage locker, Buffalo Grove police said Wednesday.

The thieves tore through chicken wire in the door to gain entry. Police said the burglary was discovered Wednesday.

Mobile home owners, village to discuss garage law

Wheeling village officials will meet tonight with a committee of Whipple Tree Village mobile home park residents to discuss revisions of village ordinances governing their homes.

Village and county officials said as many as 50 permanent, attached garages at the mobile home park, 525 N.

McHenry Rd., are in violation of safety and building codes. The village is trying to find a solution to the problem because residents believed they were acting within the law when the garages were built, and past village administrations did not cite the residents for the alleged violations.

Village officials last week said there will be no demolition of garages and additions built in violation of village codes, but a solution to problems there must be found.

The alleged violations were discovered last fall when Building Comr. Walter Repholz visited Whipple Tree Village. He ordered four garages under construction dismantled, saying they constituted fire and other safety hazards.

RESIDENTS ATTENDING last week's meeting said they were not told garages, canopies and porches might be in violation of village ordinance when they were built. One man said the additions were included in the contract when he purchased his home.

Village Atty. John Burke said Cook County Health Dept. officials, who have inspected the trailer park, said there must be a 10-foot space between the trailer and an enclosed garage. Enclosed garages are permitted only if they are detached, temporary and made of fire-resistant materials.

Burke said residents of the mobile home park who have canopies instead of enclosed garages are not in violation of the law.

VILLAGE OFFICIALS currently are reviewing ordinances concerning mobile home parks. Burke said Cook County zoning ordinance classify mobile home parks as a special use residential districts.

"Apparently the draftsmen of the ordinance felt the best way to handle a mobile home park was to place it in the special use category and in that manner the county would have complete control as to the layout and plans of the mobile home park," he said.

The committee will meet at 8 p.m. today at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

State youth agency faces county hearing

A hearing to investigate charges that the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services is "unresponsive and uncooperative" will be held Feb. 17 by the Lake County Board's law and judicial committee.

Invitations to attend the hearings have been sent to state and local government officials and public and private agencies which deal with the department.

"We are also hoping that parents and young people served by the state agency will attend," said Millicent Berliant, law and judicial committee chairman. "It is important that they have the opportunity to present their views and opinions as to the efficiency of this agency."

Mrs. Berliant said the hearings would deal with the quality and quantity of services provided by the department, the relationship between the state agency services and those provided by county agencies and any recommendations on legislation to improve service.

THE HEARING will be held at 9:30 a.m. Feb. 17 on the 10th floor of the County Building in Waukegan. Those wishing to participate are asked to contact the county board office, 689-6336, to arrange for testimony.

"The hearing has been scheduled because it has become apparent that there is a great lack of communication between county and state services for young people," Mrs. Berliant said.

Committee Vice Chairman Harry Robin added, "We feel that the children and family services department has not responded to many of the agencies that deal with them. We want to know why and how we might improve the response."

"From all indications there is a great lack of communication and cooperation with other agencies," Robin said.

DENNIS BURNS, area administrator for the agency, was surprised by the criticism. "It's ironic. I have not received any communications that they have had problems in communicating with us," he said. "I have absolutely no knowledge of complaints from the committee."

Burns said the children and family services department handles from 900 to 900 cases at any given time in Lake and McHenry counties. The department has a client appeal system, Burns said but only one person has ever appealed the way a case has been handled.

There is no backlog of cases, Burns said, and added, "The only thing I can imagine they are referring to is that we have to set priorities so that those that need the service the most get it. The others are referred to other agencies."

Suits proposed to recoup funds lost to payoffs

nities for financial misconduct," Deputy State's Atty. Sheldon Gardner said Wednesday.

"The giving of favors (like preferential zoning after receipt of payoffs) were at the expense of the community," Gardner said. "The community may even be entitled to damages from builders which were caused by overzoning."

Gardner said he "will not recommend to my boss (Carey)" that the state's attorney seek damages for municipalities where local officials were convicted of corruption. "We're putting things together" for claims against other county officials who were convicted of extortion or bribery, he said.

"There's no reason why the corporation counsel or village attorney can't proceed," Gardner said.

Wheeling Village Board members met Monday with Village Atty. John Burke, who refused to discuss the meeting.

BUT TRUSTEE Charles Kerr told The Herald, "If they (former convicted officials) did in fact receive money and benefited at the taxpayers' expense, the taxpayers deserve to get it back. If the courts now feel the money is refundable to the municipality, then I'm in agreement with it and would like to see it."

Three Wheeling officials, former building director William Bieber, former trustee Michael Valenza and former trustee William Hart were convicted of corruption in U.S. District Court last year.

Bieber pleaded guilty to federal extortion, perjury and tax charges, served a prison term and was paroled in 1975. Valenza pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy to commit extortion, and Hart pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit extortion in June 1974.

James Stavros, a former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman who pleaded guilty to extorting more than $92,000 from three Wheeling developers, was not a "public official" and probably will not be named in a damage suit, The Herald learned.

JOB TRAINING is being offered to unemployed adults in suburban Cook County through a federally funded program administered by High School Dist. 214. Instruction is offered in machine operation, clerical skills, drafting and child care.

No money and out of work? Dist. 214 may help you out

If you are 18 or older and out of work, High School Dist. 214 has a program that could make your future a bit brighter.

The Project 210 Job Opportunity Training Center at Wheeling High School, 900 Elmhurst Rd., offers training in machine operation, clerical skills, drafting and child care. The center is sponsored by the Cook County Office of Manpower and is financed through the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

The program is designed for the "economically disadvantaged," said Martin Quinn, program counselor. Persons enrolled in the program usually have low incomes and are often the head of their household. Many do not have high school diplomas.

WHILE ENROLLED in the 12-week program, students are paid a "subsistence allowance" of $2.30 per hour, said Quinn, and receive supportive services to help them through the training program. The center may finance babysitting, supply eyeglasses, or provide personal, social and career counseling, he said.

Students attend classes for about 30 hours a week. Those who do not have a high school diploma attend 40 hours a week and receive extra schooling to help them finish their high school education through the General Education Development (GED) exam.

The center also offers a placement service to those who have gone through the training program. When the program was first offered in Dist. 214 last summer, 76 persons were enrolled and about 66 per cent were placed shortly after the end of the session. After they are placed, the center does a follow-up study on each trainee to insure they have been successful.

Quinn believes the program has been a success thus far. "With the unemployment rate as high as 12 per cent," the center is doing a good job in training and finding jobs for the unemployed, he said.

PEOPLE ARE REFERRED to the program through employment agencies, the Illinois State Employment Service and advertisements in local newspapers.

"This is not a give-away program," said Quinn. The requirements are fairly strict, he said. To be accepted into the program, a person must be a resident of suburban Cook County and at least 18 years of age, and he or she must have been out of work for at least a week and have no marketable skills.

The applicants are interviewed, and instructors of the training programs select those who are suited for the program. Attendance is taken daily, and the number of allowed absences is limited, said Quinn.

Classes meet at Wheeling and Hersey high schools from 2 to 10 p.m. five days a week. The winter session began this January, but persons interested in attending the program in the future should contact Quinn at 537-4886.

sales. "The Wizard" is one of the most popular games the music store has.

You can find him at Mother's.

Pinball wizard—where are you?

by DIANE MERMIGAS

All's well with the world for a pinball enthusiast who has $3 in quarters, a good machine with a lot of bumpers and a nonstop, stereophonic recording of the rock opera "Tommy" blaring in his ears.

It's no ordinary world you enter after stepping up to a pinball machine and springing the small, silver ball into action.

The rock rhythms bellow, the bells ring out, the flippers move back and forth wildly, and 1,000 points light up across the slanting board.

IS IT DELIRIUM? Maybe, of a mild sort.

But for at least 65 teen-agers who jam the pinball machine rooms at Hotter Than Mother's Music record store in Mount Prospect on weekend nights, it's an illuminated maze of challenge and excitement.

The music store, 2 E. Northwest Hwy., began featuring the pinball machines nearly two years ago as a way to lure teen-age patrons to the records.

Although the plan has resulted in increased record and cassette sales, "more people of all ages come into the store to play the machines more than anything else," said Mike Herman, store manager.

"Some are really good. Others keep trying to be," he said.

THEY HUDDLE around the amusement machines that are lined up like soldiers against the walls of the dimly lit rooms in the converted, two-story frame house. Each "pinball wizard" picks up the beat of rock tunes coming over the loud speaker system.

They probably envision themselves as the "Bally Table King" in the rock opera that spurred the current pinball madness: the story of the deaf, dumb and blind boy who was master of the machines.

It's knowing just how much to shake the machine without "tilting" it. It's knowing just when and how hard to hit the flippers. It's vibrations, sensations and feelings, said Dan Hochstatter, Arlington Heights.

He "loves" to play "The Wizard," the most popular of all the pinball machines, because "it has lots of bumpers and obstacles that help keep the ball in play," Hochstatter, a junior at Rolling Meadows High School, said.

HE AND HIS FRIENDS play four-at-a-time on the games. Some father-and-son teams play doubles. The pinball sharks, who can play a whole night on 50 cents and free replays, usually "operate" alone.

Some "regulars" come in after dinner at about 6 p.m. "and stay until the place closes at 1 a.m. the next morning," Herman said.

"Some guys spend as much as $10 or $15 on the machines in one night because they have the urge to keep on tryin'," he said.

And Hotter Than Mother's Music, not your typical music store, makes the playing more inviting by offering hot pizza and pop along with the continuous tunes every night of the week.

"There are some things we don't tolerate. There are some things we keep strict control of and that's why this has worked out so successfully," said Mike's brother, Bill, the store's owner.

Smoking, curfew laws and abusive language are prohibited in the store.

"WE DO IT BECAUSE this is a great kind of place for kids to be — they don't have anywhere else to go. It gives them what they are looking for — a place to meet and have fun," Herman said. Most patrons seem to agree.

A steady stream of area high schoolers, Harper College students and amusement game fans from as far as the Western suburbs play the machines daily. Many patrons make a point of coming in three or four times a week.

"It's just a lot of fun. I come in with my friends to practice. I like the Olympics game because you only need 80,000 points for a replay," said Larry Verhulst, Des Plaines.

The buzzer goes off, the digit counters clear themselves with a string of zeroes and the game is over — his points are lost.

"So, I'll try another game," he said, and moves on to "The Champ," or "Sky Jump" or "Monte Carlo." The pinball machines number 30 and each has a different name and way of winning.

"I'VE GOT A thousand more points to go," yells Hochstatter, "and then I'll be a wizard."

But, no one except the friend he's playing doubles with is listening. The room is ringing with sounds. It's a carnival for the senses.

It's the pinball phenomenon at its best.

Schedule told for new area bus line

Schedules have been completed for the proposed commuter bus service from Strathmore Grove in Buffalo Grove to the Chicago and North Western Ry. train station in Arlington Heights.

Edward Bailey, Regional Transportation Authority project director for the Buffalo Grove and Wheeling areas, is contacting several possible operators for the service. He hopes to have a formal agreement ready by Friday.

The transportation proposal received preliminary approval from the Buffalo Grove Village Board two weeks ago. Under the plan, the RTA would provide the commuter service on a six-month trial basis with full RTA funding.

IF THE TRIAL is successful, the RTA would continue to pay up to 45 per cent of the operating costs. The remainder of the costs would come from fares and possibly neighboring villages that also are served by the commuter runs, Bailey said.

Stephen Goldspiel, transportation committee member, said the commuter schedule was determined from monthly ticket holder information supplied by North Western officials.

"We wanted to get the most popular times as well as the first and last express trains morning and evening," Goldspiel said. "We had originally anticipated three buses, but when it was cut back to two we had to eliminate one train in the morning and evening rush hours."

Total riding time from Thompson Boulevard in Strathmore Grove to the train station in Arlington Heights is 35 minutes, Goldspiel said.

THE STRATHMORE Grove portion of the route was included early this week after transportation committee members bowed to requests from homeowners in the subdivision. A survey of Strathmore Grove and The Crossings indicated 12 riders in Strathmore Grove and only two in The Crossings, Goldspiel said. As a result, commuters in The Crossings will have to be picked up at Fremont Way and Arlington Heights Road instead of the clubhouse as originally planned Goldspiel said.

A daytime service to Harper College and Woodfield Shopping Center is now "cooking on the back burner," Goldspiel said. A lack of information on the best routes to and from the area and an uncertain ridership have resulted in a possible postponement of the daytime service until September, he said.

Howlett urged to tell role with steel firm

by WANDALYN RICE
and STEVE BROWN

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael Howlett should make a full explanation of his relationship with Sun Steel Co. of Chicago Heights, Michael Bakalis, one of Howlett's running mates, said Wednesday.

In an interview with The Herald, Bakalis, the regular Democratic candidate for state comptroller, said Howlett should resign his $15,000 post with Sun Steel if "there were even gray areas" which might be interpreted as a conflict of interest.

Howlett has come under increasing criticism for holding the post, which included the title of vice president, during the past 10 years while serving as state auditor and secretary of state.

HOWLETT HAS said there has been no conflict of interest between his work as a consultant to Sun Steel and his state offices. He also has said he never kept the job a secret because it has been listed each year since 1972 on the economic disclosure form required by law.

Bakalis, the former state school superintendent who is running on the ticket with Howlett in the March 16 primary in opposition to a slate backed by Gov. Daniel Walker, said he believes some of the news coverage of Howlett's Sun Steel job has been unfair. However, he said that while Howlett is technically correct that he never concealed the job, he thinks the secretary of state should have done more to reveal it.

"Apparently the information was always available for anybody who wanted to look for it," Bakalis said. "But I think we politicians have to do something extra to raise our credibility." Bakalis said he personally makes all his financial dealings public even though "I'm not comfortable with everyone knowing how much I have and how much I owe."

Bakalis said he will not call on Howlett to resign the job because "I don't know the nature of the arrangement." He said if Howlett is correct in saying he only offered management advice and that there was no chance for a conflict of interest, he should not have to resign.

"I FTHRE WERE areas (in the job) that were even gray (in terms of conflicts of interest), he should disassociate himself from the company," Bakalis said.

He said, "I think a clarification has to be done because people don't trust politicians."

In related developments, Ronald Stackler, a Democratic candidate for attorney general, said he was glad to see Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott decide to appoint a special prosecutor to look into the Howlett situation.

Stackler also cited several recent Illinois Appellate Court decisions which suggest that a court hearing should be held to determine if Howlett should repay the money he earned from Sun Steel to the state.

Stackler cited court cases involving

State Rep. Clyde Choate, D-Anna, and former Cook County Clerk Edward Barrett, which ruled that public officials may be liable to repay the state any financial gains they may have received because of conflict-of-interest situations.

A second investigation also was called for by Donald Page Moore, a Democratic candidate for Cook County state's attorney.

Moore said a county grand jury should investigate Howlett's outside job with Sun Steel. He also called for the Internal Revenue Service to audit Howlett tax returns and the returns of Sun Steel.

Chief Winter tells fire district trustees:

No paramedics without ambulance tax

Buffalo Grove Fire Chief Wayne Winter said Wednesday his department will not be able to meet state guidelines for paramedic service without an ambulance tax.

Winter told Wheeling Rural Fire Protection District trustees, "we've got to have this ambulance tax."

"Without it, we'll be back to the 'you call, we haul' service. There will be no telemetry, no drugs," he said.

Fire district trustees are planning an ambulance tax referendum later this year. A date for the referendum will be set at a special Feb. 18 meeting.

FIRE OFFICIALS are seeking the tax because general revenue funds can only be used for firefighting costs. The district wants to levy the tax to fund ambulance and paramedic service now required by the state. The Illinois Dept. of Public Health since 1974 has required that two paramedics answer ambulance calls. Previously, only one paramedic was required on calls.

Winter said if the fire district doesn't get the tax by September, there's "going to be rough going — some really rough going."

Fire District Trustee Lance Hooper said the fire district will have to go through with the ambulance tax referendum despite Wheeling village officials' discussions about withdrawing from the district.

"The district has to take action on the ambulance tax," he said.

Wheeling Village Trustee William Hein, who has proposed that his village withdraw from the fire district, said he feared the ambulance tax might endanger Wheeling's chances of dis-connecting from the district.

"WE NEED YOUR assurances that you won't oppose us going out of the district," he said.

Hein said many Wheeling residents face double taxation since village general tax funds are used to support the Wheeling Fire Dept. Most Wheeling residents, except for some 2,000 residents in the northeast section of town, also pay taxes to the rural fire protection district.

"Speaking for myself, I'd like to see Wheeling have a municipal department. We've got to give our people the best possible protection for the least amount of money," he said.

Hein also noted if the Wheeling Fire Dept. withdraws from the district, the 2,000 residents currently outside the district could be taxed. He said revenues from this area would be about $55,000.

Hein suggested officials of the fire district meet with Wheeling trustees to discuss the issue. The ambulance tax referendum will seek approval for a maximum tax of 25 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Density, ownership raise objections

Panel OKs 16-acre apartment plan

A controversial apartment development proposal won approval from the Buffalo Grove Plan Commission Wednesday night, but two commissioners expressed strong doubt about density and ownership in the project.

The 16-acre site owned by Miller Builders, with an option to purchase by developer Edward Schwartz, is near Mill Creek between Old Arlington Heights Road and Crofton Lane.

Schwartz's original plan for the property called for an 11-acre multi-family development and a 5-acre commercial development.

A MEETING with the plan panel Jan. 21 was attended by about 40 Mill Creek homeowners who objected to the proposed 5-acre commercial development and an alternate plan calling for 3-story apartments on the entire 16 acres.

Schwartz's revised plan calls for construction of seven 2-story apartment buildings directly behind the Mill Creek subdivision to serve as a buffer between the single-family homes and 42 three-story units. A total of 308 units will be constructed, said architect Jerome Solton.

Objections to Schwartz's proposal centered around the high density of the units and the fact all 18 six-unit buildings would be individually owned.

"We've got a problem with 18 different owners," said Comr. Rod Jacobs. "There is no guarantee that the owners will live on the premises and keep up the building."

COMR. HOWARD Mendenhall said Schwartz "laid out (the plan) and got in as many units as you could—you really didn't do much with this."

Solton said 51 per cent of the 16 acres would be a landscaped area, and said only 16 per cent of the land would be used for apartments.

"There's so much talk that we are crowding the land, but we're nowhere near the amount of land the village allows us to build on," he said.

Solton also said Schwartz will abide by the village's development ordinance, which has stringent requirements regarding footage between developments and adjoining property.

Several residents objected to the proposed three-story apartment buildings. A Mill Creek resident said, "Even though this plan is a compromise, most of us are still very much opposed to any three-story buildings here."

Comr. Jacobs encouraged residents to attend the village board's public hearing Feb. 23.

"My advice to the people here is to bring pressure on the village board. If there's enough pressure, something can be done."

Car, pet tags at village hall

The Buffalo Grove Village Hall will be open until 7 p.m. today for vehicle stickers and pet registration.

The village hall also will be open until 7 p.m. on Feb. 12. Deadline for vehicle registration is Feb. 15. The village hall is at 30 Raupp Blvd.

Patty a robber or victim of terror group?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst, a tiny, motionless girl in court, went on trial Wednesday with the prosecution picturing her as a cunning bank robber and the defense claiming she was "broken" by the same brutal terror used on prisoners of war.

Exactly two years after she was kidnapped, a jury was seated and opening arguments begun in a case boiling down to the question of whether the 21-year-old heiress joined her revolutionary captors or was driven near madness by fear.

Famed criminal lawyer F. Lee Bailey told the jury of seven women and five men that Patricia was kept in a closet without lights for six to nine weeks, sexually abused and finally convinced she would be killed by the FBI if she attempted to surrender. She was forced to go to the bank, Bailey said, by her captors who wanted to show her conversion — "to take her in like a prize pig and place her directly before a camera."

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr., in a low key address, made no mention of brainwashing but said the prosecution would present evidence that Miss Hearst voluntarily joined the bank holdup and afterwards made tapes boasting about it and saying she had joined the Symbionese Liberation Army.

A bank guard will testify, Browning said, that he heard Patty call out to employees and personnel in the bank lobby: "The first person to move gets his m—head blown off."

Bailey told the jury that the girl was "a prisoner of war for 20 months."

JOB TRAINING is being offered to unemployed adults in suburban Cook County through a federally funded program administered by High School Dist. 214. Instruction is offered in machine operation, clerical skills, drafting and child care.

No money and out of work? Dist. 214 may help you out

If you are 18 or older and out of work, High School Dist. 214 has a program that could make your future a bit brighter.

The Project 210 Job Opportunity Training Center at Wheeling High School, 900 Elmhurst Rd., offers training in machine operation, clerical skills, drafting and child care. The center is sponsored by the Cook County Office of Manpower and is financed through the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

The program is designed for the "economically disadvantaged," said Martin Quinn, program counselor. Persons enrolled in the program usually have low incomes and are often the head of their household. Many do not have high school diplomas.

WHILE ENROLLED in the 12-week program, students are paid a "subsistence allowance" of $2.30 per hour, said Quinn, and receive supportive services to help them through the training program. The center may finance baby-sitting, supply eyeglasses, or provide personal, social and career counseling, he said.

Students attend classes for about 30 hours a week. Those who do not have a high school diploma attend 40 hours a week and receive extra schooling to help them finish their high school education through the General Education Development (GED) exam.

The center also offers a placement service to those who have gone through the training program. When the program was first offered in Dist. 214 last summer, 76 persons were enrolled and about 65 per cent were placed shortly after the end of the session. After they are placed, the center does a follow-up study on each trainee to insure they have been successful.

Quinn believes the program has been a success thus far. "With the unemployment rate as high as 12 per cent," the center is doing a good job in training and finding jobs for the unemployed, he said.

PEOPLE ARE REFERRED to the program through employment agencies, the Illinois State Employment Service and advertisements in local newspapers.

"This is not a give-away program" said Quinn. The requirements are fairly strict, he said. To be accepted into the program, a person must be a resident of suburban Cook County and at least 18 years of age, and he or she must have been out of work for at least a week and have no marketable skills.

The applicants are interviewed, and instructors of the training programs select those who are suited for the program. Attendance is taken daily, and the number of allowed absences is limited, said Quinn.

Classes meet at Wheeling and Hershey high schools from 2 to 10 p.m. five days a week. The winter session began this January, but persons interested in attending the program in the future should contact Quinn at 537-4900.

Suits to recoup extortion funds?

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT
and LINDA PUNCH

Dozens of former county and local officials convicted of extortion may return to court to answer demands by local and county attorneys for damages and recovery of payoff and shakedown funds. The Herald has learned.

Wheeling Village Board members and a spokesman for State's Atty. Bernard Carey said they are considering filing suit to recover funds lost in the payoffs and shakedowns.

At least three former Wheeling village officials, nine former employees of the county assessor's office, a former county board member, a former county clerk and a former county zoning administrator may be named in separate suits that could seek millions of dollars in damages.

WHEELING VILLAGE officials met Monday in a "closed" meeting to discuss collection of damages from former village officials who demanded payoffs from local builders.

In Hoffman Estates, where six former village officials pleaded guilty in 1974 to federal extortion and tax fraud charges, Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said a suit is not planned because developer Kaufman & Broad has paid $75,000 in damages.

Carey's staff began "preparation of approximately a dozen cases" last month after winning a precedent-setting verdict against former County Clerk Edward Barrett in the Illinois Appellate Court, a spokesman said.

Barrett was convicted in U.S. District Court in 1973 of extorting $180,000 from a firm that sold voting machines to Cook County.

CAREY ASKED Circuit Court Judge Walter P. Dahl to order payment of more than $180,000 by Barrett to the county because the former clerk abused his "position of trust by employing it to seek secret personal gains from the Shoup Voting Machine Corp."

Dahl dismissed the case, but the Illinois Appellate Court reversed the decision in December. Barrett has requested a rehearing.

"As an elected public official, he (Barrett) held a position of the highest public trust. Barrett acted as the county's agent," the Appellate Court stated. Because Barrett accepted the $180,000, "that benefit may be recovered from him" by the county, the court said.

In a similar downstate suit last year, the Illinois Appellate Court in the 4th Dist. refused to dismiss a taxpayers' suit, which asked damages from former state legislators who purchased race track stock at below-market prices from track owners. The case has been appealed to the Illinois Supreme Court.

"THIS IS A NEW area that holds public officials liable to their communities for financial misconduct," Deputy State's Atty. Sheldon Gardner said Wednesday.

"The giving of favors (like preferential zoning after receipt of payoffs) were at the expense of the community," Gardner said. "The community may even be entitled to damages from builders which were caused by overzoning."

Gardner said he "will not recommend to my boss (Carey)" that the state's attorney seek damages for municipalities where local officials were convicted of corruption. "We're putting things together" for claims against other county officials who were convicted of extortion or bribery, he said.

"There's no reason why the corporation counsel or village attorney can't proceed," Gardner said.

Wheeling Village Board members met Monday with Village Atty. John Burke, who refused to discuss the meeting.

BUT TRUSTEE Charles Kerr told The Herald, "If they (former convicted officials) did in fact receive money and benefited at the taxpayers' expense, the taxpayers deserve to get it back. If the courts now feel the money is refundable to the municipality, then I'm in agreement with it and would like to see it."

Three Wheeling officials, former building director William Bieber, former trustee Michael Valenza and former trustee William Hart were convicted of corruption in U.S. District Court last year.

Bieber pleaded guilty to federal extortion, perjury and tax charges, served a prison term and was paroled in 1975. Valenza pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy to commit extortion, and Hart pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit extortion in June 1974.

James Stavros, a former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman who pleaded guilty to extorting more than $92,000 from three Wheeling developers, was not a "public official" and probably will not be named in a damage suit, The Herald learned.

"WE'LL PROBABLY look to see what they (Bieber, Valenza and Hart) pleaded guilty to and if enough money is involved to make it worthwhile," Trustee Otis Hedlund said. "We're aware of the decisions and the position the village finds itself in, but we've taken no action yet."

"Monies that were given like that could have come to the village," Trustee William Hein said. "If the village has any monetary income coming, I think we should get it."

In Hoffman Estates, six former village officials pleaded guilty in 1974 to charges of corruption. The payoffs involved Kaufman & Broad Inc. and the Barrington Square development.

Kaufman & Broad paid the village $75,000 as part of an out-of-court settlement in 1975 after Hoffman Estates officials refused to approve building permits for completion of the project. Kaufman & Broad also agreed to reduce building density for the project.

"We recovered a considerable amount of money," Hayter told The Herald Wednesday. "We got a cash donation. If we had to go to court it may cost more in individual cases than we could get back. Most of those people are long gone."

Move over Elton—we've got our own pinball wizard

by DIANE MERMIGAS

All's well with the world for a pinball enthusiast who has $3 in quarters, a good machine with a lot of bumpers and a nonstop, stereophonic recording of the rock opera "Tommy" blaring in his ears.

It's no ordinary world you enter after stepping up to a pinball machine and springing the small, silver ball into action.

The rock rhythms bellow, the bells ring out, the flippers move back and forth wildly, and 1,000 points light up across the delirious board.

IS IT DELIRIUM? Maybe, of a mild sort.

But for at least 65 teen-agers who jam the pinball machine rooms at Hotter Than Mother's Music record store in Mount Prospect on weekend nights, it's an illuminated maze of challenge and excitement.

The music store, 2 E. Northwest Hwy., began featuring the pinball machines nearly two years ago as a way to lure teen-age patrons to the records.

Although the plan has resulted in increased record and cassette sales, "more people of all ages come into the store to play the machines more than anything else," said Mike Herman, store manager.

"Some are really good. Others keep trying to be," he said.

THEY HUDDLE around the amusement machines that are lined up like soldiers against the walls of the dimly lit rooms in the converted, two-story frame house. Each "pinball wizard" picks up the beat of rock tunes coming over the loud speaker system.

They probably envision themselves as the "Bally Table King" in the rock opera that spurred the current pinball madness; the story of the deaf, dumb and blind boy who was master of the machines.

It's knowing just how much to shake the machine without "tilting" it. It's knowing just when and how hard to hit the flippers. It's vibrations, sensations and feelings, said Dan Hochstatter, Arlington Heights.

He "loves" to play "The Wizard," the most popular of all the pinball machines, because "it has lots of bumpers and obstacles that help keep the ball in play," Hochstatter, a junior at Rolling Meadows High School, said.

HE AND HIS FRIENDS play four-at-a-time on the games. Some father-and-son teams play doubles. The pinball sharks, who can play a whole night on 50 cents and free replays, usually "operate" alone.

Some "regulars" come in after dinner at about 6 p.m. "and stay until the place closes at 1 a.m. the next morning," Herman said.

"Some guys spend as much as $10 or $15 on the machines in one night because they have the urge to keep on tryin'," he said.

And Hotter Than Mother's Music, not your typical music store, makes the playing more inviting by offering hot pizza and pop along with the continuous tunes every night of the week.

"There are some things we don't tolerate. There are some things we keep strict control of and that's why this has worked out so successfully," said Mike's brother, Bill, the store's owner.

Smoking, curfew laws and abusive language are prohibited in the store.

"WE DO IT BECAUSE this is a great kind of place for kids to be—they don't have anywhere else to go. It gives them what they are looking for—a place to meet and have fun," Herman said. Most patrons seem to agree.

A steady stream of area high schoolers, Harper College students and amusement game fans from as far as the Western suburbs play the machines daily. Many patrons make a point of coming in three or four times a week.

"It's just a lot of fun. I come in with my friends to practice. I like the Olympics game because you only need 80,000 points for a replay," said Larry Verhulst, Des Plaines.

The buzzer goes off, the digit counters clear themselves with a string of zeroes and the game is over—his points are lost.

"So, I'll try another game," he said, and moves on to "The Champ" or "Sky Jump" or "Monte Carlo." The pinball machines number 30 and each has a different name and way of winning.

"I'VE GOT A thousand more points to go," yells Hochstatter, "and then I'll be a wizard."

But, no one except the friend he's playing doubles with is listening. The room is ringing with sounds. It's a carnival for the senses.

It's the pinball phenomenon at its best.

State youth office faces county neglect hearing

A hearing to investigate charges that the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services is "unresponsive and uncooperative" will be held Feb. 17 by the Lake County Board's law and judicial committee.

Invitations to attend the hearings have been sent to state and local government officials and public and private agencies which deal with the department.

"We are also hoping that parents and young people served by the state agency will attend," said Millicent Berliant, law and judicial committee chairman. "It is important that they have the opportunity to present their views and opinions as to the efficiency of this agency."

Mrs. Berliant said the hearings would deal with the quality and quantity of services provided by the department, the relationship between the state agency services and those provided by county agencies and any recommendations on legislation to improve service.

THE HEARING will be held at 9:30 a.m. Feb. 17 on the 10th floor of the County Building in Waukegan. Those wishing to participate are asked to contact the county board office, 689-6336, to arrange for testimony.

"The hearing has been scheduled because it has become apparent that there is a great lack of communication between county and state services for young people," Mrs. Berliant said.

Committee Vice Chairman Harry Robin added, "We feel that the children and family services department has not responded to many of the agencies that deal with them. We want to know why and how we might improve the response."

"From all indications there is a great lack of communication and cooperation with other agencies," Robin said.

DENNIS BURNS, area administrator for the agency, was surprised by the criticism. "It's ironic. I have not received any communications that they have had problems in communicating with us," he said. "I have absolutely no knowledge of complaints from the committee."

Burns said the children and family services department handles from 900 to 900 cases at any given time in Lake and McHenry counties. The department has a client appeal system Burns said but only one person has ever appealed the way a case has been handled.

There is no backlog of cases, Burns said, and added, "The only thing I can imagine they are referring to is that we have to set priorities so that those that need the service the most get it. The others are referred to other agencies."

Howlett urged to tell role with steel firm

by WANDALYN RICE
and STEVE BROWN

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael Howlett should make a full explanation of his relationship with Sun Steel Co. of Chicago Heights, Michael Bakalis, one of Howlett's running mates, said Wednesday.

In an interview with The Herald, Bakalis, the regular Democratic candidate for state comptroller, said Howlett should resign his $15,000 post with Sun Steel if "there were even gray areas" which might be interpreted as a conflict of interest.

Howlett has come under increasing criticism for holding the post, which included the title of vice president, during the past 10 years while serving as state auditor and secretary of state.

HOWLETT HAS said there has been no conflict of interest between his work as a consultant to Sun Steel and his state offices. He also has said he never kept the job a secret because it has been listed each year since 1972 on the economic disclosure form required by law.

Bakalis, the former state school superintendent who is running on the ticket with Howlett in the March 16 primary in opposition to a slate backed by Gov. Daniel Walker, said he believes some of the news coverage of Howlett's Sun Steel job has been unfair. However, he said that while Howlett is technically correct that he never concealed the job, he thinks the secretary of state should have done more to reveal it.

"Apparently the information was always available for anybody who wanted to look for it," Bakalis said. "But I think we politicians have to do something extra to raise our credibility."

Bakalis said he personally makes all his financial dealings public even though "I'm not comfortable with everyone knowing how much I have and how much I owe."

Bakalis said he will not call on Howlett to resign the job because "I don't know the nature of the arrangement." He said if Howlett is correct in saying he only offered management advice and that there was no chance for a conflict of interest, he should not have to resign.

"I FTHRE WERE areas (in the job) that were even gray (in terms of conflicts of interest), he should disassociate himself from the company," Bakalis said.

He said, "I think a clarification has to be done because people don't trust politicians."

In related developments, Ronald Steckler, a Democratic candidate for attorney general, said he was glad to see Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott decide to appoint a special prosecutor to look into the Howlett situation.

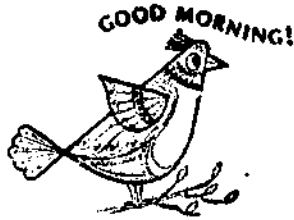

Steckler also cited several recent Illinois Appellate Court decisions which suggest that a court hearing should be held to determine if Howlett should repay the money he earned from Sun Steel to the state.

Steckler cited court cases involving

State Rep. Clyde Choate, D-Anna, and former Cook County Clerk Edward Barrett, which ruled that public officials may be liable to repay the state any financial gains they may have received because of conflict-of-interest situations.

A second investigation also was called for by Donald Page Moore, a Democratic candidate for Cook County state's attorney.

Moore said a county grand jury should investigate Howlett's outside job with Sun Steel. He also called for the Internal Revenue Service to audit Howlett tax returns and the returns of Sun Steel.

Officials weigh fire district for Itasca Meadows

by TOM VON MALDER

Elk Grove Township officials will study how the Itasca Meadows Farm subdivision can be included in a township fire protection district.

The approximate 50 homeowners in the unincorporated subdivision currently must contract individually with Elk Grove Village for fire services. However, if the area is made part of a fire district, the residents would be taxed for the service.

All but four of the homeowners now contract with the village.

Fire service for the subdivision south of Biesterfeld Road between Elsner and Leicester roads became a controversy in January 1974 when a resident, Jean Pettee, died after a village ambulance dispatched to her aid was recalled. The recall was ordered because the Pettees had not contracted for fire service.

C. Moder, subdivision president, said Wednesday of the fire protection district idea. "That'd be great. It would save me a lot of trouble collecting the money."

Moder said most of his neighbors also would favor being in a fire protection district. "We tried to get it years ago, but the township said they could not do it. I didn't understand why."

Township Supervisor Richard M. Hall, who became a township auditor just after the homeowners group's 1968 request, said the township did not have the power to appoint fire protection district trustees until recent years.

"We didn't have the same kind of authority then," he said, because district trustees previously were appointed by the Circuit Court. Hall said the township definitely plans to follow up on getting the subdivision into a fire protection district.

THE VILLAGE'S ambulance and fire policy was changed after the incident to allow emergency service even if it had not been purchased.

"We'd be very interested," Edward

Patty a robber or victim of terror group?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst, a tiny, motionless girl in court, went on trial Wednesday with the prosecution picturing her as a cunning bank robber and the defense claiming she was "broken" by the same brutal terror used on prisoners of war.

Exactly two years after she was kidnapped, a jury was seated and opening arguments begun in a case boiling down to the question of whether the 21-year-old heiress joined her revolutionary captors or was driven near madness by fear.

Famed criminal lawyer F. Lee Bailey told the jury of seven women and five men that Patricia was kept in a closet without lights for six to nine weeks, sexually abused and finally convinced she would be killed by the FBI if she attempted to surrender. She was forced to go to the bank, Bailey said, by her captors who wanted to show her conversion — "to take her in like a prize pig and place her directly before a camera."

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr., in a low key address, made no mention of brainwashing but said the prosecution would present evidence that Miss Hearst voluntarily joined the bank holdup and afterwards made tapes boasting about it and saying she had joined the Symbionese Liberation Army.

A bank guard will testify, Browning said, that he heard Patty call out to employees and personnel in the bank lobby: "The first person to move gets his n—head blown off."

Bailey told the jury that the girl was "a prisoner of war for 29 months."

THE PROPOSAL came up this week when the township board was told it would have to appoint three trustees to the Forest View Fire Protection District, an existing district.

Township Trustee Bernard F. Lee suggested the Itasca Meadows Farm subdivision be included in the Forest View district. The subdivision, however, is not contiguous to the district, which may prohibit the annexation.

The subdivision could form a new fire district, which the township could administer. At least 50 residents, or a majority if there are less than 100 total residents, must sign a petition for the change. Once presented to the Circuit Court, an election would be held, with residents deciding if they should establish the district.

Residents of the area would pay the same fee, about $42 per year, whether they were in a fire district or contracting individually with the fire department.

Village land for township facility

2-acre donation for mental health

Elk Grove Township has agreed to accept two acres from Elk Grove Village for a mental health facility.

"Everything is looking good," Township Trustee Bernard F. Lee said of the plans for the $600,000 facility for the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center. He added, though, that some problems have to be worked out between the two townships and the village before final Elk Grove Township action is taken.

SBL Corp. has given the two acres, at Nerge and Rohlfing roads, to the village. The village board last week agreed to turn the property over to Elk Grove Township for the mental health center.

The village board also stipulated that the land revert back to the village if it is not used for a mental health center facility.

Lee said the townships have yet to determine how the land will be controlled and how it will be leased to the mental health center.

TOWNSHIP SUPERVISOR Richard M. Hall said Schaumburg Township officials have a problem because they will be spending money for a building that will not be in their township.

Each township has agreed to pledge

$100,000 toward the project. The mental health center will apply for a federal grant of between $300,000 and $360,000, leaving the remaining $100,000 to be raised through local fund-raising efforts.

Some Schaumburg Township officials have questioned the expenditure because the center would be outside the township.

Hall said, "We would be morally obligated to work with Schaumburg Township" if the mental health district were to split in two and a Schaumburg Township mental health center were built.

Police learned the woman's identity after finding her husband during a house to house check of the neighborhood.

Romer was neither charged by police nor injured in the accident.

Motorist not charged in fatality

An Elk Grove Village woman was fatally injured Tuesday when she was struck and run over by a motorist on Toune Road near Center Street in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

She was identified as Christine Schneberger, 66, of 627 Center St. She died at Alexian Brothers Medical Center about 8:20 p.m.

Cook County Sheriff's police said the woman was walking along Toune Road shortly before 8 p.m. when struck by an auto driven by Raymond G. Romer, 36, address unknown.

The woman apparently crossed into the auto's path and was struck by the right side of the auto, knocked into the air and run over, police said.

Police learned the woman's identity after finding her husband during a house to house check of the neighborhood.

Romer was neither charged by police nor injured in the accident.

JOB TRAINING is being offered to unemployed adults in suburban Cook County through a federally funded program administered by High School Dist. 214. Instruction is offered in machine operation, clerical skills, drafting and child care.

Dist. 214 offers training to jobless

If you are 18 or older and out of work, High School Dist. 214 has a program that could make your future a bit brighter.

The Project 210 Job Opportunity Training Center at Wheeling High School, 900 Elmhurst Rd., offers training in machine operation, clerical skills, drafting and child care. The center is sponsored by the Cook County Office of Manpower and is financed through the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

The program is designed for the "economically disadvantaged," said Martin Quinn, program counselor. Persons enrolled in the program usually have low incomes and are often the head of their household. Many do not have high school diplomas.

WHILE ENROLLED in the 12-week program, students are paid a "subsistence allowance" of $2.30 per hour, said Quinn, and receive supportive services to help them through the training program. The center may finance babysitting, supply eyeglasses, or provide personal, social and career counseling, he said.

Students attend classes for about 30 hours a week. Those who do not have a high school diploma attend 40 hours a week and receive extra schooling to help them finish their high school education through the General Education Development (GED) exam.

The center also offers a placement service to those who have gone through the training program. When the program was first offered in Dist. 214 last summer, 76 persons were enrolled and about 65 per cent were placed shortly after the end of the session. After they are placed, the center does a follow-up study on each trainee to insure they have been successful.

Quinn believes the program has been a success thus far. "With the unemployment rate as high as 12 per cent," the center is doing a good job in training and finding jobs for the unemployed, he said.

PEOPLE ARE REFERRED to the program through employment agencies, the Illinois State Employment Service and advertisements in local newspapers.

"This is not a give-away program" said Quinn. The requirements are fairly strict, he said. To be accepted into the program, a person must be a resident of suburban Cook County and at least 18 years of age, and he or she must have been out of work for at least a week and have no marketable skills.

The applicants are interviewed, and instructors of the training programs select those who are suited for the program. Attendance is taken daily, and the number of allowed absences is limited, said Quinn.

Classes meet at Wheeling and Hershey high schools from 2 to 10 p.m. five days a week. The winter session began this January, but persons interested in attending the program in the future should contact Quinn at 537-4900.

Lawyers won't let Hofert talk to teen shot by cop

Attorneys for Timothy Engelson, 18, who was shot by police during an accident investigation last April in Elk Grove Village, have refused to allow Village Atty. Edward Hofert to question the youth.

Engelson, 308 Hi-Lusi Ave., Mount Prospect, has filed a $1 million damage suit against Patrolman William Jaworski in connection with the incident.

"They've refused me from talking with the boy," Hofert said Wednesday. "I will have to work with the insurance company to get a deposition the boy made."

Hofert said the insurance company has indicated a willingness to cooperate. "It will limit me further, though," he said.

The attorney hoped for an "investigative conference" with Engelson to help prepare a defense in the lawsuit and to help form his recommendation whether Jaworski should be returned to duty or face departmental misconduct charges.

In the 10 months since the incident, Jaworski has been relieved of duty, but has continued to draw his full $1,328 monthly pay.

Engelson's civil suit charges Jaworski with battery, negligence and willful and wanton misconduct. Engelson was shot in the stomach by Jaworski in a scuffle during the traffic accident investigation.

No hearing date has been set for the damage suit.

Kindergarten topic of Dist. 54 meeting

The kindergarten program will be a subject of discussion at the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education meeting tonight.

Len Sirotski, the district's kindergarten coordinator, will present a summary of the program's progress this year.

The meeting will be at 8 p.m. at Keller Junior High, 820 Bode Rd., Schaumburg. The meeting is open to the public.

Pinball wizard—where are you?

by DIANE MERMIGAS

All's well with the world for a pinball enthusiast who has $3 in quarters, a good machine with a lot of bumpers and a nonstop, stereophonic recording of the rock opera "Tommy" blaring in his ears.

It's no ordinary world you enter after stepping up to a pinball machine and springing the small, silver ball into action.

The rock rhythms bellow, the bells ring out, the flippers move back and forth wildly, and 1,000 points light up across the slanting board.

IS IT DELIRIUM? Maybe, of a mild sort.

But for at least 65 teen-agers who jam the pinball machine rooms at Hotter Than Mother's Music record store in Mount Prospect on weekend nights, it's an illuminated maze of challenge and excitement.

The music store, 2 E. Northwest Hwy., began featuring the pinball machines nearly two years ago as a way to lure teen-age patrons to the records.

Although the plan has resulted in increased record and cassette sales, "more people of all ages come into the store to play the machines more than anything else," said Mike Herman, store manager.

"Some are really good. Others keep trying to be," he said.

THEY HUDDLE around the amusement machines that are lined up like soldiers against the walls of the dimly lit rooms in the converted, two-story frame house. Each "pinball wizard" picks up the beat of rock tunes coming over the loud speaker system.

They probably envision themselves as the "Bally Table King" in the rock opera that spurred the current pinball madness; the story of the deaf, dumb and blind boy who was master of the machines.

It's knowing just how much to shake the machine without "tilting" it. It's knowing just when and how hard to hit the flippers. It's vibrations, sensations and feelings, said Dan Hochstatter, Arlington Heights.

He "loves" to play "The Wizard," the most popular of all the pinball machines, because "it has lots of bumpers and obstacles that help keep the ball in play," Hochstatter, a junior at Rolling Meadows High School, said.

HE AND HIS FRIENDS play four-at-a-time on the games. Some father-and-son teams play doubles. The pinball sharks, who can play a whole night on 50 cents and free replays, usually "operate" alone.

Some "regulars" come in after dinner at about 6 p.m. "and stay until the place closes at 1 a.m. the next morning," Herman said.

"Some guys spend as much as $10 or $15 on the machines in one night because they have the urge to keep on tryin," he said.

And Hotter Than Mother's Music, not your typical music store, makes the playing more inviting by offering hot pizza and pop along with the continuous tunes every night of the week.

"There are some things we don't tolerate. There are some things we keep strict control of and that's why this has worked out so successfully," said Mike's brother, Bill, the store's owner.

Smoking, curfew laws and abusive language are prohibited in the store.

"WE DO IT BECAUSE this is a great kind of place for kids to be — they don't have anywhere else to go. It gives them what they are looking for — a place to meet and have fun," Herman said. Most patrons seem to agree.

A steady stream of area high schoolers, Harper College students and amusement game fans from as far as the Western suburbs play the machines daily. Many patrons make a point of coming in three or four times a week.

"It's just a lot of fun. I come in with my friends to practice. I like the Olympics game because you only need 80,000 points for a replay," said Larry Verhulst, Des Plaines.

The buzzer goes off, the digit counters clear themselves with a string of zeroes and the game is over — his points are lost.

"So, I'll try another game," he said, and moves on to "The Champ," or "Sky Jump" or "Monte Carlo." The pinball machines number 30 and each has a different name and way of winning.

"I'VE GOT A thousand more points to go," yells Hochstatter, "and then I'll be a wizard."

But, no one except the friend he's playing doubles with is listening. The room is ringing with sounds. It's a carnival for the senses.

It's the pinball phenomenon at its best.

Suits to recoup extortion funds?

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT
and LINDA PUNCH

Dozens of former county and local officials convicted of extortion may return to court to answer demands by local and county attorneys for damages and recovery of payoff and shakedown funds. The Herald has learned.

Wheeling Village Board members and a spokesman for State's Atty. Bernard Carey said they are considering filing suit to recover funds lost in the payoffs and shakedowns.

At least three former Wheeling village officials, nine former employees of the county assessor's office, a former county board member, a former county clerk and a former county zoning administrator may be named in separate suits that could seek millions of dollars in damages.

WHEELING VILLAGE officials met Monday in a "closed" meeting to discuss collection of damages from former village officials who demanded payoffs from local builders.

In Hoffman Estates, where six former village officials pleaded guilty in 1974 to federal extortion and tax fraud charges, Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said a suit is not planned because developer Kaufman & Broad has paid $75,000 in damages.

Carey's staff began "preparation of approximately a dozen cases" last month after winning a precedent-setting verdict against former County Clerk Edward Barrett in the Illinois Appellate Court, a spokesman said.

Barrett was convicted in U.S. District Court in 1973 of extorting $180,000 from a firm that sold voting machines to Cook County.

CAREY ASKED Circuit Court Judge Walter P. Dahl to order payment of more than $180,000 by Barrett to the county because the former clerk abused his "position of trust by employing it to seek secret personal gains from the Shoup Voting Machine Corp."

Dahl dismissed the case, but the Illinois Appellate Court reversed the decision in December. Barrett has requested a rehearing.

"As an elected public official, he (Barrett) held a position of the highest public trust. Barrett acted as the county's agent," the Appellate Court stated. Because Barrett accepted the $180,000, "that benefit may be recovered from him" by the county, the court said.

In a similar downstate suit last year, the Illinois Appellate Court in the 4th Dist. refused to dismiss a taxpayers' suit, which asked damages from former state legislators who purchased race track stock at below-market prices from track owners. The case has been appealed to the Illinois Supreme Court.

"THIS IS A NEW area that holds public officials liable to their communities for financial misconduct," Deputy State's Atty. Sheldon Gardner said Wednesday.

"The giving of favors (like preferential zoning after receipt of payoffs) were at the expense of the community," Gardner said. "The community may even be entitled to damages from builders which were caused by overzoning."

Gardner said he "will not recommend to my boss (Carey)" that the state's attorney seek damages for municipalities where local officials were convicted of corruption. "We're putting things together" for claims against other county officials who were convicted of extortion or bribery, he said.

"There's no reason why the corporation counsel or village attorney can't proceed," Gardner said.

Wheeling Village Board members met Monday with Village Atty. John Burke, who refused to discuss the meeting.

BUT TRUSTEE Charles Kerr told The Herald, "If they (former convicted officials) did in fact receive money and benefited at the taxpayers' expense, the taxpayers deserve to get it back. If the courts now feel the money is refundable to the municipality, then I'm in agreement with it and would like to see it."

Three Wheeling officials, former building director William Bieber, former trustee Michael Valenza and former trustee William Hart were convicted of corruption in U.S. District Court last year.

Bieber pleaded guilty to federal extortion, perjury and tax charges, served a prison term and was paroled in 1975. Valenza pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy to commit extortion, and Hart pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit extortion in June 1974.

James Stavros, a former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman who pleaded guilty to extorting more than $92,000 from three Wheeling developers, was not a "public official" and probably will not be named in a damage suit, The Herald learned.

"WE'LL PROBABLY look to see what they (Bieber, Valenza and Hart) pleaded guilty to and if enough money is involved to make it worthwhile," Trustee Otis Hedlund said. "We're aware of the decisions and the position the village finds itself in, but we've taken no action yet."

"Monies that were given like that could have come to the village," Trustee William Hein said. "If the village has any monetary income coming, I think we should get it."

In Hoffman Estates, six former village officials pleaded guilty in 1974 to charges of corruption. The payoffs involved Kaufman & Broad Inc. and the Barrington Square development.

Kaufman & Broad paid the village $75,000 as part of an out-of-court settlement in 1975 after Hoffman Estates officials refused to approve building permits for completion of the project. Kaufman & Broad also agreed to reduce building density for the project.

"We recovered a considerable amount of money," Hayter told The Herald Wednesday. "We got a cash donation. If we had to go to court it may cost more in individual cases than we could get back. Most of those people are long gone."

Howlett urged to tell role with steel firm

by WANDALYN RICE
and STEVE BROWN

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael Howlett should make a full explanation of his relationship with Sun Steel Co. of Chicago Heights, Michael Bakalis, one of Howlett's running mates, said Wednesday.

In an interview with The Herald, Bakalis, the regular Democratic candidate for state comptroller, said Howlett should resign his $15,000 post with Sun Steel if "there were even gray areas" which might be interpreted as a conflict of interest.

Howlett has come under increasing criticism for holding the post, which included the title of vice president, during the past 10 years while serving as state auditor and secretary of state.

HOWLETT HAS said there has been no conflict of interest between his work as a consultant to Sun Steel and his state offices. He also has said he never kept the job a secret because it has been listed each year since 1972 on the economic disclosure form required by law.

Bakalis, the former state school superintendent who is running on the ticket with Howlett in the March 16 primary in opposition to a slate backed by Gov. Daniel Walker, said he believes some of the news coverage of Howlett's Sun Steel job has been unfair. However, he said that while Howlett is technically correct that he never concealed the job, he thinks the secretary of state should have done more to reveal it.

"Apparently the information was always available for anybody who wanted to look for it," Bakalis said. "But I think we politicians have to do something extra to raise our credibility." Bakalis said he personally makes all his financial dealings public even though "I'm not comfortable with everyone knowing how much I have and how much I owe."

Bakalis said he will not call on Howlett to resign the job because "I don't know the nature of the arrangement." He said if Howlett is correct in saying he only offered management advice and that there was no chance for a conflict of interest, he should not have to resign.

"I FTHRE WERE areas (in the job) that were even gray (in terms of conflicts of interest), he should disassociate himself from the company," Bakalis said.

He said, "I think a clarification has to be done because people don't trust politicians."

In related developments, Ronald Stackler, a Democratic candidate for attorney general, said he was glad to see Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott decide to appoint a special prosecutor to look into the Howlett situation.

Stackler also cited several recent Illinois Appellate Court decisions which suggest that a court hearing should be held to determine if Howlett should repay the money he earned from Sun Steel to the state.

Stackler cited court cases involving

State Rep. Clyde Choate, D-Anna, and former Cook County Clerk Edward Barrett, which ruled that public officials may be liable to repay the state any financial gains they may have received because of conflict-of-interest situations.

A second investigation also was called for by Donald Page Moore, a Democratic candidate for Cook County state's attorney.

Moore said a county grand jury should investigate Howlett's outside job with Sun Steel. He also called for the Internal Revenue Service to audit Howlett tax returns and the returns of Sun Steel.

Kindergarten topic of Dist. 54 meeting

The kindergarten program will be a subject of discussion at the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education meeting tonight.

Len Sirotski, the district's kindergarten coordinator, will present a summary of the program's progress this year.

The meeting will be at 8 p.m. at Keller Junior High, 820 Bode Rd., Schaumburg. The meeting is open to the public.

Patty a robber or victim of terror group?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst, a tiny, motionless girl in court, went on trial Wednesday with the prosecution picturing her as a cunning bank robber and the defense claiming she was "broken" by the same brutal terror used on prisoners of war.

Exactly two years after she was kidnapped, a jury was seated and opening arguments begun in a case boiling down to the question of whether the 21-year-old heiress joined her revolutionary captors or was driven near madness by fear.

Famed criminal lawyer F. Lee Bailey told the jury of seven women and five men that Patricia was kept in a closet without lights for six to nine weeks, sexually abused and finally convinced she would be killed by the FBI if she attempted to surrender.

She was forced to go to the bank, Bailey said, by her captors who wanted to show her conversion — "to take her in like a prize pig and place her directly before a camera."

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr., in a key address, made no mention of brainwashing but said the prosecution would present evidence that Miss Hearst voluntarily joined the bank holdup and afterwards made tapes boasting about it and saying she had joined the Symbionese Liberation Army.

A bank guard will testify, Browning said, that he heard Patty call out to employees and personnel in the bank lobby: "The first person to move gets his m— head blown off."

Bailey told the jury that the girl was "a prisoner of war for 36 months."

$2.45 million debt in '76-77

Growth, deficit seen in Dist. 15

by MARILYN McDONALD

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 officials predict a slow but steady growth in enrollment for the next few years, but foresee a $2.45 million deficit in the next fiscal year unless spending is cut.

The news came in this week's committee-of-the-whole meeting, when officials presented the results of the district's 1975 census and enrollment projects, along with a 1976-77 budget update.

Enrollment should continue at present or slightly higher levels for the next five years because of approximately 35 housing developments either planned or under construction in the district. But finances may go into red ink next year because of Gov. Daniel Walker's education funding cuts, diminishing local taxes caused by a lower tax multiplier, and increased salary and program costs.

"We've taken a second look at our budget," said William Colburn, Dist. 15 business manager. "Our budget was passed before these things were firmed up. We decided that we had better take a second look at where we stand at this point, rather than wait six months," Colburn said.

COLBURN ESTIMATES the district will have $12.5 million in the education fund to spend on teacher and staff salaries, programs, materials and the lunch program next year. Of that amount, $11.6 million will pay the salaries of teachers, principals, clerical staff and aides, a 9 per cent increase over the estimated $10.6 million the district will spend on salaries this year. The amount spent on teachers' salaries alone will increase by 8.6 per cent, as provided in their two-year contract negotiated this fall.

But the education fund also must cover a $3 million bill for materials and programs. It must be stretched to cover projected deficits in the building operations and maintenance funds and the Illinois Municipal Retirement Funds. Officials say taxes generated for these two funds simply can't cover rising costs.

THE DISTRICT could recover almost $1 million if Gov. Walker decides to fully fund state aid formulas. Dist. 15 could collect more local taxes if the tax multiplier is increased. But officials say they can't count on those two resources.

"What we've asked Dr. Whiteley (Dist. 15 superintendent) to do is look at this budget and give us what is 'bare bones' — without increases in programs, staff or services," said Joel Meyer, board member and chairman of the board's budget committee.

"The budget we're looking at now includes new and expanded programs which we may not be able to do," Meyer said.

BECAUSE THE 1976-77 budget can only stretch so far, board members (Continued on Page 5)

Dist. 211 board member lobbies for school funds

Robert Creek

by PAM BIGFORD

The subjects were money and power. About 400 representatives of the National School Board Assn. descended on Washington, D. C. last week in an all-out effort to lobby with Congress for more federal aid to education and more local school control. Robert Creek, president of the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education, was the NSBA delegate from the 12th Congressional District. "The real purpose of this meeting was to put the arm on Congress,"

Creek said. "I guess lobbyists would be a good word for us." CREEK SAID THE NSBA members met in convention in 1975 to set goals they believed Congress could help them accomplish. He and other delegates to the meeting were part of a Federal Relations Network designed to convince Congress the NSBA's goals should be met through federal legislation. "The message that we were sent to deliver to Congress was three-fold," Creek said, including. • Don't let primary and secondary education get buried in the huge new budget process which includes funding for "Title IX, Title I, Title this and that." • Stop the bureaucrats from "making life miserable" for the school districts by attaching so many strings and red tape to funds; • Don't put teachers, into the hands of the national labor relations board. Creek said many school board members complain the cost of manpower and time in obtaining a federal grant is more than the grant is worth. One idea, now in legislation and opposed by many school boards, is giving public employees the right to collective bargaining, Creek said. Collective bargaining would give the National Labor Relations Board arbitration powers in a strike, Creek said. "THAT WOULD TAKE a strike out of local control," Creek said, naming a topic which has been a hot issue in the Northwest suburbs. Creek said congressmen he talked with led him to believe Congress considers revenue sharing, a process by which federal tax money is returned to the local governments, "a terrible mistake."

"Congress is disgusted with the way it works now," Creek said. "The money has to go to 39,000 different governments. Congress realizes that $1,200 going to a small town is not going to be used for anything new and marvelous." While school districts would also like to receive a portion of that revenue, Creek said Congress will probably extend the revenue sharing bill, now in its last year, but will not expand it "one inch" to include school district. "CONGRESS KNOWS IT has more needs than there is money," Creek said. He said Congress is "somewhat serious" about trying to slow down the cash outflow.

"The problem," he said, "is figuring what to cut out." Creek spent a lengthy time talking to U. S. Rep. Phillip Crane, R-12, and named a list of well-known politicians that had taken time to speak formally or informally to the NSBA delegates. He said U. S. Sen. Charles Percy, R-Illinois, gave up a conference with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to speak to the Illinois delegates. "They recognized a potentially powerful lobby when they saw one," Creek said.

$60,000 purchase price

Library to buy site for expansion

Schaumburg Township Public Library officials have paved the way for future expansion by agreeing to purchase a three-fourths-acre site adjacent to the library building at 32 W. Library Ln., Schaumburg. Library Board Pres. Chairman Jack Lucas said Wednesday the land, 219 N. Pleasant Dr., will be purchased from Schaumburg residents Jeanne Mundell and Norma Tobin for about $60,000. "We have agreed to a $1,000 option fee per year until 1980," Lucas said. With the option, the present owners cannot sell the land to anyone else during the four-year period. "WE'RE AFRAID that if we lose the property now, we can never expand again," Lucas said. Lucas said because of the lack of shelf space in the present facility, library expansion will be needed. Bonds currently held on the library will be paid off in 1980, enabling another referendum to be called for construction of the addition. He said because the present bonds will be paid off there will be no tax increase by passage of another referendum. Library Director Michael Madden said negotiation on the land agreement have been under way since spring.

Township OKs mental-aid unit site

Elk Grove Township has agreed to accept two acres from Elk Grove Village for a mental health facility. "Everything is looking good," Township Trustee Bernard F. Lee said of the plans for the $660,000 facility for the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center. He added, though, that some problems have to be worked out between the two townships and the village before final Elk Grove Township action is taken. SBL Corp. has given the two acres, at Nerge and Rohlfing roads, to the village. The village board last week agreed to turn the property over to Elk Grove Township for the mental health center. The village board also stipulated that the land revert back to the village if it is not used for a mental health center facility.

Lee said the townships have yet to determine how the land will be controlled and how it will be leased to the mental health center. TOWNSHIP SUPERVISOR Richard M. Hall said Schaumburg Township officials have a problem because they will be spending money for a building that will not be in their township. Each township has agreed to pledge $100,000 toward the project. The mental health center will apply for a federal grant of between $300,000 and $360,000, leaving the remaining $100,000 to be raised through local fund-raising efforts. Some Schaumburg Township officials have questioned the expenditure because the center would be outside the township. Hall said, "We would be morally obligated to work with Schaumburg Township" if the mental health district were to split in two and a Schaumburg Township mental health center were built.

Growth saddled with big deficit seen in Dist. 15

(Continued from Page 1) also are reconsidering costly building needs for next year. While the district's new 30-classroom Jefferson School in Hoffman Estates will require teachers, materials and books, the 12-classroom Cardinal Drive School in Rolling Meadows is due for expensive safety renovation work. Board members are weighing spending $303,989 to keep Cardinal Drive School open against the further budget strain of staffing Jefferson School. The board will resume discussion of its budget troubles at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the district offices, 505 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine, in a special budget committee meeting. The future enrollment picture is not as grim, however. According to enrollment projections gathered from talks with local developers, Dist. 15 officials say they will gain at least 300 students in the next 5 years, and may gain as many as 2,200 students if the economy picks up. "We can make the assumption that our enrollment is going to hold pretty steady. That, to me, is the most significant fact of this enrollment projections report," Whiteley said Tuesday. This was good news to board members, who have seen the district's enrollment decline slightly since 1972. The 1975 census, the first taken since district enrollments peaked in 1972, shows that the district's preschool population has declined 9 per cent in the past 3 years. Thus, the number of children graduating will be greater than the number of kindergartners entering the schools for the next four years. The census was taken this fall by PTA volunteers, to help school officials determine future building and planning needs. Processed with the help of High School Dist. 211, the census was first seen by Dist. 15 board members this week.

Suits to recover extortion money?

(Continued from page 1) chased race track stock at below-market prices from track owners. The case has been appealed to the Illinois Supreme Court. "THIS IS A NEW area that holds public officials liable to their communities for financial misconduct," Deputy State's Atty. Sheldon Gardner said Wednesday. "The giving of favors (like preferential zoning after receipt of payoffs) were at the expense of the community," Gardner said. "The community may even be entitled to damages from builders which were caused by overzoning." Gardner said he "will not recommend to my boss (Carey)" that the state's attorney seek damages for municipalities where local officials were convicted of corruption. "We're putting things together" for claims against other county officials who were convicted of extortion or bribery, he said. "There's no reason why the corporation counsel or village attorney can't proceed," Gardner said. Wheeling Village Board members met Monday with Village Atty. John Burke, who refused to discuss the meeting. BUT TRUSTEE Charles Kerr told The Herald, "If they (former convicted officials) did in fact receive money and benefited at the taxpayers' expense, the taxpayers deserve to get it back. If the courts now feel the money is refundable to the municipality, then I'm in agreement with it and would like to see it." Three Wheeling officials, former building director William Bieber, former trustee Michael Valenza and former trustee William Hart were convicted of corruption in U.S. District Court last year. Bieber pleaded guilty to federal extortion, perjury and tax charges, served a prison term and was paroled in 1975. Valenza pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy to commit extortion, and Hart pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit extortion in June 1974. James Stavros, a former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman who pleaded guilty to extorting more than $82,000 from three Wheeling developers, was not a "public official" and probably will not be named in a damage suit, The Herald learned. "WE'LL PROBABLY look to see what they (Bieber, Valenza and Hart) pleaded guilty to and if enough money is involved to make it worthwhile," Trustee Otis Hedlund said. "We're aware of the decisions and the position the village finds itself in, but we've taken no action yet." "Monies that were given like that could have come to the village," Trustee William Hein said. "If the village has any monetary income coming, I think we should get it." In Hoffman Estates, six former village officials pleaded guilty in 1974 to charges of corruption. The payoffs involved Kaufman & Broad Inc. and the Barrington Square development. Kaufman & Broad paid the village $75,000 as part of an out-of-court settlement in 1975 after Hoffman Estates officials refused to approve building permits for completion of the project. Kaufman & Broad also agreed to reduce building density for the project. "We recovered a considerable amount of money," Hayter told The Herald Wednesday. "We got a cash donation. If we had to go to court it may cost more in individual cases than we could get back. Most of those people are long gone."

1st blood drive in Schaumbury set Feb. 12-13

Schaumburg will hold its first community blood drive of the year Feb. 12 and 13. The Feb. 12 drive will be held from 5 to 10 p.m. at International Village apartment complex recreation building, 1220 E. Algonquin Rd. The Feb. 13 drive will be held from 3 to 8 p.m. at Schaumburg High School cafeteria, 1100 W. Schaumburg Rd. Under terms of the village's agreement with the American Red Cross Blood Replacement program, all blood needs of village residents are insured provided a minimum of 4 per cent of the community donates annually, said Mary Nagy, community blood chairman. "It appears important to stress that all Schaumburg residents' blood needs are covered under our program since we have been receiving a number of inquiries from persons who do not realize they are protected," Mrs. Nagy said. She said the village has met its 1,200 pint goal each year since the program was started in 1973. Persons 17 years of age and older who are in good health are eligible to donate blood. Donor appointments can be made by calling the village health department, 894-4500.

Dist. 214 offers training to jobless

If you are 18 or older and out of work, High School Dist. 214 has a program that could make your future a bit brighter.

The Project 210 Job Opportunity Training Center at Wheeling High School, 800 Elmhurst Rd., offers training in machine operation, clerical skills, drafting and child care. The center is sponsored by the Cook County Office of Manpower and is financed through the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

The program is designed for the "economically disadvantaged," said Martin Quinn, program counselor. Persons enrolled in the program usually have low incomes and are often the head of their household. Many do not have high school diplomas.

WHILE ENROLLED in the 12-week program, students are paid a "subsistence allowance" of $2.30 per hour, said Quinn, and receive supportive services to help them through the training program. The center may finance babysitting, supply eyeglasses, or provide personal, social and career counseling, he said.

Students attend classes for about 30 hours a week. Those who do not have a high school diploma attend 40 hours a week and receive extra schooling to help them finish their high school education through the General Education Development (GED) exam.

The center also offers a placement service to those who have gone through the training program. When the program was first offered in Dist. 214 last summer, 76 persons were enrolled and about 65 per cent were placed shortly after the end of the session. After they are placed, the center does a follow-up study on each trainee to insure they have been successful.

Quinn believes the program has been a success thus far. "With the unemployment rate as high as 12 per cent," the center is doing a good job in training and finding jobs for the unemployed, he said.

PEOPLE ARE REFERRED to the program through employment agencies, the Illinois State Employment Service and advertisements in local newspapers.

"This is not a give-away program," said Quinn. The requirements are fairly strict, he said. To be accepted into the program, a person must be a resident of suburban Cook County and at least 18 years of age, and he or she must have been out of work for at least a week and have no marketable skills.

The applicants are interviewed, and instructors of the training programs select those who are suited for the program. Attendance is taken daily, and the number of allowed absences is limited, said Quinn.

Classes meet at Wheeling and Hersey high schools from 2 to 10 p.m. five days a week. The winter session began this January, but persons interested in attending the program in the future should contact Quinn at 337-4980.

Safety code prompts proposal

Dist. 15 weighs school shutdown

Closing Cardinal Drive School, 2300 Cardinal Dr., Rolling Meadows, next year is being considered by board members of Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15.

The school closing was discussed at Tuesday's board meeting because of the high cost of bringing the school in line with life safety code requirements.

The code sets minimum construction standards for health and safety in public schools.

Dist. 15 architects DeBianco Schwartz Donatoni estimate it will cost $305,000 to make needed improvements at the school.

The 12-classroom school originally cost $385,830 and was built in 1961.

THE ARCHITECTS also say the extensive renovation work would take five to six months requiring at least a temporary transfer of students.

"When you look at the original cost and the potential cost of the life safety update you seriously question the advisability of spending that kind of money," said Joel Meyer, a board member.

"A question arises in my mind whether it is advisable to give other consideration to the housing of students at Cardinal Drive School," he said.

Robert Anderson, district administrative assistant for personnel and planning said Cardinal Drive is currently the district's smallest school with an enrollment of 222 students.

Of the total enrollment, 29 are receiving special education and are bused in from all over the district. The district also buses 92 students from the district's northeast side.

THUS ONLY 201 students actually live within walking distance, he said.

Nearby Kimball Hill School, 2905 Meadow Dr., Rolling Meadows, enrollment of 588 students, also buses in special education and long distance students. If only the 371 Kimball Hill students within walking distance attended Kimball Hill, that school could accommodate the 201 Cardinal Drive neighborhood students, figures show.

Supt. Frank Whiteley said additional classroom space will open in the fall when the new Jefferson School opens in Hoffman Estates.

ALTHOUGH SCHOOL officials have not finalized attendance boundaries for next year, Whiteley said the board should make its decision on Cardinal Drive as soon as possible to allow for teacher staffing changes.

"I'm certainly not selling changing the structure of Cardinal Drive School, but we should start weighing the cost of life safety work at Cardinal Drive," Meyer said.

No decision was made Tuesday. Discussion will continue when the board meets in a regular session Feb. 11.

Soccer club wins Sunday use of park

The Hoffman Estates Park District Soccer Club will have exclusive Sunday afternoon use of the Union Oil fields this spring for tournament play.

Park board members voted Tuesday 3-1 to grant Sunday use to the soccer club and Saturday afternoon use to the Hoffman Estates Athletic Assn.

Board Pres. George Rush cast the no vote after failing to convince board members to allow both groups Sunday use of the fields on a rotating basis.

"We're supposed to treat every group here on an equal basis," Rush said. "Since both groups wish to use the fields on Sunday, this recommendation does not appear to be fair."

Last week, more than 20 persons from both groups attended an administrative committee hearing where representatives demanded that a decision be made on the use of the soccer fields, located at Meacham and Golf roads.

Animal control law OK'd in Hoffman

The Hoffman Estates Village Board has approved a revised animal control ordinance, establishing $3 license fees for cats and dogs.

The fee structure had fostered considerable criticism when it was originally worded that licenses for pets that are not neutered would cost $5, and fees for neutered pets, $3. But the fee difference was dropped.

Also included in the revision are provisions banning mistreatment of pets, creation of an animal control officer and licensing requirements.

Free blood pressure clinic scheduled

A blood pressure clinic will be sponsored by the Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates Registered Nurses Club from 10 a.m. to noon Saturday.

The clinic will be at the Schaumburg Township Public Library, 32 W. Library Ln., where two nurses will be stationed next to the senior high lounge.

Any interested resident may participate free of charge.

by DIANE MERMIGAS

All's well with the world for a pinball enthusiast who has $3 in quarters, a good machine with a lot of bumpers and a nonstop, stereophonic recording of the rock opera "Tommy" blaring in his ears.

It's no ordinary world you enter after stepping up to a pinball machine and springing the small, silver ball into action.

The rock rhythms below, the bells ring out, the flippers move back and forth wildly, and 1,000 points light up across the slanting board.

IS IT DELIRIUM? Maybe, of a mild sort.

But for at least 65 teen-agers who jam the pinball machine rooms at Hotter Than Mother's Music record store in Mount Prospect on weekend nights, it's an illuminated maze of challenge and excitement.

The music store, 2 E. Northwest Hwy., began featuring the pinball machines nearly two years ago as a way to lure teen-age patrons to the records.

Although the plan has resulted in increased record and cassette sales, "more people of all ages come into the store to play the machines more than anything else," said Mike Herman, store manager.

"Some are really good. Others keep trying to be," he said.

THEY HUDDLE around the amusement machines that are lined up like soldiers against the walls of the dimly lit rooms in the converted, two-story frame house. Each "pinball wizard" picks up the beat of rock tunes coming over the loud speaker system.

They probably envision themselves as the "Bally Table King" in the rock opera that spurred the current pinball madness; the story of the deaf, dumb and blind boy who was master of the machines.

It's knowing just how much to shake the machine without "tilting" it. It's knowing just when and how hard to hit the flippers. It's vibrations, sensations and feelings, said Dan Hochstatter, Arlington Heights.

He "loves" to play "The Wizard,"

the most popular of all the pinball machines, because "it has lots of bumpers and obstacles that help keep the ball in play," Hochstatter, a junior at Rolling Meadows High School, said.

HE AND HIS FRIENDS play four-at-a-time on the games. Some father-and-son teams play doubles. The pinball sharks, who can play a whole night on 50 cents and free replays, usually "operate" alone.

Some "regulars" come in after dinner at about 6 p.m. "and stay until the place closes at 1 a.m. the next morning," Herman said.

"Some guys spend as much as $10 or $15 on the machines in one night because they have the urge to keep on tryin," he said.

And Hotter Than Mother's Music, not your typical music store, makes the playing more inviting by offering hot pizza and pop along with the continuous tunes every night of the week.

"There are some things we don't tolerate. There are some things we keep strict control of and that's why this has worked out so successfully," said Mike's brother, Bill, the store's owner.

Smoking, curfew laws and abusive language are prohibited in the store.

"WE DO IT BECAUSE this is a great kind of place for kids to be — they don't have anywhere else to go. It gives them what they are looking for — a place to meet and have fun," Herman said. Most patrons seem to agree.

A steady stream of area high schoolers, Harper College students and amusement game fans from as far as the Western suburbs play the machines daily. Many patrons make a point of coming in three or four times a week.

"It's just a lot of fun. I come in with my friends to practice. I like the Olympics game because you only need 80,000 points for a replay," said Larry Verhulst, Des Plaines.

The buzzer goes off, the digit counters clear themselves with a string of zeroes and the game is over — his points are lost.

"So, I'll try another game," he said, and moves on to "The Champ," or "Sky Jump" or "Monte Carlo." The pinball machines number 30 and each has a different name and way of winning.

"I'VE GOT A thousand more points to go," yells Hochstatter, "and then I'll be a wizard."

But, no one except the friend he's playing doubles with is listening. The room is ringing with sounds. It's a carnival for the senses.

It's the pinball phenomenon at its best.

Howlett urged to tell role with steel firm

by WANDALYN RICE
and STEVE BROWN

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael Howlett should make a full explanation of his relationship with Sun Steel Co. of Chicago Heights, Michael Bakalis, one of Howlett's running mates, said Wednesday.

In an interview with The Herald, Bakalis, the regular Democratic candidate for state comptroller, said Howlett should resign his $15,000 post with Sun Steel if "there were even gray areas" which might be interpreted as a conflict of interest.

Howlett has come under increasing criticism for holding the post, which included the title of vice president, during the past 10 years while serving as state auditor and secretary of state.

HOWLETT HAS said there has been no conflict of interest between his work as a consultant to Sun Steel and his state offices. He also has said he never kept the job a secret because it has been listed each year since 1972 on the economic disclosure form required by law.

Bakalis, the former state school superintendent who is running on the ticket with Howlett in the March 16 primary in opposition to a slate backed by Gov. Daniel Walker, said he believes some of the news coverage of Howlett's Sun Steel job has been unfair. However, he said that while Howlett is technically correct that he never concealed the job, he thinks the secretary of state should have done more to reveal it.

"Apparently the information was always available for anybody who wanted to look for it," Bakalis said. "But I think we politicians have to do something extra to raise our credibility," Bakalis said he personally makes all his financial dealings public even though "I'm not comfortable with everyone knowing how much I have and how much I owe."

Bakalis said he will not call on Howlett to resign the job because "I don't know the nature of the arrangement." He said if Howlett is correct in saying he only offered management advice and that there was no chance for a conflict of interest, he should not have to resign.

"I FTHRE WERE areas (in the job) that were even gray (in terms of conflicts of interest), he should disassociate himself from the company," Bakalis said.

He said, "I think a clarification has to be done because people don't trust politicians."

In related developments, Ronald Stackler, a Democratic candidate for attorney general, said he was glad to see Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott decide to appoint a special prosecutor to look into the Howlett situation.

Stackler also cited several recent Illinois Appellate Court decisions which suggest that a court hearing should be held to determine if Howlett should repay the money he earned from Sun Steel to the state.

Stackler cited court cases involving

State Rep. Clyde Choate, D-Anna, and former Cook County Clerk Edward Barrett, which ruled that public officials may be liable to repay the state any financial gains they may have received because of conflict-of-interest situations.

A second investigation also was called for by Donald Page Moore, a Democratic candidate for Cook County state's attorney.

Moore said a county grand jury should investigate Howlett's outside job with Sun Steel. He also called for the Internal Revenue Service to audit Howlett tax returns and the returns of Sun Steel.

In the 1960s, the beard was a sign of a revolutionary hippie, but in the Bicentennial year of 1976 society has sanctioned the beard as a sign of an historically-minded patriot.

At Fremd High School in Palatine a beard contest was conducted and clean-shaven students and teachers surrendered their razors Oct. 17.

Only 23 teachers and one student braved itchy faces until this week's judging when three contestants captured top honors for longest beard, fullest beard and youngest contestant.

Residents want strong manager: Waldron

A majority of Rolling Meadows 2nd Ward residents polled by Ald. Thomas Waldron say the city should adopt the strong manager form of government and continue to elect two aldermen per ward.

Waldron said Wednesday he has telephoned some 80 homes in his ward to determine opinions on a planned April 3 city manager referendum.

"We polled approximately 80 homes in the ward and the vast majority said they want to retain the present system of electing two aldermen from each ward," Waldron said. "They also said they favored a strong manager-council form of government."

WALDRON IS THE fourth alderman to question residents on the manager referendum. Ald. Raymond Neuckranz, 1st, and 5th Ward Aldermen Kenneth Retzke and Fredrick Jacobson also have surveyed their wards for opinions.

Their results have yet to be compiled, although Neuckranz said this week first responses indicate support for the strong manager concept.

The city currently has a mayor-city council form of government in which the mayor, rather than the city manager, appoints department heads with the consent of the council.

Waldron added most residents he talked to were unsure of the city's current government structure.

The referendum is planned April 3, but the city council and Mayor Roland J. Meyer disagree on what the proposal should say.

Meyer has said the referendum should ask if the council's size should be reduced from 10 to 5 aldermen.

Growth saddled with big deficit seen in Dist. 15

by MARILYN McDONALD

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 officials predict a slow but steady growth in enrollment for the next few years, but foresee a $2.45 million deficit in the next fiscal year unless spending is cut.

The news came in this week's committee-of-the-whole meeting, when officials presented the results of the district's 1975 census and enrollment projects, along with a 1976-77 budget update.

Enrollment should continue at present or slightly higher levels for the next five years because of approximately 35 housing developments either planned or under construction in the district. But finances may go into red ink next year because of Gov. Daniel Walker's education funding cuts, diminishing local taxes caused by a lower tax multiplier, and increased salary and program costs.

"We've taken a second look at our budget," said William Colburn, Dist. 15 business manager. "Our budget was passed before these things were figured up. We decided that we had better take a second look at where we stand at this point, rather than wait six months," Colburn said.

COLBURN ESTIMATES the district will have $12.9 million in the education fund to spend on teacher and staff salaries, programs, materials and the lunch program next year. Of that amount, $11.6 million will pay the salaries of teachers, principals, clerical staff and aides, a 9 per cent increase over the estimated $10.6 million the district will spend on salaries this year. The amount spent on teachers' salaries alone will increase by 8.6 per cent, as provided in their two-year contract negotiated this fall.

But the education fund also must cover a $3 million bill for materials and programs. It must be stretched to cover projected deficits in the building operations and maintenance funds and the Illinois Municipal Retirement

Funds. Officials say taxes generated for these two funds simply can't cover rising costs.

THE DISTRICT could recover almost $1 million if Gov. Walker decides to fully fund state aid formulas. Dist. 15 could collect more local taxes if the tax multiplier is increased. But officials say they can't count on those two resources.

"What we've asked Dr. Whiteley (Dist. 15 superintendent) to do is look at this budget and give us what is 'bare bones' — without increases in programs, staff or services," said Joel Meyer, board member and chairman of the board's budget committee.

"The budget we're looking at now includes new and expanded programs which we may not be able to do," Meyer said.

BECAUSE THE 1976-77 budget can only stretch so far, board members also are reconsidering costly building needs for next year. While the district's new 30-classroom Jefferson School in Hoffman Estates will require teachers, materials and books, the 12-classroom Cardinal Drive School in Rolling Meadows is due for expensive safety renovation work. Board members are weighing spending $303,989 to keep Cardinal Drive School open against the further budget strain of staffing Jefferson School.

The board will resume discussion of its budget troubles at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the district offices, 505 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine, in a special budget committee meeting.

The future enrollment picture is not as grim, however. According to enrollment projections gathered from talks with local developers, Dist. 15 officials say they will gain at least 300 students in the next 5 years, and may gain as many as 2,200 students if the economy picks up.

"We can make the assumption that our enrollment is going to hold pretty steady. That, to me, is the most significant fact of this enrollment projection," Colburn said.

Patty a robber or victim of SLA? Jury to decide

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst, a tiny, motionless girl in court, went on trial Wednesday with the prosecution picturing her as a cunning bank robber and the defense claiming she was "broken" by the same brutal terror used on prisoners of war.

Exactly two years after she was kidnapped, a jury was seated and opening arguments begun in a case boiling down to the question of whether the 21-year-old heiress joined her revolutionary captors or was driven near madness by fear.

Famed criminal lawyer F. Lee Bailey told the jury of seven women and five men that Patricia was kept in a closet without lights for six to nine weeks, sexually abused and finally convinced she would be killed by the FBI if she attempted to surrender. She was forced to go to the bank,

Bailey said, by her captors who wanted to show her conversion — "to take her in like a prize pig and place her directly before a camera."

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr., in a low key address, made no mention of brainwashing but said the prosecution would present evidence that Miss Hearst voluntarily joined the bank holdup and afterwards made tapes boasting about it and saying she had joined the Symbionese Liberation Army.

A bank guard will testify, Browning said, that he heard Patty call out to employees and personnel in the bank lobby: "The first person to move gets his m—f— head blown off."

Bailey told the jury that the girl was "a prisoner of war for 20 months."

Township wrapup*$14,800 reported in welfare account

Elk Grove Township welfare funds continue to meet current assistance needs, despite earlier predictions that funds will run out by March.

Township Supervisor Richard M. Hall said only $3,500 was paid out in the general assistance account during January, while $2,700 in tax receipts was received. He said the fund now has a balance of $14,800 for February and March, the remaining two months of the fiscal year.

Declines in the general assistance rolls during the past few months have been credited for the reduction in payouts, which were high early last year.

$49,619 revenue-sharing check

The township received its quarterly federal revenue-sharing check for $49,619, plus $147 interest.

Openings on mental-aid panel

The township is looking for three persons to serve on its mental health committee. Interested persons should call the township at 437-0300.

Branch of juvenile court favored

The township board passed a resolution in support of the decentralization of the Cook County Juvenile Court, as requested by the Northwest Municipal Conference. Officials hope to move the facilities from Niles to Schaumburg.

The board also passed a motion expressing its interest in joining the Northwest Municipal Conference, now made up of 16 area municipalities.

Three officials honored

The township board passed three resolutions of appreciation for former employees and officials. They were for Walter R. Bartley, former auditor; Frances C. Altenburg, former deputy tax assessor; and Margaret I. Blaschke, former general assistance director.

JOB TRAINING is being offered to unemployed adults in suburban Cook County through a federally funded program administered by High School Dist. 214. Instruction is offered in machine operation, clerical skills, drafting and child care.

Library, school explore sharing funded employee

Rolling Meadows Public Library and high school librarians are studying a plan to share a professional staff member whose salary would be paid with a federal library grant.

"Although several public libraries in the area are presently involved in participating in one of these grants, no two different types of libraries have ever attempted to coordinate such a plan," Judith Drescher, Rolling Meadows librarian, said.

"Since the high school library and our public library already have much coordination going on, we are investigating the possibility of a shared staffing grant," she said.

Mrs. Drescher said she has discussed the plan with Mary Quint of the Manpower Office of the state library who coordinates the Library Services and construction act under which grant applications are made.

"ONCE THE MOUNDS of red tape are surmounted, we may share a professional staff member," Mrs. Drescher said. She added she understands the grant provides 100 per cent funding for the first year.

"Librarians Elena Hoffman and Esther Perica of the Rolling Meadows High School, and I, are continuing to meet and discuss the plan," she said.

Mrs. Drescher said the plan is still in its formative stages and no proposal has been written or submitted.

"We could widely expand the library's offering of programs to children and their parents with additional staff help," Mrs. Drescher said.

The children's department has had to refuse or delay some programs because of scheduling problems and lack of staff to handle programs, she said.

Dist. 214 offers training to jobless

If you are 18 or older and out of work, High School Dist. 214 has a program that could make your future a bit brighter.

The Project 210 Job Opportunity Training Center at Wheeling High School, 900 Elmhurst Rd., offers training in machine operation, clerical skills, drafting and child care. The center is sponsored by the Cook County Office of Manpower and is financed through the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

The program is designed for the "economically disadvantaged," said Martin Quinn, program counselor. Persons enrolled in the program usually have low incomes and are often the head of their household. Many do not have high school diplomas.

WHILE ENROLLED in the 12-week program, students are paid a "subsistence allowance" of $2.30 per hour, said Quinn, and receive supportive services to help them through the training program. The center may finance babysitting, supply eyeglasses, or provide personal, social and career counseling, he said.

Students attend classes for about 30 hours a week. Those who do not have a high school diploma attend 40 hours a week and receive extra schooling to help them finish their high school education through the General Education Development (GED) exam.

The center also offers a placement service to those who have gone through the training program. When the program was first offered in Dist. 214 last summer, 76 persons were enrolled and about 65 per cent were placed shortly after the end of the session. After they are placed, the center does a follow-up study on each trainee to insure they have been successful.

Quinn believes the program has been a success thus far. "With the unemployment rate as high as 12 per cent," the center is doing a good job in training and finding jobs for the unemployed, he said.

PEOPLE ARE REFERRED to the program through employment agencies, the Illinois State Employment Service and advertisements in local newspapers.

Suits to recoup extortion funds?

by AL MESCHERSCHMIDT
and LINDA PUNCH

Dozens of former county and local officials convicted of extortion may return to court to answer demands by local and county attorneys for damages and recovery of payoff and shakedown funds. The Herald has learned.

Wheeling Village Board members and a spokesman for State's Atty. Bernard Carey said they are considering filing suit to recover funds lost in the payoffs and shakedowns.

At least three former Wheeling village officials, nine former employees of the county assessor's office, a former county board member, a former county clerk and a former county zoning administrator may be named in separate suits that could seek millions of dollars in damages.

WHEELING VILLAGE officials met Monday in a "closed" meeting to discuss collection of damages from former village officials who demanded payoffs from local builders.

In Hoffman Estates, where six former village officials pleaded guilty in 1974 to federal extortion and tax fraud charges, Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said a suit is not planned because developer Kaufman & Broad has paid $75,000 in damages.

Carey's staff began "preparation of approximately a dozen cases" last month after winning a precedent-setting verdict against former County Clerk Edward Barrett in the Illinois Appellate Court, a spokesman said.

Barrett was convicted in U.S. District Court in 1973 of extorting $100,000 from a firm that sold voting machines to Cook County.

CAREY ASKED Circuit Court Judge Walter P. Dahl to order payment of more than $100,000 by Barrett to the county because the former clerk abused his "position of trust by employing it to seek secret personal gains from the Shoop Voting Machine Corp."

Dahl dismissed the case, but the Illinois Appellate Court reversed the decision in December. Barrett has requested a rehearing.

"As an elected public official, he (Barrett) held a position of the highest public trust. Barrett acted as the county's agent," the Appellate Court stated. Because Barrett accepted the $100,000, "that benefit may be recovered from him" by the county, the court said.

In a similar downstate suit last year, the Illinois Appellate Court in the 4th Dist. refused to dismiss a taxpayers' suit, which asked damages from former state legislators who purchased race track stock at below-market prices from track owners. The case has been appealed to the Illinois Supreme Court.

"THIS IS A NEW area that holds public officials liable to their communities for financial misconduct," Deputy State's Atty. Sheldon Gardner said Wednesday.

"The giving of favors (like preferential zoning after receipt of payoffs) were at the expense of the community," Gardner said. "The community may even be entitled to damages from builders which were caused by overzoning."

Gardner said he "will not recommend to my boss (Carey)" that the state's attorney seek damages for municipalities where local officials were convicted of corruption. "We're putting things together" for claims against other county officials who were convicted of extortion or bribery, he said.

"There's no reason why the corporation counsel or village attorney can't proceed," Gardner said.

Wheeling Village Board members met Monday with Village Atty. John Burke, who refused to discuss the meeting.

BUT TRUSTEE Charles Kerr told The Herald, "If they (former convicted officials) did in fact receive money and benefited at the taxpayers' expense, the taxpayers deserve to get it back. If the courts now feel the money is refundable to the municipality, then I'm in agreement with it and would like to see it."

Three Wheeling officials, former building director William Bieber, former trustee Michael Valenza and former trustee William Hart were convicted of corruption in U.S. District Court last year.

Bieber pleaded guilty to federal extortion, perjury and tax charges, served a prison term and was paroled in 1975. Valenza pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy to commit extortion, and Hart pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit extortion in June 1974.

James Stavros, a former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman who pleaded guilty to extorting more than $82,000 from three Wheeling developers, was not a "public official" and probably will not be named in a damage suit, The Herald learned.

"WE'LL PROBABLY look to see what they (Bieber, Valenza and Hart) pleaded guilty to and if enough money is involved to make it worthwhile," Trustee Otis Hedlund said. "We're aware of the decisions and the position the village finds itself in, but we've taken no action yet."

"Monies that were given like that could have come to the village," Trustee William Hein said. "If the village has any monetary income coming, I think we should get it."

In Hoffman Estates, six former village officials pleaded guilty in 1974 to charges of corruption. The payoffs involved Kaufman & Broad Inc. and the Barrington Square development.

Kaufman & Broad paid the village $75,000 as part of an out-of-court settlement in 1975 after Hoffman Estates officials refused to approve building permits for completion of the project. Kaufman & Broad also agreed to reduce building density for the project.

"We recovered a considerable amount of money," Hayter told The Herald Wednesday. "We got a cash donation. If we had to go to court it may cost more in individual cases than we could get back. Most of those people are long gone."

Prospect probes cop abuse charge

Mount Prospect Police Chief Ralph J. Doney has launched an investigation into the complaint of a village resident who alleges he was physically abused by a local policeman.

The man, Paul Ruffolo, 47, of 149 Gregory St., said the policeman used undue physical force and aggravated a shoulder condition the motorist said he has, after a policeman stopped him on a traffic violation Tuesday morning.

Ruffolo also threatened to sue the village for the incident.

Doney has declined to identify the patrol officer pending the probe, but said the matter will be heard by an in-house review board to determine whether further action is necessary.

Doney said he talked with Ruffolo as well as the officer involved, but has received sharply differing accounts of the incident that took place on Central Road near Busse Highway.

DONEY SAID RUFFOLO was stopped because police noticed he did not have the required safety sticker on his truck. It was discovered he was not carrying his driver's license.

Ruffolo told The Herald the policeman used profanity when the two began an argument after Ruffolo was ordered to stay in his truck while the truck's ownership was checked and citations written.

Ruffolo said he got out of the truck because, "I remembered I had bought the sticker and I was trying to give him some lead on who the hell I was."

Ruffolo said he then was told he was being arrested on a disorderly conduct charge and ordered to put his hands on the hood of the squad car for a search.

"I HAD MY HANDS on the hood and he kicked my legs out from under me and he kept taking my arms off the hood to make it look like I was resisting arrest, which I really wasn't," Ruffolo said.

Doney said, however, such a search is common procedure for the policeman's protection during arrests.

Ruffolo also said he was handcuffed despite telling the policeman the cuffs were causing him pain because of his shoulder condition. Ruffolo said he previously had surgery on both shoulders and had to go to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights for treatment after the arrest.

"I think that for a traffic ticket, that's a little rough treatment," he said.

Doney would not discuss the patrolman's account.

Doney said Ruffolo was charged with not having a safety sticker and driver's license, and for disorderly conduct.

tions report," Whiteley said Tuesday.

This was good news to board members, who have seen the district's enrollment decline slightly since 1972. The 1975 census, the first taken since district enrollments peaked in 1972, shows that the district's preschool population has declined 9 per cent in the past 3 years. Thus, the number of children graduating will be greater than the number of kindergartners entering the schools for the next four years.

The census was taken this fall by PTA volunteers to help school officials determine future building and planning needs. Processed with the help of High School Dist. 211, the census was first seen by Dist. 15 board members this week.

Pinball wizard—where are you?

by DIANE MERMIGAS

All's well with the world for a pinball enthusiast who has $3 in quarters, a good machine with a lot of bumpers and a nonstop, stereophonic recording of the rock opera "Tommy" blaring in his ears.

It's no ordinary world you enter after stepping up to a pinball machine and springing the small, silver ball into action.

The rock rhythms bellow, the bells ring out, the flippers move back and forth wildly, and 1,000 points light up across the slanting board.

IS IT DELIRIUM? Maybe, of a mild sort.

But for at least 65 teen-agers who jam the pinball machine rooms at Hotter Than Mother's Music record store in Mount Prospect on weekend nights, it's an illuminated maze of challenge and excitement.

The music store, 2 E. Northwest Hwy., began featuring the pinball machines nearly two years ago as a way to lure teen-age patrons to the records.

Although the plan has resulted in increased record and cassette sales, "more people of all ages come into the store to play the machines more than anything else," said Mike Herman, store manager.

"Some are really good. Others keep trying to be," he said.

THEY HUDDLE around the amusement machines that are lined up like soldiers against the walls of the dimly lit rooms in the converted, two-story frame house. Each "pinball wizard" picks up the beat of rock tunes coming over the loud speaker system.

They probably envision themselves as the "Bally Table King" in the rock opera that spurred the current pinball madness; the story of the deaf, dumb and blind boy who was master of the machines.

It's knowing just how much to shake the machine without "tilting" it. It's knowing just when and how hard to hit the flippers. It's vibrations, sensations and feelings, said Dan Hochstatter, Arlington Heights.

He "loves" to play "The Wizard,"

the most popular of all the pinball machines, because "it has lots of bumpers and obstacles that help keep the ball in play," Hochstatter, a junior at Rolling Meadows High School, said.

HE AND HIS FRIENDS play four-at-a-time on the games. Some father-and-son teams play doubles. The pinball sharks, who can play a whole night on 50 cents and free replays, usually "operate" alone.

Some "regulars" come in after dinner at about 6 p.m. "and stay until the place closes at 1 a.m. the next morning," Herman said.

"Some guys spend as much as $10 or $15 on the machines in one night because they have the urge to keep on tryin'," he said.

And Hotter Than Mother's Music, not your typical music store, makes the playing more inviting by offering hot pizza and pop along with the continuous tunes every night of the week.

"There are some things we don't tolerate. There are some things we keep strict control of and that's why this has worked out so successfully," said Mike's brother, Bill, the store's owner.

Smoking, curfew laws and abusive language are prohibited in the store.

"WE DO IT BECAUSE this is a great kind of place for kids to be — they don't have anywhere else to go. It gives them what they are looking for — a place to meet and have fun," Herman said. Most patrons seem to agree.

A steady stream of area high schoolers, Harper College students and amusement game fans from as far as the Western suburbs play the machines daily. Many patrons make a point of coming in three or four times a week.

"It's just a lot of fun. I come in with my friends to practice. I like the Olympics game because you only need 80,000 points for a replay," said Larry Verhulst, Des Plaines.

The buzzer goes off, the digit counters clear themselves with a string of zeroes and the game is over — his points are lost.

"So, I'll try another game," he said, and moves on to "The Champ," or "Sky Jump" or "Monte Carlo." The pinball machines number 30, and each has a different name and way of winning.

"I'VE GOT A thousand more points to go," yells Hochstatter, "and then I'll be a wizard."

But, no one except the friend he's playing doubles with is listening. The room is ringing with sounds. It's a carnival for the senses.

It's the pinball phenomenon at its best.

Howlett urged to tell role with steel firm

by WANDALYN RICE
and STEVE BROWN

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael Howlett should make a full explanation of his relationship with Sun Steel Co. of Chicago Heights, Michael Bakalis, one of Howlett's running mates, said Wednesday.

In an interview with The Herald, Bakalis, the regular Democratic candidate for state comptroller, said Howlett should resign his $15,000 post with Sun Steel if "there were even gray areas" which might be interpreted as a conflict of interest.

Howlett has come under increasing criticism for holding the post, which included the title of vice president, during the past 10 years while serving as state auditor and secretary of state.

HOWLETT HAS said there has been no conflict of interest between his work as a consultant to Sun Steel and his state offices. He also has said he never kept the job a secret because it has been listed each year since 1972 on the economic disclosure form required by law.

Bakalis, the former state school superintendent who is running on the ticket with Howlett in the March 16 primary in opposition to a slate backed by Gov. Daniel Walker, said he believes some of the news coverage of Howlett's Sun Steel job has been unfair. However, he said that while Howlett is technically correct that he never concealed the job, he thinks the secretary of state should have done more to reveal it.

"Apparently the information was always available for anybody who wanted to look for it," Bakalis said. "But I think we politicians have to do something extra to raise our credibility." Bakalis said he personally makes all his financial dealings public even though "I'm not comfortable with everyone knowing how much I have and how much I owe."

Bakalis said he will not call on Howlett to resign the job because "I don't know the nature of the arrangement." He said if Howlett is correct in saying he only offered management advice and that there was no chance for a conflict of interest, he should not have to resign.

"I F THERE WERE areas (in the job) that were even gray (in terms of conflicts of interest), he should disassociate himself from the company," Bakalis said.

He said, "I think a clarification has to be done, because people don't trust politicians."

In related developments, Ronald Stackler, a Democratic candidate for attorney general, said he was glad to see Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott decide to appoint a special prosecutor to look into the Howlett situation.

Stackler also cited several recent Illinois Appellate Court decisions which suggest that a court hearing should be held to determine if Howlett should repay the money he earned from Sun Steel to the state.

Stackler cited court cases involving

State Rep. Clyde Choate, D-Anna, and former Cook County Clerk Edward Barrett, which ruled that public officials may be liable to repay the state any financial gains they may have received because of conflict-of-interest situations.

A second investigation also was called for by Donald Page Moore, a Democratic candidate for Cook County state's attorney.

Moore said a county grand jury should investigate Howlett's outside job with Sun Steel. He also called for the Internal Revenue Service to audit Howlett tax returns and the returns of Sun Steel.

In the 1960s, the beard was a sign of a revolutionary hippie, but in the Bicentennial year of 1976 society has sanctioned the beard as a sign of an historically-minded patriot.

At Fremd High School in Palatine a beard contest was conducted and clean-shaven students and teachers surrendered their razors Oct. 17.

Only 23 teachers and one student braved itchy faces until this week's judging when three contestants captured top honors for longest beard, fullest beard and youngest contestant.

Village mulls residential rezone tonight

by LUISA GINETTI

A proposal to rezone a residential area in downtown Palatine from commercial back to single-family will be introduced to the village board Monday night.

Trustee Richard W. Fonte Wednesday said he will ask that the plan commission be directed to hold a hearing on the down-zoning request. After the hearing, the village board must adopt an ordinance to change the zoning from commercial back to single-family.

Fonte said the area includes between 100 and 150 homes. It is bounded on the east by Benton Street, on the south by Palatine Road, on the west by Plum Grove Road and on the north by Colfax Street.

The proposal is considered "down-zoning," Fonte said, because commercial zoning is more valuable than single-family zoning.

FONTE SAID the zoning of the area does not conform to the master plan, which designated the area as single-family. The trustee said the zoning was changed to commercial many years ago and still exists that way on the village zoning map.

Steven Lenet, village planning and zoning director, said in a memo to trustees the area can be rezoned as a whole, rather than by individual parcels. A hearing on the rezoning must be held before the board can vote.

Lenet also said if more than 20 percent of the residents in the area protest the rezoning, a two-thirds vote of the board would be required to change the zoning.

Growth saddled with big deficit seen in Dist. 15

by MARILYN McDONALD

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 officials predict a slow but steady growth in enrollment for the next few years, but foresee a $2.45 million deficit in the next fiscal year unless spending is cut.

The news came in this week's committee-of-the-whole meeting, when officials presented the results of the district's 1975 census and enrollment projects, along with a 1976-77 budget update.

Enrollment should continue at present or slightly higher levels for the next five years because of approximately 35 housing developments either planned or under construction in the district. But finances may go into red ink next year because of Gov. Daniel Walker's education funding cuts, diminishing local taxes caused by a lower tax multiplier, and increased salary and program costs.

"We've taken a second look at our budget," said William Colburn, Dist. 15 business manager. "Our budget was passed before these things were firmed up. We decided that we had better take a second look at where we stand at this point, rather than wait six months," Colburn said.

COLBURN ESTIMATES the district will have $12.9 million in the education fund to spend on teacher and staff salaries, programs, materials and the lunch program next year. Of that amount, $11.6 million will pay the salaries of teachers, principals, clerical staff and aides, a 9 per cent increase over the estimated $10.6 million the district will spend on salaries this year. The amount spent on teachers' salaries alone will increase by 8.6 per cent, as provided in their two-year contract negotiated this fall.

But the education fund also must cover a $3 million bill for materials and programs. It must be stretched to cover projected deficits in the building operations and maintenance funds and the Illinois Municipal Retirement

Funds. Officials say taxes generated for these two funds simply can't cover rising costs.

THE DISTRICT could recover almost $1 million if Gov. Walker decides to fully fund state aid formulas. Dist. 15 could collect more local taxes if the tax multiplier is increased. But officials say they can't count on those two resources.

"What we've asked Dr. Whiteley (Dist. 15 superintendent) to do is look at this budget and give us what is 'bare bones' — without increases in programs, staff or services," said Joel Meyer, board member and chairman of the board's budget committee.

"The budget we're looking at now includes new and expanded programs which we may not be able to do," Meyer said.

BECAUSE THE 1976-77 budget can only stretch so far, board members also are reconsidering costly building needs for next year. While the district's new 30-classroom Jefferson School in Hoffman Estates will require teachers, materials and books, the 12-classroom Cardinal Drive School in Rolling Meadows is due for expensive safety renovation work. Board members are weighing spending $303,989 to keep Cardinal Drive School open against the further budget strain of staffing Jefferson School.

The board will resume discussion of its budget troubles at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the district offices, 505 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine, in a special budget committee meeting.

The future enrollment picture is not as grim, however. According to enrollment projections gathered from talks with local developers, Dist. 15 officials say they will gain at least 300 students in the next 5 years, and may gain as many as 2,200 students if the economy picks up.

"We can make the assumption that our enrollment is going to hold pretty steady. That, to me, is the most significant fact of this enrollment project (Continued on Page 7)

Patty a robber or victim of SLA? Jury to decide

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst, a tiny, motionless girl in court, went on trial Wednesday with the prosecution picturing her as a cunning bank robber and the defense claiming she was "broken" by the same brutal terror used on prisoners of war.

Exactly two years after she was kidnapped, a jury was seated and opening arguments begun in a case boiling down to the question of whether the 21-year-old heiress joined her revolutionary captors or was driven near madness by fear.

Famed criminal lawyer F. Lee Bailey told the jury of seven women and five men that Patricia was kept in a closet without lights for six to nine weeks, sexually abused and finally convinced she would be killed by the FBI if she attempted to surrender. She was forced to go to the bank,

Bailey said, by her captors who wanted to show her conversion — "to take her in like a prize pig and place her directly before a camera."

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr., in a low key address, made no mention of brainwashing but said the prosecution would present evidence that Miss Hearst voluntarily joined the bank holdup and afterwards made tapes boasting about it and saying she had joined the Symbionese Liberation Army.

A bank guard will testify, Browning said, that he heard Patty call out to employees and personnel in the bank lobby: "The first person to move gets his m—f— head blown off."

Bailey told the jury that the girl was "a prisoner of war for 20 months."

In multi-million dollar industry

Decal-maker is stuck on success

by TONI GINETTI

Remember those flimsy decals that came with the model kits you built as a kid?

Remember how they had to be soaked in water to work and how, no matter how careful you were, they slithered apart, leaving you with half a decal and an undecorated model plane?

Well, those days are gone. The space age has brought "pressure sensitive" labels, the kind with adhesive already applied. Jerry Brunette says that's the best kind, and he should know.

His Elk Grove Village label company, the Impact Corp., is one of the nation's top 20 companies in the multi-million-dollar label industry.

"WE DO SOME toys," Brunette says, "but that is an area we don't get into too much. There aren't too many model companies around here."

But the label industry has far transcended toy models. As Brunette puts it, "everything has to tell what it is," and his company has manufactured tags for just about every product and industry around, from steel to Coca-Cola.

"As an industry, the steel industry is the biggest customer," Brunette says. The company has produced helmet safety labels, shipping label tags, trademark label tags and instruction tags for Inland Steel Corp.

Some promotional material for the industry has also been made by Brunette's firm.

A tour around Brunette's plant is a trip through American industry . . . labels for Light Beer, Reynolds Wrap, Iverson bicycles, Westinghouse and Rheem water heaters, K-Mart products, Ford Motor Co., Burger King, Pepsi, Coke, Budweiser, Nestea and more.

THERE ARE OTHERS, too, like safety labels, the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce insignia, decorative trims — even "have a nice day" and "push here to release."

"We do a fair amount of printing for the food industry, and the automotive industry is a big one, too," Brunette says of his 8-year-old company.

And when he is queried on the key to his company's success, he says unhesitatingly, "We try to offer a better product at the same price (as competitors)."

Label-making is a multi-fold process that starts when a customer proposes a design idea. "In a big company, the design department does it," Brunette says. "With us, we either do it ourselves or hire out an artist or studio."

The design is then prepared for manufacture and run off on the presses in Brunette's shop.

"WE TRY TO GET 2,500 impressions an hour," Brunette says.

Sometimes a label must meet special industry requirements, and Brunette's firm has developed several special kinds of labels, including tamper-proof license plate labels for the state of New Mexico and even a label that withstands extreme heat for the steel industry.

"That one you just toes on," Brunette says. "You can't get close to the machinery."

Industry isn't the company's only customer, though.

"I guess kids are really our biggest customer," Brunette laughs. "They're always coming in here and asking if we have any labels they can have."

"AND MY FOURTH grade son is one of the best salesmen we have. He takes the labels to the neighborhood kids and to school."

There are some production requests that Brunette can't fill, like the one from the woman who wanted 50 personal sewing labels to tag her handmade clothes.

But the company did come through when another of its customers, Inland Steel, asked for some special labels — specifically five labels, 4 by 90 feet in size.

"Those were the biggest labels we ever made," Brunette says. "It was the corporate identification sign for Inland. We made five of them. That was five years ago, and they're still up."

body because the issue involves land use, rather than zoning variations.

THE TRUSTEE SAID he believes the board should take the action so the area corresponds with the master plan. "This (rezoning) will remove the cloud over the future of that neighborhood and that's really what's disturbing to the residents," Fontetownship assessor, said assessments said. He said there has been no evidence of commercial speculation in the area, so he doubts whether residents will oppose the move. Fonte also said there are not many vacant lots in the area.

Palatine loses NIPC offer

Free area sewer study killed by MSD refusal

by LUISA GINETTI

Palatine will not be used as a study community for the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission's sewer research project because the Metropolitan Sanitary District has refused to cooperate with the study.

The decision means Palatine will have to hire its own consultant at an estimated cost of up to $100,000 to do an analysis of the village sewer system as part of a $13 million sanitary sewer installation project.

If Palatine had been chosen for the NIPC study, the information needed could have been obtained free. The sewer analysis is needed in order for the village to apply for federal funds to help defray the $13 million cost of the sewer installation project.

MSD OFFICIALS sent a letter to NIPC asking that the study not be done within MSD boundaries because MSD would not be able to provide the analytical data required by NIPC for the work.

William Macaitis, MSD engineer of planning, said MSD officials have already done sewer analysis of the MSD area and did not deem it necessary to make another study.

Macaitis said laboratory space for such a special project is not available through the MSD because other MSD projects are currently utilizing this space.

James Wahlman, public information officer with NIPC, said the MSD's cooperation in the study was necessary because NIPC would have to rely extensively on data that is "at the MSD's fingertips."

Wahlman said an alternative site has not been chosen, but the City of Aurora is under consideration. He said NIPC must have its grant application for the project filed with the federal government within a week.

NIPC IS APPLYING for up to $200,000 in federal money available in the grant program to study the impact of sewer overflow in combined sewer systems. NIPC officials had said Palatine was an ideal community for the study because its sewer system is not connected to any other sewer system.

Robert Miller, village engineer, said the NIPC study would have provided the village with an inflow and infiltration analysis of the village sewer system, which is required in the village's federal grant application.

Palatine must separate its combined storm-sanitary sewers as a result of the MSD's decision to drop the village from its deep tunnel and reservoir project. The MSD said it was not economically feasible to include Palatine in the project.

As a result of the MSD decision, Palatine must install new sanitary sewers in 1,010 acres in the older section of the village and the downtown area in order to meet the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's clean water standards.

MILLER SAID he was upset with the MSD's decision not to cooperate with the NIPC study because it again puts Palatine in a position of having to spend money on its own because of an MSD move.

"We're back where we were before," Miller said. He said the village will have to make a decision soon on hiring a consultant if the federal grant application is to be completed. Information for the application could take several months to compile, he said.

Federal assistance will reduce the village's share of the $13 million sewer installation project to $3.2 million.

Cash support requested for Jaycees '76 events

The Palatine Jaycees are requesting financial support from the village for their Bicentennial events this summer.

In a letter to Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones, the Jaycees said they are concerned about the extra expenses anticipated this year for the Fourth of July celebrations because of the Bicentennial activities.

"We are now in a position to have to make substantial financial commitments," the letter stated. "One rainy day or one day of light attendance could materially affect a break-even position."

The group is asking the village for a financial commitment in the event the project incurs a loss. The letter asks the village to commit itself to paying one-third of the loss or not more than $2,500. The letter adds that the money would only be used in the event the project suffers a loss.

TRUSTEE RICHARD W. Fonte, chairman of the village board's administration, finance and legislation committee, said Wednesday he believes the board "will look favorably" on the request. "I think we have to sit down with the Jaycees and the park district to see what the plans for the project are," Fonte said.

The Jaycees have coordinated the village's Fourth of July celebration for the past 18 years. The village has contributed funds to the Jaycees in the past for July 4 activities.

The Jaycees are planning events for July 3 and July 4. Events tentatively set for July 3 include a parade, water fights, art fair, children's games, baseball games, an amateur garden contest, a parachute exhibition and a performance by the Palatine High School concert band.

Plans for July 4 include a flea market, battle of the bands, family games, tug-of-war, puppet show, baseball games, a pie-eating contest, a horse-shoe contest and a fireworks display.

Beautification plan seeks volunteers

Workers are being sought to help make Palatine's beautification master plan a reality.

The Palatine Advisory Board beautification committee is holding an open meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Community Park, and hopes to recruit volunteers to help with beautification projects.

The beautification master plan divides the village into six areas and calls for the planting of trees and shrubs, resurfacing of streets, installation of sidewalks and several other projects. It is estimated that a budget of $32,650 would be needed to make the improvements.

The panel also hopes to get various civic and community organizations involved in the beautification projects.

Move over Elton—we've got our own pinball wizard

by DIANE MERMIGAS

All's well with the world for a pinball enthusiast who has $3 in quarters, a good machine with a lot of bumpers and a nonstop, stereophonic recording of the rock opera "Tommy" blaring in his ears.

It's no ordinary world you enter after stepping up to a pinball machine and springing the small, silver ball into action.

The rock rhythms bellow, the bells ring out, the flippers move back and forth wildly, and 1,000 points light up across the slanting board.

IS IT DELIRIUM? Maybe, of a mild sort.

But for at least 65 teen-agers who jam the pinball machine rooms at Hotter Than Mother's Music record store in Mount Prospect on weekend nights, it's an illuminated maze of challenge and excitement.

The music store, 2 E Northwest Hwy., began featuring the pinball machines nearly two years ago as a way to lure teen-age patrons to the records.

Although the plan has resulted in increased record and cassette sales, "more people of all ages come into the store to play the machines more than anything else," said Mike Herman, store manager.

"Some are really good. Others keep trying to be," he said.

THEY HUDDLE around the amusement machines that are lined up like soldiers against the walls of the dimly lit rooms in the converted, two-story frame house. Each "pinball wizard" picks up the beat of rock tunes coming over the loud speaker system.

They probably envision themselves as the "Bally Table King" in the rock opera that spurred the current pinball madness; the story of the deaf, dumb and blind boy who was master of the machines.

It's knowing just how much to shake the machine without "tilting" it. It's knowing just when and how hard to hit the flippers. It's vibrations, sensations and feelings, said Dan Hochstatter, Arlington Heights.

He "loves" to play "The Wizard," the most popular of all the pinball machines, because "it has lots of bumpers and obstacles that help keep the ball in play," Hochstatter, a junior at Rolling Meadows High School, said.

HE AND HIS FRIENDS play four-at-a-time on the games. Some father-and-son teams play doubles. The pinball sharks, who can play a whole night on 50 cents and free replays, usually "operate" alone.

Some "regulars" come in after dinner at about 6 p.m. "and stay until the place closes at 1 a.m. the next morning," Herman said.

"Some guys spend as much as $10 or $15 on the machines in one night because they have the urge to keep on tryin'," he said.

And Hotter Than Mother's Music, not your typical music store, makes the playing more inviting by offering hot pizza and pop along with the continuous tunes every night of the week.

"There are some things we don't tolerate. There are some things we keep strict control of and that's why this has worked out so successfully," said Mike's brother, Bill, the store's owner.

Smoking, curfew laws and abusive language are prohibited in the store.

"WE DO IT BECAUSE this is a great kind of place for kids to be — they don't have anywhere else to go. It gives them what they are looking for — a place to meet and have fun," Herman said. Most patrons seem to agree.

A steady stream of area high schoolers, Harper College students and amusement game fans from as far as the Western suburbs play the machines daily. Many patrons make a point of coming in three or four times a week.

"It's just a lot of fun. I come in with my friends to practice. I like the Olympics game because you only need 80,000 points for a replay," said Larry Verhulst, Des Plaines.

The buzzer goes off, the digit counters clear themselves with a string of zeroes and the game is over — his points are lost.

"So, I'll try another game," he said, and moves on to "The Champ," or "Sky Jump" or "Monte Carlo." The pinball machines number 30 and each has a different name and way of winning.

"I'VE GOT A thousand more points to go," yells Hochstatter, "and then I'll be a wizard."

But, no one except the friend he's playing doubles with is listening. The room is ringing with sounds. It's a carnival for the senses.

It's the pinball phenomenon at its best.

Suits to recoup extortion funds?

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT
and LINDA PUNCH

Dozens of former county and local officials convicted of extortion may return to court to answer demands by local and county attorneys for damages and recovery of payoff and shakedown funds. The Herald has learned.

Wheeling Village Board members and a spokesman for State's Atty. Bernard Carey said they are considering filing suit to recover funds lost in the payoffs and shakedowns.

At least three former Wheeling village officials, nine former employees of the county assessor's office, a former county board member, a former county clerk and a former county zoning administrator may be named in separate suits that could seek millions of dollars in damages.

WHEELING VILLAGE officials met Monday in a "closed" meeting to discuss collection of damages from former village officials who demanded payoffs from local builders.

In Hoffman Estates, where six former village officials pleaded guilty in 1974 to federal extortion and tax fraud charges, Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said a suit is not planned because developer Kaufman & Broad has paid $75,000 in damages.

Carey's staff began "preparation of approximately a dozen cases" last month after winning a precedent-setting verdict against former County Clerk Edward Barrett in the Illinois Appellate Court, a spokesman said.

Barrett was convicted in U.S. District Court in 1973 of extorting $100,000 from a firm that sold voting machines to Cook County.

CAREY ASKED Circuit Court Judge Walter P. Dahl to order payment of more than $100,000 by Barrett to the county because the former clerk abused his "position of trust by employing it to seek secret personal gains from the Shoup Voting Machine Corp."

Dahl dismissed the case, but the Illinois Appellate Court reversed the decision in December. Barrett has requested a rehearing.

"As an elected public official, he (Barrett) held a position of the highest public trust. Barrett acted as the county's agent," the Appellate Court stated. Because Barrett accepted the $100,000, "that benefit may be recovered from him" by the county, the court said.

In a similar downstate suit last year, the Illinois Appellate Court in the 4th Dist. refused to dismiss a taxpayers' suit, which asked damages from former state legislators who purchased race track stock at below-market prices from track owners. The case has been appealed to the Illinois Supreme Court.

"THIS IS A NEW area that holds public officials liable to their communities for financial misconduct," Deputy State's Atty. Sheldon Gardner said Wednesday.

"The giving of favors (like preferential zoning after receipt of payoffs) were at the expense of the community," Gardner said. "The community may even be entitled to damages from builders which were caused by overzoning."

Gardner said he "will not recommend to my boss (Carey)" that the state's attorney seek damages for municipalities where local officials were convicted of corruption. "We're putting things together" for claims against other county officials who were convicted of extortion or bribery, he said.

"There's no reason why the corporation, counsel or village attorney can't proceed," Gardner said.

Wheeling Village Board members met Monday with Village Atty. John Burke, who refused to discuss the meeting.

BUT TRUSTEE Charles Kerr told The Herald, "If they (former convicted officials) did in fact receive money and benefited at the taxpayers' expense, the taxpayers deserve to get it back. If the courts now feel the money is refundable to the municipality, then I'm in agreement with it and would like to see it."

Three Wheeling officials, former building director William Bieber, former trustee Michael Valenza and former trustee William Hart were convicted of corruption in U.S. District Court last year.

Bieber pleaded guilty to federal extortion, perjury and tax charges, served a prison term and was paroled in 1975. Valenza pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy to commit extortion, and Hart pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit extortion in June 1974.

James Stavros, a former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman who pleaded guilty to extorting more than $92,000 from three Wheeling developers, was not a "public official" and probably will not be named in a damage suit, The Herald learned.

tions report," Whiteley said Tuesday.

This was good news to board members, who have seen the district's enrollment decline slightly since 1972. The 1975 census, the first taken since district enrollments peaked in 1972, shows that the district's preschool population has declined 9 per cent in the past 3 years. Thus, the number of children graduating will be greater than the number of kindergartners entering the schools for the next four years.

The census was taken this fall by PTA volunteers to help school officials determine future building and planning needs. Processed with the help of High School Dist. 211, the census was first seen by Dist. 15 board members this week.

Man who shot prowler charged in weapons case

A Palatine man who shot and killed an alleged burglar last December during a break-in at his home was arrested early Wednesday for carrying a concealed weapon while working at Harper College, police said.

Donald B. Baczynski, 36, of 53 S.

Smith St., a janitor, was charged with unlawful use of weapons.

Baczynski was arrested about 2 a.m. after Harper College security officers reported one of the college's janitors was carrying a handgun in a shoulder holster.

Baczynski shot Mark L. Desmone, 23, of Palatine Township, to death Dec. 1 while Desmone was allegedly breaking into Baczynski's apartment. No charges in connection with the shooting were filed against Baczynski.

Baczynski was released after posting $1,000 bond on the weapons charge and is scheduled to appear Feb. 19 in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Ferndale drops bid for water rate hike

The Ferndale Heights Utility Co. has withdrawn its petition to the Illinois Commerce Commission for a nearly 6 per cent increase in metered water rates after "year-end results showed the company was making enough money," John VanderVries, the company's attorney said.

The ICC approved a 16.4 per cent increase in water rates last May. VanderVries said "the full-year projection" of customers using power at those increased rates was adequate revenue for the company.

The company had requested the second rate increase last November based on mid-year, not full-year projections, VanderVries said.

The rate increase would have added 96 cents to the minimum quarterly water bill for about 2,700 residents of unincorporated Palatine Township served by Ferndale.

Last week VanderVries sent a letter to the ICC withdrawing the rate increase petition.

Howlett urged to tell role with steel firm

by WANDALYN RICE
and STEVE BROWN

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael Howlett should make a full explanation of his relationship with Sun Steel Co. of Chicago Heights, Michael Bakalis, one of Howlett's running mates, said Wednesday.

In an interview with The Herald, Bakalis, the regular Democratic candidate for state comptroller, said Howlett should resign his $15,000 post with Sun Steel if "there were even gray areas" which might be interpreted as a conflict of interest.

Howlett has come under increasing criticism for holding the post, which included the title of vice president, during the past 10 years while serving as state auditor and secretary of state.

HOWLETT HAS said there has been no conflict of interest between his work as a consultant to Sun Steel and his state offices. He also has said he never kept the job a secret because it has been listed each year since 1972 on the economic disclosure form required by law.

Bakalis, the former state school superintendent who is running on the ticket with Howlett in the March 18 primary in opposition to a slate backed by Gov. Daniel Walker, said he believes some of the news coverage of Howlett's Sun Steel job has been unfair. However, he said that while Howlett is technically correct that he never concealed the job, he thinks the secretary of state should have done more to reveal it.

"Apparently the information was always available for anybody who wanted to look for it," Bakalis said. "But I think we politicians have to do something extra to raise our credibility." Bakalis said he personally makes all his financial dealings public even though "I'm not comfortable with everyone knowing how much I have and how much I owe."

Bakalis said he will not call on Howlett to resign the job because "I don't know the nature of the arrangement." He said if Howlett is correct in saying he only offered management advice and that there was no chance for a conflict of interest, he should not have to resign.

"I F THERE WERE areas (in the job) that were even gray (in terms of conflicts of interest), he should disassociate himself from the company," Bakalis said.

He said, "I think a clarification has to be done because people don't trust politicians."

In related developments, Ronald Stackler, a Democratic candidate for attorney general, said he was glad to see Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott decide to appoint a special prosecutor to look into the Howlett situation.

Stackler also cited several recent Illinois Appellate Court decisions which suggest that a court hearing should be held to determine if Howlett should repay the money he earned from Sun Steel to the state.

Stackler cited court cases involving

State Rep. Clyde Choate, D-Anna, and former Cook County Clerk Edward Barrett, which ruled that public officials may be liable to repay the state any financial gains they may have received because of conflict-of-interest situations.

A second investigation also was called for by Donald Page Moore, a Democratic candidate for Cook County state's attorney.

Moore said a county grand jury should investigate Howlett's outside job with Sun Steel. He also called for the Internal Revenue Service to audit Howlett tax returns and the returns of Sun Steel.

Probe launched into complaint of abuse by police

Mount Prospect Police Chief Ralph J. Doney has launched an investigation into the complaint of a village resident who alleges he was physically abused by a local policeman.

The man, Paul Rufolo, 47, of 149 Gregory St., said the policeman used undue physical force and aggravated a shoulder condition the motorist said he has, after a policeman stopped him on a traffic violation Tuesday morning.

Rufolo also threatened to sue the village for the incident.

Doney has declined to identify the patrol officer pending the probe, but said the matter will be heard by an in-house review board to determine whether further action is necessary.

Doney said he talked with Rufolo as well as the officer involved, but has received sharply differing accounts of the incident that took place on Central Road near Busse Highway.

DONEY SAID RUFULO was stopped because police noticed he did not have the required safety sticker on his truck. It was discovered he was not carrying his driver's license.

Rufolo told The Herald the policeman used profanity when the two began an argument after Rufolo was ordered to stay in his truck while the truck's ownership was checked and citations written.

Village requests $150,000 from state for train station

Mount Prospect is seeking up to $150,000 in state funds for construction of a new downtown train station.

In a letter to Gov. Daniel Walker, Village Mayor Robert D. Teichert asked for help in getting a grant from the Illinois Dept. of Transportation. Arlington Heights was awarded a similar grant last week to build a new commuter station.

The new Mount Prospect station would be located east of Emerson Street along the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks. It would replace Mount Prospect's present station at Ill. Rte. 83 and Northwest Highway.

TEICHERT SAID relocation of the train station, estimated to cost between $100,000 and $150,000, would relieve traffic congestion on Ill. Rte. 83 during morning and evening rush hours.

"I would think improvement of the traffic flow along that road would be just as important to the state as it is to us," Teichert said. "And that's why we are requesting the grant."

Arlington Heights was successful in obtaining funds from the transportation department to rebuild the downtown station. Work on the project, expected to cost $130,000 to $150,000, will start in June with a fall completion date.

Although the stations are owned by the C&NW, state funds are being made available as part of Walker's program to create jobs.

"The village has already done what it can to relieve the traffic problems on Rte. 83 with changes in signals, roadway improvements and other traffic control factors," Teichert said. "There's not much left that we could do about the situation."

THE NEW STATION could be financed by a special assessment if the village does not receive the department of transportation grant, Teichert said.

Teichert said the village and the railway would begin plans to construct the new station if the transportation grant is approved.

"The village may decide to revamp the studies that were done on the downtown development in light of my grant request," Teichert said. "But other than that, now all we can do is wait to hear from the governor."

HE AND HIS FRIENDS play four-at-a-time on the games. Some father-and-son teams play doubles. The pinball sharks, who can play a whole night on 50 cents and free replays, usually "operate" alone.

Patty a robber or innocent victim?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst, a tiny, motionless girl in court, went on trial Wednesday with the prosecution picturing her as a cunning bank robber and the defense claiming she was "broken" by the same brutal terror used on prisoners of war.

Exactly two years after she was kidnapped, a jury was seated and opening arguments began in a case boiling down to the question of whether the 21-year-old heiress joined her revolutionary captors or was driven near madness by fear.

Famed criminal lawyer F. Lee Bailey told the jury of seven women and five men that Patricia was kept in a closet without lights for six to nine weeks, sexually abused and finally convinced she would be killed by the FBI if she attempted to surrender.

She was forced to go to the bank, Bailey said, by her captors who wanted to show her conversion — "to take her in like a prize pig and place her directly before a camera."

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr., in a low-key address, made no mention of brainwashing but said the prosecution would present evidence that Miss Hearst voluntarily joined the bank holdup and afterwards made tapes boasting about it and saying she had joined the Symbionese Liberation Army.

A bank guard will testify, Browning said, that he heard Patty call out to employees and personnel in the bank lobby. "The first person to move gets his m— head blown off."

Bailey told the jury that the girl was "a prisoner of war for 20 months."

Village to apply for federal funds

Mount Prospect will seek more than $1.57 million in federal funds for new sidewalks, streetlights and other village improvement projects.

However, the village must compete with all other Cook County communities for about $8.5 million in Community Development Act funds this year. Mayor Robert D. Teichert said the village has nothing to lose by applying for the funds, but residents shouldn't "get their hopes up" about them.

The Mount Prospect Village Board

Tuesday night approved pre-applications for five village projects under the county's community development program. Preapplications are to be followed with full, formal applications by Feb. 20.

PROJECTS THE VILLAGE is seeking funding for include:

- Street lighting on Northwest Highway between Mount Prospect and central Roads, and on Ill. Rte. 83 between Central Road and Prospect Avenue. Cost is $600,000.
- Development of a public parking lot behind the village hall, including a beautification program. The project is expected to cost $40,000.

- Rehabilitation of the old library, 14 E. Busse Ave., for use as a community center. New sidewalks are included in the program, expected to cost $60,000.
- New sidewalks for the New Town area of Mount Prospect. The project is expected to cost about $550,000.
- Purchase of the Mount Prospect Post Office, 202 E. Evergreen Ave., for use by the village police department.

A new postal facility is being built at 1 N. Elmhurst Ave. Expected purchase price is $325,000.

"EIGHT MILLION DOLLARS is not a lot of money to spread through the county," said Teichert. "All these requests go into different categories. One category might have $1 million allocated, but could receive requests for $50 million."

Teichert said full applications will be reviewed by the county's Community Development Advisory Board Feb. 27. The board is comprised of about 20 Cook County mayors and village presidents, including Teichert.

"This will be an initial review, and all requests should go before the full county board during the first week in March," he said.

All requests for federal funds from the Dept. of Housing and Urban Development must be applied to projects to be completed within the calendar year. No continuing projects are eligible for funds under the program.

The village board last month voted to participate in the county's program rather than seek funds on an individual basis.

Township wrapup

$14,800 reported in welfare account

Elk Grove Township welfare funds continue to meet current assistance needs, despite earlier predictions that funds will run out by March.

Township Supervisor Richard M. Hall said only $3,500 was paid out in the general-assistance account during January, while $2,700 in tax receipts was received. He said the fund now has a balance of $14,800 for February and March, the remaining two months of the fiscal year.

Declines in the general-assistance rolls during the past few months have been credited for the reduction in payouts, which were high early last year.

Openings on mental-aid panel

The township is looking for three persons to serve on its mental health committee. Interested persons should call the township at 437-0300.

Three officials honored

The township board passed three resolutions of appreciation for former employees and officials. They were for Walter R. Bartley, former auditor; Frances C. Altenburg, former deputy tax assessor; and Margaret f. Blaschke, former general-assistance director.

Lawsuits to regain extortion funds?

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT and LINDA PUNCH

Dozens of former county and local officials convicted of extortion may return to court to answer demands by local and county attorneys for damages and recovery of payoff and shakedown funds, The Herald has learned.

Wheeling Village Board members and a spokesman for State's Atty. Bernard Carey said they are considering filing suit to recover funds lost in the payoffs and shakedowns.

At least three former Wheeling village officials, nine former employees of the county assessor's office, a former county board member, a former county clerk and a former county zoning administrator may be named in separate suits that could seek millions of dollars in damages.

WHEELING VILLAGE officials met Monday in a "closed" meeting to discuss collection of damages from former village officials who demanded payoffs from local builders.

In Hoffman Estates, where six former village officials pleaded guilty in 1974 to federal extortion and tax fraud charges, Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said a suit is not planned because developer Kaufman & Broad has paid $75,000 in damages.

Carey's staff began "preparation of approximately a dozen cases" last month after winning a precedent-setting verdict against former County Clerk Edward Barrett in the Illinois Appellate Court, a spokesman said.

Barrett was convicted in U.S. District Court in 1973 of extorting $180,000 from a firm that sold voting machines to Cook County.

CAREY ASKED Circuit Court Judge Walter P. Dahl to order payment of more than $180,000 by Barrett to the county because the former clerk abused his "position of trust by employing it to seek secret personal gains from the Shoup Voting Machine Corp."

Dahl dismissed the case, but the Illinois Appellate Court reversed the decision in December. Barrett has requested a rehearing.

"As an elected public official, he (Barrett) held a position of the highest public trust. Barrett acted as the county's agent," the Appellate Court stated. Because Barrett accepted the $180,000, "that benefit may be recovered from him" by the county, the court said.

In a similar downstate suit last year, the Illinois Appellate Court in the 4th Dist. refused to dismiss a taxpayers' suit, which asked damages from former state legislators who purchased race track stock at below-market prices from track owners. The case has been appealed to the Illinois Supreme Court.

"THIS IS A NEW area that holds public officials liable to their communities for financial misconduct," Deputy State's Atty. Sheldon Gardner said Wednesday.

"The giving of favors (like preferential zoning after receipt of payoffs) were at the expense of the community," Gardner said. "The community may even be entitled to damages from builders which were caused by overzoning."

Gardner said he "will not recommend to my boss (Carey)" that the state's attorney seek damages for municipalities where local officials were convicted of corruption. "We're putting things together" for claims against other county officials who were convicted of extortion or bribery, he said.

"There's no reason why the corporation counsel or village attorney can't proceed," Gardner said.

Wheeling Village Board members met Monday with Village Atty. John Burke, who refused to discuss the meeting.

BUT TRUSTEE Charles Kerr told The Herald, "If they (former convicted officials) did in fact receive money and benefited at the taxpayers' expense, the taxpayers deserve to get it back. If the courts now feel the money is refundable to the municipality, then I'm in agreement with it and would like to see it."

Joins apartment dispute

Village raps zoning for Magnus

Mount Prospect will join Arlington Heights in opposing high-density zoning for the Magnus Farm, a 42-acre nursing home on Central Road.

The Mount Prospect Village Board voted Tuesday to authorize Village Atty. John Zimmermann to contact Jack Siegel, Arlington Heights village attorney, about a cooperative effort to block zoning for 728 units.

A hearing has been set for Monday before Cook County Circuit Court Judge Raymond Berg after Berg rescinded his Jan. 16 order permitting 17.4 units per acre on the property.

ATTORNEYS for Alexander Magnus, owner of the property, succeeded in obtaining the court order for the high-density zoning after the Cook County Board voted Jan. 14 to amend the zoning ordinance to eight units per acre. The new ordinance took effect Jan. 19, five days after the court order.

Mount Prospect officials said they were not notified of the ruling in favor of higher zoning, and that the judge was not aware of the new ordinance reducing the number of units per acre. During the county board hearings, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect opposed high-density zoning for the farm.

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert said Siegel could represent both villages in the case, with Mount Prospect paying a share of the legal expenses.

"I don't think we have the time now to have our attorney prepare something on it," said Teichert.

Cops, fire budget reviews tonight

Mount Prospect officials will meet tonight to review budget proposals by the fire and police departments for fiscal 1976-77.

Trustee Leo Flores, chairman of the village board's fire and police committee considering the budgets, said he expects to hear from Fire Chief Lawrence A. Pairitz and Police Chief Ralph J. Doney about their proposals.

"This will be a forum for them to sell their programs," said Flores. "We will review requests for increased manpower by the police department and why that's needed."

The police department has asked for $1.5 million over the coming year, a 15 per cent increase over the $1.3 budgeted in 1975-76. Included in the budget proposal is a request for seven new policemen. Personnel requests account for $162,000 of the increase.

The police department's crime prevention bureau is asking for $52,211 for the next year, nearly double this year's budget of $26,402.

The Mount Prospect Fire Dept. is requesting a 1976-77 budget of $1.36 million, up 7.1 per cent from this year's budget. Included in the fire department budget is $70,000 for new firefighting equipment.

The fire prevention bureau budget request is $97,895, down $125 from this year's budget.

The meeting is at 7:30 p.m. at the village hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy.

Dist. 26 considers special ed tax

Taxes in River Trails Dist. 26 could increase by 2 cents per $100 equalized assessed valuation next year if the school board decides to levy a special education tax being investigated by the administration.

The Dist. 26 board is considering the 2-cent tax to be levied without a referendum to provide money for special education. The levy would raise residents' tax bills from $2.55 to $2.57 per $100 equalized assessed valuation in 1977, said Ralph Beaudoin, district business manager.

"At this point we're just looking into it," he said Wednesday. "We would use the funds to convert classrooms for special education use because we do have a number of classes for the hearing impaired," he added.

Beaudoin estimates the 2-cent levy would bring in approximately $14,000 per year for the school district. In addition, the state offers districts using the tax $1,000 for each of its special education teachers, which could bring in another $14,000 annually.

The 2-cent special education tax was levied before in Dist. 26 to help finance the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization's Kirk Center, Palatine, a facility for handicapped youngsters shared by all NSSEO member districts.

District officials said they may have a few empty classrooms available for conversion to special education needs in the future because of projected declining enrollments.

Pinball wizard—where are you?

the Western suburbs play the machines daily. Many patrons make a point of coming in three or four times a week.

"It's just a lot of fun. I come in with my friends to practice. I like the Olympics game because you only need 80,000 points for a replay," said Larry Verhulst, Des Plaines.

The buzzer goes off, the digit counters clear themselves with a string of zeroes and the game is over — his points are lost.

"So, I'll try another game," he said, and moves on to "The Champ," or "Sky Jump" or "Monte Carlo." The pinball machines number 30 and each has a different name and way of winning.

"I'VE GOT A thousand more points to go," yells Hochstatter, "and then I'll be a wizard."

But, no one except the friend he's playing doubles with is listening. The room is ringing with sounds. It's a carnival for the senses.

It's the pinball phenomenon at its best.

Teachers tap pupils' feelings

'Circle' helps kids speak out

by JUDY JOBBITT

Kids have feelings too. Teachers at Jay School in Mount Prospect decided to tap in on these feelings and get youngsters to realize they should talk about what's on their minds. A special time and place has been set aside by the teachers as "The Magic Circle," where students are encouraged to talk about their feelings. They also have an incentive for saying what they really think rather than what they think the teacher or other students want to hear. "Put-downs" are not allowed. "THE CIRCLE CAN contribute in so many ways," said Shari Campbell, Jay's social worker. "It puts children in touch with their feelings. They become more sensitive to each other and can realize they're not alone with those feelings."

Social worker Shari Campbell speaks out.

She said even shy youngsters who might not volunteer to talk in the circle become involved through listening. For these students, had a similar experience.

Miss Campbell has been involved in the circles since last spring when third grade teacher Rookie Shifrin asked her help in starting one. Since then, eight more teachers have picked up on the idea.

Usually the topic for discussion is brought up by the teacher, who tells about her feelings or experiences on the subject, first. Topics range from habits to UFO's to things they are afraid of. Then it is the students' time to tell about their own thoughts.

MISS CAMPBELL said "The teacher becomes more sensitive to the kids and learns a lot about what goes on inside them. It's also a fantastic vehicle for working through classroom problems because the kids can come up with good solutions they want to work because they are their own."

Mrs. Shifrin said she wanted to start the circle because "I care about kids. I care more than just about their education. I care about the whole kid."

Some students did not understand what feelings were at first, but now they feel confident they can speak out and not be criticized for their views, she said.

The circle also has helped with discipline because students can talk about classmate problems instead of harboring their feelings inside until they finally explode in class.

WENDY LEVY said her fifth graders have broken some of the superficial communication barriers between classmates through the circle. She said they are at the stage where friends today are enemies tomorrow. The circle has given the students a place to discuss these problems and the hurt feelings they have from being shunned by the group. This has helped the classroom's atmosphere she said.

Students at a circle one day voiced enthusiasm for the program. They were asked for their candid views on the circle, and a vote was taken on whether the circle was good or bad. The vote showed a round of "thumbs-up" — the circle's sign of approval.

As one student said, "I didn't know about other kids' feelings before we started this. I mean, it's not like you talk about this stuff on the playground."

Hands fly up as youngsters wait their turn to talk.

Patrolmen prepare citizens information effort

'Think anticrime,' cops prevention staff advises

Mount Prospect police say they are out to make citizens aware of the department's newly-formed crime prevention bureau during state Crime Prevention week Feb. 8-14.

Patrolman Michael Salatino said the department will begin to advertise the service next week and urged residents to "think anti-crime." Salatino and Patrolman Michael Goy have been named to head the bureau.

"Since we've just started, we want to let people know Mount Prospect has a crime prevention bureau," Salatino said.

HE SAID POLICE have arranged to put anti-crime slogans and the department's emergency 253-2151 phone number on the signs and marquees of several local businesses.

The crime prevention unit is supported with a $78,900 government grant and will finance a number of anti-crime programs.

The first will be a campaign to urge citizens' band radio owners to have their units marked with a special etching device available through the police.

The marking, police said, will make them more easily identified if stolen. Citizens' band radio thefts have increased substantially in the last year.

SALATINO AND GOY also said they plan a number of speaking engagements before homeowners' and civic groups on how to deter crimes to their homes and property.

Local businesses also will be inspected and merchants instructed on how to make their stores and shops more secure against burglars and thieves, Salatino said.

Also planned are talks with women's groups. These will include tips on defending themselves against rapists and robbers.

Police Chief Ralph J. Doney said the bureau also will take over supervision of the STOP-ALERT program. Under the program, volunteer groups of village residents equipped with citizens' band units patrol village streets, reporting crimes and suspicious happenings to police.

Doney said residents or merchants with questions on crime prevention tactics or wishing to set up speaking engagements may call the bureau at 392-1414.
